KITCHIN ASCRIBES REVENUE BILL TO PUBLISHERS' PLOT

Tells House Their "Game" Is to Add Amendment Modifying Postal Pound Rates.

CALLS IT WORK OF LOBBY

Says It "Made Itself Felt" with Some in Whose Judgment McAdoo "Had Great Faith."

WILL FIGHT TO BLOCK THEM

Declares Publishers Even Hope to Get President and Secretary of Treasury to Aid Them.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 28.—Representative Claude Kitchin, Democratic leader of the House and Chairman of the Ways and Means Committee—an advocate of postponing revenue legislation until next session—announced to the House today that the Ways and Means Committee would take up consideration of revenue matters tomorrow. He then, in a sensational speech, attacked the publishers of the country, declaring that they were responsible for the Revenue bill recommended by President Wilson, and that they hoped to induce the President or the Secretary of the Treasury to force through a Revenue bill with the postal zone system eliminated. A law has been enacted putting the zone system in operation on July 1, and increasing the second-class rate on newspapers and magazines, placing them in zones similar to the parcel post. It increases considerably postage rates on periodicals and newspapers.

In his speech, heralded by informal announcements in the House lobby for several days, Mr. Kitchin first reviewed the attitude of the Administration, which was originally opposed to revenue legislation at this session. He said that this attitude changed after Secretary McAdoo returned from his Liberty Loan speaking campaign and that he had been influenced by "some one in whom the Secretary of the Treasury had great faith." Without saying so directly, Mr. Kitchin plainly attributed this influence to what he called the "publishers' lobby."

Representative Kitchin's speech, as corrected by him after its delivery, follows:

Urged Tax Bill Early in Session.

"In view of the hearty co-operation by members on both sides of this aisle to dispatch business in order to adjourn Congress by July 1, and in further view of the assurances which I have made so often to members upon both sides of the House that we would not have a tax bill at this session, I feel it is due to myself, as well as to the House, to make a brief, plain statement concerning the legislative situation at this time.

"The first of this year, in fact, at the convening of this session of Congress, I recognized that the appropriations and the expenditures under the appropriations for the coming fiscal year would be so enormous that we would be under the absolute necessity, either at this session or at the next session, of bringing in a revenue bill largely increasing taxes.

"After returning to Washington after the holidays, I talked with officials of the Treasury Department, with the Secretary and others, and insisted that a part of this session's program should be the enactment of a new revenue measure. When Mr. Burleson brought to me the President's program for the session, finding that it did not include any revenue legislation, I insisted to Mr. Burleson that the President should include as a part of this session's program a tax measure. I insisted upon it and talked with the Treasury officials, including Mr. McAdoo, about the necessity of a revenue measure at this session as late as March 15.

"I thought it was wiser and better, if we were to have tax legislation at this session, that we should begin it at once, in the early part of the session, so that we could get it behind us and upon the statute books before the hot Summer days came on, and then the people would have sufficient time to understand it, and to approve or disapprove. Those favoring would have opportunity to defend before their people their position on it.

"Finding that it was not the policy of the Treasury or the policy of the Administration to undertake the passage of a revenue measure at this session of Congress, and knowing, too, that a

Capture of Two Americans Is Basis for German Boast

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, May 28, (Associated Press.)—Two lone Americans gave the Germans an opportunity to mention the capture of "prisoners from American regiments" in the German official communication today. One of the Americans is missing in Picardy and one in the Lunéville sector. These are the only men reported missing.

WOOD LAYS CASE BEFORE WILSON

General, Denied Overseas Service, Visits President, but No Change of Status Announced.

NOT ON PERSHING'S LIST

Impression Conveyed at Capital Commander Did Not Want Wood, Bell, or Barry.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 28.—"I don't care to say anything except that whatever order I get I shall obey cheerfully," said Major Gen. Leonard Wood as he left the White House this evening after a half hour's interview with President Wilson. The object of the interview, which was sought by General Wood, was to ask the President to countermand the order detaching him from overseas duty in command of his division and assigning him to the administrative post of commanding officer of the Western Military Department with headquarters at San Francisco.

No statement, official or otherwise, concerning the outcome of the conversation between President Wilson and General Wood is forthcoming. Prior to General Wood's visit to the White House it was said authoritatively that General Wood had asked Secretary Baker to change his orders, so as to assign him with troops, and that the request had been referred to the Chief of the Army General Staff for consideration and report. It was made plain, however, that there was no thought of assigning General Wood to the command of troops overseas.

As far as the public is informed in any authoritative way, the action of the War Department in detaching General Wood from duty with the expeditionary forces just as he was about to start for Europe remains as much of a mystery as it was yesterday.

Wood's Friends Indignant.

Whatever the feeling may be in other parts of the country, it is undeniable that here in the nation's capital there is indignation in many quarters over the manner in which the senior officer of the regular army has been deprived of service at the front. It is not going too far to say that even among men who have no particular interest in General Wood the opinion exists that some explanation is due in his case. It is pointed out that he was permitted to organize the National Army Division at Camp Funston, was sent to Europe for observation in order to familiarize himself with the work ahead of him as a division commander, was found physically fit for overseas service by a board of medical officers, and was allowed to make all his preparations for service in France, and even to go to the port from which he was to take passage, when telegraphic orders came directing him to proceed to San Francisco.

The Eighty-ninth Division, which General Wood organized, is composed of drafted men from Kansas, Missouri, South Dakota, Nebraska, Colorado, New Mexico, and Arizona, and it was said today by Congressmen from Kansas and Colorado that General Wood was idolized by the people of those States, who would feel that they were entitled to some explanatory statement of the reasons for his sequestration. It was recalled that the Governor of Kansas recently, by public proclamation, had declared General Wood a citizen of the State with the designation of Citizen Extraordinary.

The impression is being conveyed in Washington that the change in General Wood's status was due to a recommendation of General Pershing. The fact appears to be that General Pershing submitted to the War Department a list of general officers who would be acceptable to him as commanders of troops in the expeditionary forces. General Wood's name, it is asserted, was not on the list. Evidently, if General Pershing did not want General Wood to serve under him in France he took no positive action toward keeping General Wood at home.

It is expected that the question will be exploited in Congress before very long. The understanding that a "negative list" was prepared of general officers not on General Pershing's list, applies also to the cases of other high ranking officers who, after training divisions of troops, were not permitted

AMERICANS TAKE CANTIGNY

Advance on Mile and a Quarter Front Into Fortified Village.

200 PRISONERS CAPTURED

Germans Suffer Severely in Killed and Wounded, While Our Loss Is Small.

BRITISH HIGHLY GRATIFIED

Note Hard Hitting and Speed of Ally—"Magnificent!" a French Officer Says.

WASHINGTON, May 28.—American troops in Picardy attacked this morning on a front of one and a quarter miles, captured the village of Cantigny, took 200 prisoners, and inflicted severe losses in killed and wounded on the enemy, says General Pershing's communiqué made public tonight at the War Department. The American casualties were relatively small. The statement follows:

> This morning in Picardy our troops attacked on a front of one and one-fourth miles, advanced our lines, and captured the village of Cantigny. We took 200 prisoners and inflicted on the enemy severe losses in killed and wounded. Our casualties were relatively small.
> Hostile counterattacks broke down under our fire.
>
> In Lorraine and in the Woevre artillery fire on both sides continued active. Early in the day our aviators shot down a hostile machine.

Our Losses Were Light.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, May 28, (by The Associated Press.)—American troops this morning attacked the village of Cantigny, northwest of Montdidier, attaining all their objectives. The German counterattack was feeble. The American losses were light, but the Americans captured 145 Germans, including two officers.

PARIS, May 28.—The French official statement says:

> West of Montdidier the Americans, supported by our tanks, brilliantly occupied a salient along a front of two kilometers and the strongly fortified village of Cantigny, capturing 170 prisoners and war material. They repulsed counterattacks.

Salient 600 Yards Deep.

WITH THE FRENCH ARMY IN FRANCE, May 28, (Associated Press.)—In the brilliant action, noted in the French official communication, an American regiment captured the village of Cantigny and also a salient 2,000 yards wide and 600 yards deep, in addition to 170 prisoners.

The Americans left their trenches at 6:43, after a heavy artillery preparation and covered the 600 yards in ten minutes. They carried machine gun positions with hand grenades. French tanks co-operated. The houses and cellars in the village were captured.

The Americans reached the German second position and consolidated themselves within three-quarters of an hour. French troops witnessing the operations exclaimed:

"The Americans are wonderful!"

Hit Hard and Quickly.

WITH THE BRITISH ARMY IN FRANCE, May 28, (Associated Press.)—The American troops on the French front near Montdidier delivered an attack against the German positions, fought their way through all objectives, including the village of Cantigny, and captured 140 prisoners.

Flanders Drive a Complete Failure; Considered Only a Secondary Move

French Counterattacks Restore the Line Where It Was Broken on Monday—British Eagerly Watch Four Divisions of Their Comrades on the Aisne.

By PHILIP GIBBS.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

WAR CORRESPONDENTS' HEADQUARTERS, Tuesday, May 28.—When the Germans attacked in Flanders yesterday, between the neighborhood of the Locre hospice and Kruisstraat, a front of about five miles, they were able after violent gunfire to take a few of the French outposts, like the Pompier Estaminett and the farm near it, which the French themselves had gained by their successful effort on May 20, and here and there they penetrated the French forward line, as in copses east of Dickebusch Lake. This morning the French troops counterattacked and restored the situation almost exactly as it was, with the exception that a small party of Germans remained this morning in one of these copses, covered by the machine gun fire of the French. They suffered a number of casualties, and lost sixteen men as prisoners and six machine guns.

At the moment of the German attack yesterday it was doubtful whether it was intended as a serious effort to gain ground in depth and whether the first assault would be followed by succeeding waves to carry it through against the main French defences. It is now fairly clear that this was not intended, but that it was a minor action to grab back just the stretch of territory which had been lost on the 20th and also, no doubt, as a demonstration timed to coincide with the great battle down south along the line of the Aisne.

German prisoners are of this opinion, and, anyhow, it does not matter very much one way or another, now that the operation is held in check by the French, who have re-established their positions.

Seasoned Veterans in Battle.

For the time being the interest of the war is shifted to the position on the Aisne, where the enemy has struck heavily in great force, while still threatening our northern front by huge numbers of men and artillery concentrations. With that battle I have nothing to do as a war correspondent, as it is outside my boundary, but up here in the north our thoughts are with those divisions of ours, the 8th, 21st, 25th, and 50th, which have been heavily engaged in this new battle along the Aisne in the midst of French troops.

It is hard luck on them, but they have fought with the courage that made their divisions glorious in many battles. It is hard luck on them, for they helped to bear the brunt of the German onslaught of March 21 and in the following weeks, and their battalions fought day after day and night after night against overwhelming odds, falling back slowly at times before the enemy's great weight, but always keeping their face to the foe and fighting rearguard actions which made the Germans pay a frightful price and at last brought them to a dead halt.

The Northumberland Fusiliers and other battalions of the 50th Division were men who had made a forced march to the battlefields of the Lys when the Portuguese were broken, and by the sheer valor of the young officers, Sergeants, Corporals, and private soldiers fighting in small bodies holding isolated positions, holding on to the death when surrounded by hordes of Germans, counterattacking with weak numbers against three times or five times their own, staggering up to new attacks when at last they were so tired that they could hardly stand or walk or keep awake, stopped the gap which the enemy tried to force and broke the head of his battering ram.

Fighting Men from the Somme.

So was it with the other British divisions. The 8th faced the enemy's wild rush across the old Somme battlefield and helped stem that tide by their bodies, barring the way to Amiens, their spirit never failing though their losses were many and obeying the Commander in Chief's watchword of fighting to the last with their backs to the wall.

The 21st Division are veterans of this war. Their first baptism of fire was in the battle of Loos ages ago, as time counts now. They, too, were in the retreat that followed March 21 of this Spring, and their rearguard actions were fought by small bodies of men tired to the last point of human fatigue, but never giving up ground without taking toll of the enemy.

The 25th Division fought all through from Wytschaete Ridge to the end of the Flanders battles last year, and then, when the German offensive began at the end of March this year fought again, as then, with dogged devotion and pride beyond the fear of death. They had long, hard innings, too long except for our great need, too hard except that they never lost their fighting spirit, and in separate bodies between Stenwerk and Messines they stuck it out, not only with amazing endurance but with a quality of courage which enabled them to attack and counterattack, so that the enemy had to give ground before them.

Those English County troops are the men against whom the enemy has hurled new masses of fresh troops, and the heart of their old comrades up here in the north goes out to them.

MANY AISNE TOWNS FALL

GAINS ON NINE-MILE FRONT

ALLIED FLANKS HOLD FIRM

French Northeast of Soissons, British Northwest of Rheims, Withstand Attacks.

French Official Report.

PARIS, May 28.—The War Office bulletin on the Aisne fighting issued tonight says:

> Last night and today the enemy, taking advantage of his numerical superiority, renewed his thrust more strongly toward the southeast of Soissons. On our left we counterattacked vigorously, stopped the German advance, and broke up attacks on the heights of Neuville-sur-Margival and Vregny, northeast of Soissons, and on the heights in the region of Ciry-Salsogne and Vasseny, dominating the Vesle Valley.
>
> The principal effort was directed toward rolling back the centre on the line of the Vesle, which the Germans succeeded in crossing at several points, notably in the region of Bazocres and Fismes.
>
> On our right the British withstood the assaults against the Massif of St. Thierry, [northwest of Rheims,] inflicting particularly heavy losses.

BERLIN, May 28, (via London.)—Complete victory over the French and English divisions south of Laon [on the Aisne front] is reported from Army Headquarters, which records the capture of 15,000 prisoners, and the storming of numerous towns north of the Aisne, followed by the driving of a wedge southward from the Aisne to Fismes, on the River Vesle, which has been crossed on both sides of that town.

[This crossing of the Vesle indicates an advance of about six miles beyond the four-mile gain reported in Monday's official communication from Berlin.]

In the sector northwest of Rheims the British troops have been forced back toward Berry-au-Bac and across the Aisne-Marne Canal.

German Advance Passes the Vesle.

Following is the text of the night report from Great Headquarters:

> We are now fighting for the Vesle sector, between Soissons and west of Rheims, and have captured the southern bank on both sides of Fismes.
>
> Our attack across the Aisne is being continued, and yesterday's successes have been further extended.

The day report says:

> On the Kemmel and Lys battlefields and on both sides of the Somme and the Avre the artillery duels increased in intensity yesterday morning. Between Voormezeele and Locre we penetrated the French lines and brought back more than 300 prisoners.
>
> The attack of the German Crown Prince to the south of Laon led to complete success. We completely defeated the French and English divisions stationed there.
>
> The army of General von Boehm took the Chemin des Dames by storm. The long ridge, against which the great attempt of the French to break through collapsed in the Spring of 1917, and which we evacuated in the Autumn of last year for strategic purposes, is again in our hands.
>
> After tremendous artillery preparation, our infantry at daybreak found its way across the Ailette River between Vauxaillon and Craonne and penetrated the English lines further east, between Corbeny and the Aisne. Completely taken by surprise, the occupants of the first enemy lines generally offered only slight resistance.

Paris Sees German Momentum Already Slackening; Allied Reserves Arriving, and Their Effect Is Felt

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.
By G. H. PERRIS.

WITH THE FRENCH ARMIES, Tuesday Afternoon, May 28.—The French reserves are now beginning to arrive at the front, and it is believed the worst is over now. It is clear the German plans were for a big offensive, not a mere diversion.

PARIS, May 28.—The situation tonight is more reassuring. The latest advices from the front show that, while the violence of the enemy's effort as yet is unabated, he is only making headway on the centre, and that even there the German momentum is giving signs of slackening. The Allies are beginning to react with effect on the wings.

The French left is holding well and blocking the German attempts to widen the salient toward Soissons. The French retain a wide bridgehead north of the Aisne, above that city—a circumstance highly menacing for the enemy's flank.

On the right the British still cling successfully to the group of hills north of the Vesle River.

Division to a Mile on 25-Mile Front Hurled Against Allies in Attack

Defenders, Outnumbered Five to One, Fall Back Under Immense Pressure of More Than 250,000 Men—Three Large Fields of Offensive Now Have to be Supplied by Germans.

By G. H. PERRIS.

Copyright, 1918, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

WITH THE FRENCH ARMIES, May 28.—Hindenburg has scored another spectacular success. At dawn yesterday, after three hours' bombardment, composed largely of gas shells, a new German mass attack was thrown upon a twenty-five-mile front, extending from the Ailette near Vauxaillon to the Aisne-Marne Canal near Brimont.

It was four or five times as numerous as the defenders, and in other regards correspondingly stronger. In these circumstances, an attempt to retain the line of the Chemin des Dames would have meant that the French troops would have been massacred before reserves could reach them, and there was nothing for it but to fall back steadily and in good order, using successive lines of trenches and deep folds of ground to punish the enemy for every forward step he made.

Old Method Again Employed.

As I anticipated in my last message, the method of the first phase of the German offensive was again employed with some improvements. This method rests, as I have shown, upon two main elements—the prodigal expenditure of the large reserves obtained by the collapse of Russia and Rumania, and the skillful use of the great advantage of what are called interior lines of communication to throw a mass attack suddenly upon the chosen sector, and so to gain the further advantage of surprise.

The front now chosen was held till a day or two ago by parts of two armies belonging to the group of which the Prussian Crown Prince is the titular chief. General von Boehm's army, extending from the Oise at Noyon to east of Craonne, numbered nine divisions. In the sector of General Fritz von Below, extending across the Rheims front to Suippe, near Auberive, there were eight divisions. The whole twenty-five miles attacked yesterday had therefore been held till the eve of battle by only seven or eight divisions. The exact number of divisions engaged yesterday is not yet known, but it seems to have been about twenty-five, or over a quarter of a million combatants.

There is here a curious difference and likeness as compared with the first phase of the offensive on March 21. To the seventeen divisions already holding the sector of attack there were added another seventeen. This time the same number has been added where there were only eight. Two months ago the front of attack was about forty miles long. This time a rather denser force was employed, perhaps because the Aisne height constituted a formidable position and it was intended to carry it at a single rush

Has Advantage of Position.

While the front keeps its present shape the German staff has necessarily a great advantage over that of the Allies in that it is acting from the centre of a crescent, and they are around and outside of it. I have described the elaborate measures taken by the enemy to secure complete secrecy and the utmost speed in bringing up the army of shock to its starting points.

If enough time can be given to preparations—and as my last message showed the pause had been abnormal—they must gain a certain benefit of surprise, and with this benefit such a mass of shock must win a certain depth of ground. It is out of the question at present for the Allies to hold all possible sectors of attack strongly enough to make them perfectly secure, and indeed if they had men enough this is not the way in which they would be used.

Nothing is more difficult for laymen to seize, and yet nothing is more certain, than the change of values as the war evolves. Our only notions of the Chemin des Dames were obtained in a time very different from the present emergency, the time of fixed fronts and of methods defensive and offensive that are already old-fashioned to those of us who have watched these blood-soaked hills and gullies for nearly four years through heartrending vicissitudes, who remember Haig's and Smith-Dorrien's first attempts to scale what seemed an impregnable fortress, who saw the French bluecoats rush forward last Summer till at length they stood firm on the cliffs of Craonne and Heurtebise, who explored the dragon's cave at Malmaison Fort and the vast Montparnasse quarry when they still stank from rotting flesh.

It is not a light thing that ground so full of tragic memories should be lost. It seems only the other day that I was adventuring along the Ailette by Anizy-le-Château, sleeping in a dugout in Pinon Forest, and examining the outposts that then held the northern edge of the hills.

Retreat a Wise Manoeuvre.

War pays little regards to sentiment, and it is not any spectacular stroke or sentimental score that will restore the falling fortunes of the Hohenzollerns. No doubt the French command found it grievous yesterday to order a retreat to the Aisne. Feebler men might have temporized and lost in doing so many good lives which are after all more sacred than the most sacred earth.

The attack could not be anticipated. It was far beyond the powers of the small defending forces to ward it off. With sound tactical sense the heaviest assault was directed toward the eastern end of the Aisne Hills at Craonne as soon as it became evident that this corner could not be held, and that from here the whole line was in danger of being turned.

The German forces included some of the specially trained units that fought in von Hutier's army in the

The Times Special Cable Dispatches from the War Centres

March attack—two divisions of the Prussian Guard and other crack formations. It was only at heavy cost that they got forward so quickly. The French retired from position to position without confusion, firing continuously. The fact that their losses are small in comparison with those of the enemy is an essential point.

What, then, has the Crown Prince gained? A showy advertisement to set off against his long list of failures, as the position, whether for defense or offense of the Aisne line, is for him no stronger than that of the Ailette, with the Laon hills behind it.

Looking beyond the Crown Prince to the German effort as a whole, how does the account stand? This success does strengthen and protect its southern flank. Against this slight or theoretical benefit must be counted the serious dispersal of forces. Three large fields of offensive have been successfully opened, extending beyond Ypres to near Rheims. None of them can be neglected. All of them must be fed under a system entailing a ratio of loss constantly higher than that of the allied defenders.

On the Eve of the Attack.

May 26.—I have said that the delay of the third act of the German offensive was abnormal. The first was perhaps, in design and execution, the most powerful operation in the history of warfare. The second, the attack in Flanders in the middle week of April, almost certainly began as a diversion intended to draw the British reserves from the Amiens front and to fill the interval needed for the reorganization of forces.

Up to the middle of April the German armies not occupied in fighting could do little but commence the strengthening of their new fronts, as lines of defense and departure. Their staffs, high and low, must, however, have been already engaged upon plans for the next push. Six or seven weeks then have passed in constituting a new mass of attack, with its armament and transport, in constructing roads and railways, dumps and supply centres, in bringing forward batteries, airdromes, and hospitals, and so on.

True, this is not as long as the time of preparation for the first phase of the battle, which may be broadly counted as from New Year's to March 21. But there should be a vast difference between the mounting of a wholly fresh offensive and its pursuit into the later stages. A reletless continuity of pressure is evidently of very great importance after the advantage of the initial surprise. It is the thing which a commander will most aim at.

If the Germans did not keep going on the main line of their attack north and south of the Somme after the middle of April, it is because they could not do so; and the partial success of their extemporized campaign in Flanders should not disguise from us this significant fact.

It would be useless at this period of the war, when all Germany demands a decision and nothing less, if the new offensive did not lead to the capture at least of some place of symbolic importance, such as Rheims, Verdun, or Nancy. But that would require a force so large as to cripple the major effort in the northwest. All the military virtue of the German strategy is against such a dispersal of effort.

Co-operative action by Austria in Italy is not open to these objections unless German troops are called for to take part in it. It is anticipated with so little fear by our allies that they have sent some good divisions to our front to help bear what will be, even from the Italian point of view, the more important shock. The desire to wait till weather conditions enable the unhappy Austrians to act may be a minor reason for the delay of the German adventure.

It is possible, also, that at the recent conference of the directors of the Central Empires Austria agreed to relieve the whole of the German troops remaining on the eastern front. This would, after some delay, yield Hindenburg a reinforcement considerable in numbers, though of very indifferent quality. There have been, I believe, two more certain and sufficient reasons for the delay. The first is the heavy losses and disorganization suffered by the original mass of attack; the second, flowing from this, is the intention to attempt a still greater effort essentially of the same character.

German Victory on Chemin des Dames More a Moral Than Material Gain

Foch Declined to Waste Men Against Superior Odds in Defense of That Position—Allies No Less Confident Than Before.

By WALTER DURANTY.

Copyright, 1918, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

WITH THE FRENCH ARMIES, Tuesday, May 28.—The enemy has struck at last and as was expected the blow has been in conception and execution almost an exact parallel of the original attack on March 21.

As stated in previous cable dispatches the French have known for some time that the Germans had concentrated strong forces of picked divisions in the Hirson-Mezières region—just as they had done in March—ready to repeat the eleventh-hour night marching tactics which enable them to throw an overwhelming force at a given point and thus gain the tactical advantage of surprise.

Both rail and road communications are exceedingly good, either west and southwest toward Amiens, or south and southwest toward Rheims; and, in fact, I have been informed that in March it was generally expected that the blow would fall in the region chosen yesterday, which was one of the reasons why the Allies experienced a certain difficulty at the outset, because being on the outside of the angle, they had to move their reserves a much greater distance than the enemy. Ludendorff evidently hopes to involve them again in the same dilemma.

As regard the attack itself, there is no good trying to conceal the fact that it has accomplished results of a certain importance. According to the latest information, here is what occurred:

At 1 A. M. a terrific bombardment, in which, as before, gas shells largely predominated, was opened along a twenty-five-mile front, from Neuilly, north of Soissons, to Brimont, north of Rheims. After three hours an assault was delivered in overwhelming froce, a quarter of a million men at least being thrown against the Franco-British defenders, who were outnumbered.

The position attacked was the historic plateau of the Chemin des Dames, a long, bare chalk ridge, whose widest portion is westward, and which tapers down almost to a knife edge above Craonne. The latter sector was held by British divisions that had been severely engaged in the great battle.

The feature of gas attacks is that, owing to the necessity of wearing masks continually, oral and telephonic communication becomes virtually impossible, and the defenders, who must counter plans of which they are in ignorance, are at a special disadvantage as compared with the assailants, who know exactly what they want to do.

Secondly, the very steepness of the ridge in the Craonne region gave the enemy an advantage, as it sheltered them as by a wall from the allied fire until they actually reached the summit, where sheer weight of numbers enabled them to gain a foothold. Exploiting the vantage thus gained, they thrust the British off the ridge and progressed simultaneously westward.

But on this occasion there was no such rupture of our line as occurred in March. It had been fully realized by the allied commanders that the enemy's ability to attack with tremendous strength at any point might necessitate a withdrawal, and measures had been taken accordingly. Step by step the Allies retreated toward the Aisne, inflicting terrible losses on the Germans, who, as before, flung mercilessly forward new masses of troops over their comrades' bodies.

Evidently it is regrettable to lose the histroic plateau, and the enemy will certainly do his utmost to exploit the moral value of his advance. The value of the plateau was far greater for the Allies last year when we were attacking and Germany was on the defensive, as it formed the bastion of a gigantic natural fortress, of which Laon is the central keep.

The comparatively small forces holding the plateau and the successful nature of the retreat prove that Foch had no delusions about the situation and declined to fall in with Ludendorff's plan by using up in unfavorable conditions the forces that will be needed.

Obviously, the moral value of yesterday's success is not to be ignored, but the Allies are no less confident than before.

PARIS ABANDONS DIVERSION THEORY

Critics See Enemy Command Making Every Effort to Exploit First Success.

PARIS, May 28.—The military critics now consider that the idea that the German offensive launched yesterday between Soissons and Rheims is a diversion must be abandoned, now that the movement has developed into a great battle along a thirty-mile front.

The enemy's initial efforts, says the Temps, having unfortunately obtained for the troops of the German Crown Prince some notable advantages, as they succeeded in carying the Chemin des Dames and thrusting back the Franco-British contingents from the Ailette to the Aisne, the enemy command has at once made every effort to exploit the success.

"We have retired; that is unfortunately incontestible," it continues. "But we are only beginning the battle. The French command has only begun to place in the line the reserves which will go into action when the enemy's intentions are perceived, and this is why the rôle of the commander of a defensive army is more difficult than that of his adversary.

"The enemy, who had a carefully prepared plan, who had chosen the hour of its execution, and who had his reserves ready to strike where they could be employed most effectively, engaged Monday evening with fresh forces, which were in highly superior number to those with which we opposed him. In consequence of this he has succeeded in crossing the Aisne, between Vailly and Berry-au-Bac, on a front of about twenty miles. The Franco-British forces withdrew to the valley of the Vesle, which flows some six miles south of the Aisne, in the region of the plateau behind which our reserves are arriving."

Henry Bidou, the military critic of the Journal des Débats, says the enemy began the offensive with some thirty divisions.

"He had enormous numerical superiority," M. Bidou continues. "On the allied side the front was held by a few French divisions, and on the right in Champagne by a small number of exhausted British divisions."

M. Bidou calculates that the Germans had from ninety to 100 divisions for use in the battle, of which they employed one-third for the initial shock.

VIEWS ATTACK AS A FEINT

British Expert Sees No Proof Yet That the Enemy's Main Reserves Are on the Move.

By MAJOR GEN. SIR FREDERICK MAURICE.

LONDON, May 28.—It has fallen to the Crown Prince to open the ball in the third phase of this year's campaign in the west. Part of the group of armies which he commands formed the left of the great German attack of March 21, and pressed south of the Somme toward Montdidier and Amiens. Once his progress was definitely checked, he withdrew such divisions as were not immediately required on his front to be refitted, trained, and rested; and it is probable that a considerable number of them have been located in the valley of the Oise, between St. Quentin and Hirson.

Here they would be near the centre of the chord of the rough arc which bows into the Franco-British front between Rheims and Lens, and would be moved easily and quickly to attack the allied lines west of Rheims; in fact, more easily and more quickly than for an attack on Amiens, since they would be marching across ground which has not been devastated by the recent fighting and through which communications may be presumed to be in apple-pie order.

The Crown Prince had few preparations to complete to enable him to attack on the front he has now chosen. How many of his reserve divisions he has moved down for this new battle it is not possible yet to say. But so far this attack has more the appearance of a preparatory blow than of a great effort intended to produce great results. Soissons is some ten miles behind the actual front line which was struck by the right of the German attack at the Forest of Pinon in the neighborhood of Anizy, north of Soissons. This would give for an attack extending as far as west of Rheims a front of some thirty miles, as compared with the fifty-mile front of the attack of March 21. Behind this thirty-mile front there is for some distance nothing which the enemy has not already had in his hands and nothing which is vital to the Allies, who, in contrast with their position north of Amiens, have here room to give way without suffering serious consequences.

A great part of the present battlefield is on ground which carries us back to the Autumn of 1914, when, after staying our retreat southeast of Paris, we turned our faces with a joyous shout northward, passed the Marne, and forced the passage of the Aisne east of Soissons, to be held up by the arrival of the German Army which had been besieging Maubeuge.

We know that British troops are again fighting on this front, and from the German reports it appears that some of them at least are between Rheims and Berry-au-Bac on the Aisne. Included in the battle area are the famous Heights of Craonne and the equally famous Chemin des Dames Ridge, both bones of contention throughout the great part of the campaign of that year. They were of great local value to the French, as they commanded the whole valley of the Ailette, afforded the possessor admirable observation to the north, and formed a fine defensive line. The loss of these heights is locally inconvenient, but should have no wider effect. An advance across them leads through highly defensible country to the strong line of the Aisne and gives the enemy nothing but hard-won ground for his pains.

The attack in Flanders between Locre and Vormezeele has been made on a front of some four miles, and therefore in comparison with the battles which we have this year been witnessing is of the nature of a local affair, probably designed to capture Scherpenberg Hill and to obtain a footing on the slopes of Mont Rouge west of Locre.

The Germans probably reckoned that the French would fight hard to keep the Chemin des Dames and prevent the capture of Denivs and of Scherpenberg. They may have therefore calculated that these attacks would draw in more of Foch's precious reserves and take them away from the area which is to be the scene of their great effort. For as far as it is possible at present to judge, nothing has yet been attempted by the enemy on a scale to indicate that his main reserves are on the move.

If, as in the case of the attack in Flanders of April 9, he gains by either of these efforts considerable and unexpected success, it is highly probable that he will exploit it to the full extent of his power. But, failing that, we must look elsewhere for the great blow which has been hanging over our heads for the past weeks.

Courteçon, Cerny, the Winterberg and Craonne, the Villerberg, and fortified works near and to the north of Berry-au-Bac were taken by storm.

Toward afternoon we reached the Aisne between Vailly and Berry-au-Bac. Vailly was taken. The craterfield of last year's Spring and Autumn fighting was thus captured in uninterrupted attacking pressure.

In the afternoon the attack continued. Between Vauxaillon and Vailly we are on the heights near Neuville and Laffaux and north to Condé.

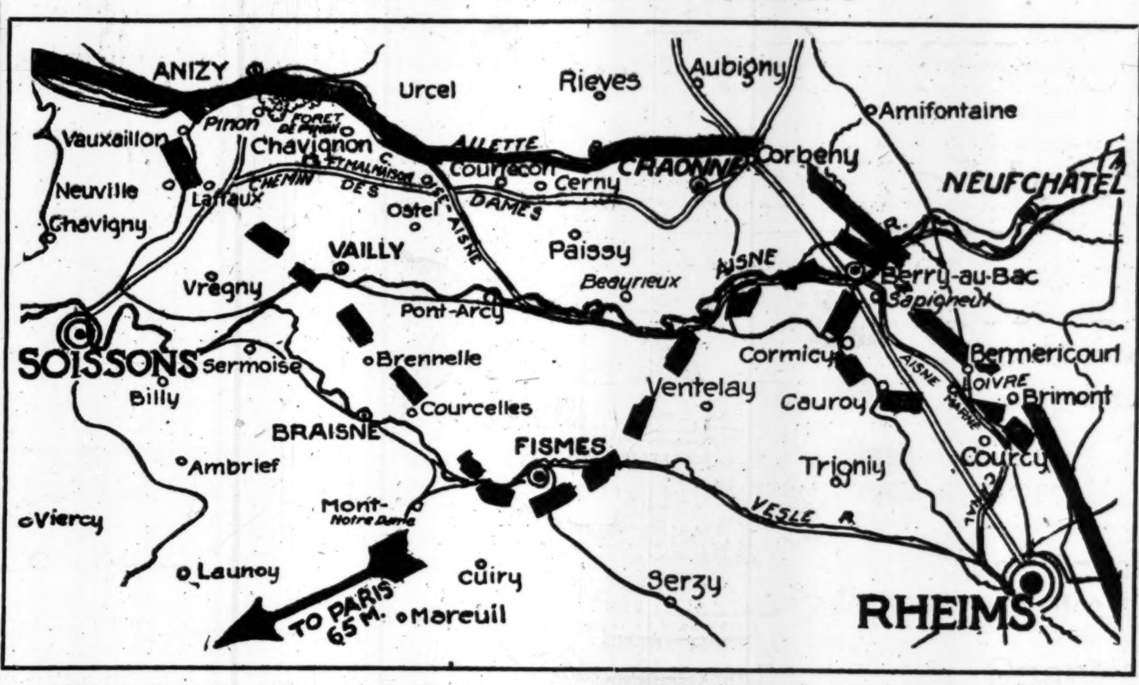
Between Berry-au-Bac and Brimont we crossed the Aisne and carried the battle into an area which had remained untouched by the war since 1914. The enemy was again driven from the fortified wooded heights on the southern bank of the river. Between Vailly and Beaurieux we reached the heights due north of the Vesle River.

The army of General von Below threw the enemy out of strong positions between Sapigneul and Brimont back across the Aisne-Marne Canal and the western bank of the canal, and took by storm Cormicy, Cauroy, and Loivre.

Up to the present 15,000 prisoners are reported.

Between the Meuse and the Moselle, on the Lorraine front, the fighting activity revived. Advances into the enemy lines resulted in the bringing in of more than 150 prisoners belonging to French and American regiments.

Scene of the Aisne Offensive



Adding to their gain of four miles on the first day of the new offensive on the Aisne, the Germans have again advanced to a depth of six miles at the point of their most successful operations, having pressed forward since yesterday from the Aisne at Pont-Arcy to the River Vesle at Fismes, where they are about sixty-five miles from Paris.

Their principal advance after the passage of the Aisne, between Vailly and Beaurieux, seems to have been on a front of about nine miles. To the west of this stretch the French, and to the east the British, appear to be holding their ground.

The heavy black line indicates the position of the opposing armies when the drive started; the heavy broken line the present battlefront.

Germans on Luneville Sector Launch Storm of Gas and Explosive Shells.

BOMBARD FOR SEVEN HOURS

Americans Reply to Challenge Quickly—Fire is Hottest in Several Weeks.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, May 27.—Coincident with their new activity in the Soissons-Rheims district the Germans were busy along the American sector this morning. Their artillery fire and ours was busier than it has been for several weeks.

American forces in the Lunéville sector tonight started a vigorous artillery action against the Germans in retaliation for a boche gas and high explosive storm last night, which was followed by a raid, and in which we sustained casualties.

The boche bombardment last night and this morning lasted seven hours, gas coming not only from long and short range guns but by projectors. The American activity gives promise of repaying the enemy in full. The Germans launched the heavy gas attack against our men in the Lunéville sector early today. Gas projectors were used for the first time in many weeks against the Americans.

Following the gas attack the boche sent over a raiding party. When the boche withdrew he left five dead behind. We suffered some casualties, chiefly from gas.

The renewed German activity all along the line included an attack on the American troops near Montdidier, which was preceded by heavy artillery preparation with both gas and high explosives. A portion of the heavy driving wedge of the Germans got into the American front line and stayed there four hours, after which the Americans, in a strong counterattack, not only drove them out and across No Man's Land, but penetrated to the German second line. We kept our prisoners.

For the first time in some days the boche airmen came across our lines on the Toul sector. Three American airmen met four German air machines. A battle followed, in which one of our fliers drove off one German machine with machine-gun fire. The other boches darted home, when the same airmen drove on to one of them, and shot both wings off, destroying the machine. All our airmen returned.

May 28.—A German observation balloon over the American sector broke from its moorings this morning, and drifted more than sixty kilometers, coming down in a town occupied by American General Headquarters. American troops there took possession of it. The German observers had left the balloon by parachutes.

ALLIES RE-ESTABLISH LYS-YPRES POSITIONS

Counterattacks Drive Germans from Ground Taken East of Dickebusch Lake.

LONDON, May 28.—In counterattacks this morning the Franco-British troops on the Lys-Ypres front re-established their line east of Dickebusch Lake, says Field Marshal Haig in his night report. The Allies inflicted heavy losses upon the four German divisions which were engaged in yesterday's attacks in this sector.

The text of the night bulletin follows:

> Counterattacks carried out early this morning by French and British troops successfully re-established our line east of Dickebusch Lake. Several prisoners were captured. In the enemy's attacks yesterday morning in this sector and to the south as far as Locre four German divisions are known to have been engaged.
>
> In the course of the fighting heavy losses were inflicted on these divisions. The allied line has been maintained at all points.
>
> On the remainder of the British front there is nothing to report beyond artillery activity on both sides in the different sectors.

The day report says:

> On the Lys front local fighting was recommenced this morning in the area east of Dickebusch Lake.
>
> On the remainder of the British front a number of prisoners have been taken by our troops in successful raids carried out at different points during the night, and the artillery has been active on both sides.

French Recover Ground Near Locre.

WITH THE BRITISH ARMY IN FRANCE, May 28, (Associated Press.)—British and French troops on the northern side of the Flanders salient launched a counterattack this morning east of Dickebusch Lake for the purpose of retaking a few bits of ground which the Germans captured in this section during their drive yesterday between Locre and Voormezeele. The operation appeared to be going well at the outset. Its success was all that was needed to make the enemy assault a complete and costly failure.

When the correspondent visited the French last night virtually the entire sector involved was intact. It was stated that the gains which the enemy made in the Dickebusch region were small.

There was very hard fighting on the French left flank throughout the day and the artillery duel was intense, but the German attack was not made in great strength. Its object appears to have been merely to regain the high ground which the French captured on May 20. Apparently elements of four divisions were employed by the enemy, and it may be estimated that 8,000 to 10,000 German infantrymen were sent forward on a front of about 6,000 yards.

The attack was preceded by the heaviest bombardment since von Hindenburg launched the offensive of March 21. At the beginning of this terrific cannonade it looked as though the Germans were about to renew their great effort. From 1 o'clock yesterday morning until dark a great concentration of hostile artillery maintained a bombardment of drumfire intensity, which was opposed furiously. More gas shells than usual were employed by the Germans, especially in the back areas, in an effort to catch concentrations of allied troops.

When the Germans advanced they met such an effective barrage on the French right flank that the attackers never got to close quarters. They sustained severe punishment from concentrated shellfire and French machine guns.

In the centre and on the left flank, however, the enemy was more successful in the first rush. Pompier, south of La Clytte, was captured, and the enemy pushed back the defending line somewhat south and east of Dickebusch Lake.

Fighting was still continuing this afternoon east of Dickebusch Lake, where the British and French early today counterattacked to evict the Germans from some positions which the latter captured yesterday. The allied line had been virtually restored at all points. In a few places small bodies of enemy infantry were still clinging desperately to bits of ground they had won by the hard and costly struggle, and these invaders were being dealt with.

About 100 prisoners, with a considerable number of machine guns, had been added to the total already secured by the French.

FRENCH CENTRE RETIRES FLANKS HOLD ON AISNE

Paris Reports Apex of the German Advance Beyond the Vesle River.

PARIS, May 28.—Heavy counterattacks by the French troops stopped the German advance on the heights of Neuville-sur-Margival and Vregny, northeast of Soissons, and other heights dominating the Valley of the Vesle River, according to the War Office statement issued tonight.

The Germans, however, succeeded in crossing the Vesle in the region of Bazoches and Fismes, having forced the Franco-British troops across the Aisne between Vailly and Berry-au-Bac in the fighting of yesterday afternoon.

The British troops northwest of Rheims have withstood the assaults against St. Thierry, inflicting heavy casualties upon the Germans.

Following is the text of the day statement:

> Late yesterday the Germans, with the assistance of newly arrived forces, succeeded in crossing the Aisne between Vailly and Berry-au-Bac. Franco-British troops, confronted by enemy forces of greatly superior size, are continuing their retirement in good order. The battle is going on with violence between the Vesle and Aisne Rivers, in the region of the plateaux, behind which French reserves are coming up.
>
> In Champagne, on the right bank of the Meuse and in the Woevre, great artillery activity continues. A strong raiding attack in the sector of Chambrettes was repulsed by our fire.

French Reserves Arriving.

PARIS, May 28.—The Liberté correspondent at the French front says:

"The battle is being fiercely contested, with alternating fortunes. Our reserves are beginning to arrive south of the Vesle and their effect is already felt."

BERGSON CONFIDENT OF ALLIED VICTORY

NO LIMIT TO SACRIFICES

Declares His People Are Ready for Anything—Doubts if Failure of Present Drive Would End Struggle.

By CHARLES A. SELDEN.

PARIS, May 28.—Henri Bergson, the French philosopher, spoke today of the wartime psychology of Paris under the resumption of the big battle and with the long-distance bombardment shells exploding. I met him by chance in the street. He recalled the fact that I gave him the first news of the Russian revolution in March, 1917, in New York. He talked freely, walking along the bank of the Seine.

"Paris is not the same today as in August, 1914," he said. "You see no excitement now, but you feel and are sure of much more determination to win than in the first wild demonstration of patriotism when the war began. It is better this way, more dependable. That first mental state was too intense to endure.

"Today you see Paris itself under bombardment and the great battle resuming, without a trace of public fear or excitement. Men are still going off to the war every day, but now it is a matter of course to the men themselves and their families. They are heroes still, but no longer cheered by frantic crowds in the streets.

"There is great assurance for the national safety for the future in this dogged calmness. It is not indifference, but the ever-growing strength does not depend on shouting to keep increasing.

"Now that the lull in the big battle is over, we are more ready for new fighting than the enemy. The interval of quiet was of more use to us than to the Germans. We could have gone on without the lull. The Germans were forced to rest and recuperate after their losses in men and material, which were vastly greater than ours.

"But I do not expect the failure of the present offensive to end the war. The Allies should not assume that now. It would be a logical thing if the German people controlled their Government. But they do not. The German militarists will not cease with the failure that seems conclusive to all rational beings. However, France and her allies will go on to a victory that will convince even the German Government.

"There is no limit to the sacrifice which the French people will make of themselves and no limit to the sacrifices the Germans will make of other people. The difference is all in favor of France, where absolutely every act of the Government reflects the wishes and determination of the people. The French are fighting their own war of their own volition for a Government all their own, entirely subject to their opinion. But fighting, suffering, sacrificing, has ceased to be a novelty; it has become the indispensable routine duty. The French never neglect a necessary routine. There is no question of the outcome.

It Had to Give Ground When French Retired Across the Aisne.

LONDON, May 28.—The left of the British divisions engaged on the Aisne front near Berry-au-Bac was compelled yesterday by the success of the Germans in forcing the passage of the Aisne to the west of their positions, to give ground before the great strength developed by the enemy.

The War Office day report says of this fighting:

> Continuous pressure was maintained by the enemy all day yesterday against the British troops engaged on the Aisne front, and severe fighting is still taking place on the whole front of the British sector.
>
> On our right the 21st Division, in touch with our allies, held the battle positions throughout the day, and successfully withstood the enemy's attempts to advance. In the centre and on the left of the British sector troops of the 8th, 50th, and 25th Divisions by determined resistance maintained the second-line positions against the enemy's assaults until a late hour.
>
> Toward the end of the day the weight of the enemy's attacks carried his troops across the River Aisne to the west of the British sector, and compelled the left of our line to fall back. The enemy is developing his attacks in great strength along the whole of the Aisne battlefront.

GERMANS SEE NEED OF RAW MATERIAL

Military Victories Futile if Peace Terms Do Not Provide Supplies for Manufacturing.

CALL FOR RETURN OF SHIPS

Laden with a Year's Supply of Raw Products—Alternative, a Continuation of U-Boat Warfare.

By GEORGE RENWICK.

AMSTERDAM, May 28.—One of the most interesting things to be noticed in the German press these days is the intense anxiety regarding the provision of raw material after the war. It appears the people at last are becoming thoroughly alarmed as to what they are up against in this direction.

The Vossische Zeitung, for instance, gave its most prominent position on Thursday to an article on the subject, and the next day gave an article on the same question equal prominence. One article points out how thoroughly the Entente and America have and will have supplies of raw material in their hands, and goes on to say:

"Our people will still be suffering want when those of the Entente have returned to, comparatively speaking, normal conditions. Our industry will be at a standstill, while that of our opponents will be running full time. The industry of the Entente will therefore be first upon the markets of the world."

Therefore, the writer says, it is necessary before all else to secure raw material by the terms of the treaty of peace. This is a matter which hits every German article. He adds:

"For what is the use of the most brilliant victories, if our economic life cannot, owing to the pressure of our enemies, rise again after the war? In that case all the sacrifices would have been in vain, and the enemy would achieve without bloodshed what had been impossible in an honorable war. Germany would remain overburdened with debts and poverty-stricken."

The other article sweeps into secondary place all such considerations as annexations and the freedom of the seas, and gives pride of place to the need for obtaining raw material. As a condition of peace the writer insists that, even before an armistice comes along, Germany must be assured of sufficient raw materials from England in order to set her industry going again.

A year's supply on the basis of the amount used in 1913 is what he thinks will be needed as a minimum. To get that needful material, he suggests that an armistice regarding sea warfare should only be concluded "when all the seized German ships now being used by the enemy have been sent back to us laden with raw material," or when England agrees to some "fairer arrangement" with Germany.

Otherwise the U-boats are to continue their work, though the writer thinks England will not be very averse to making such terms, for the readers of the article are told they may be certain England's nerves would not be such at the time of the peace conference that they could stand the threat of continued submarine warfare against her commerce.

325,000 GERMANS IN THE AISNE ATTACK

Allied Reserves Hurrying to Reinforce the Thinly Held Franco-British Line.

WITH THE FRENCH ARMY IN FRANCE, May 28, noon—(Associated Press.)—At least twenty-five German divisions [about 325,000 men] today joined in the attack and forced further back the few French and British divisions holding the Aisne line.

Tanks, machine guns, and poison gas shells were the principal factors in the successful advance aside from the numerically superior forces of the Germans

Notwithstanding the smallness of the Allies armies, they did their utmost to stay the immense push of the enemy troops, ten times their number. The German advance, which was one of the most rapid since the beginning of the war, could not be held, however, as wave after wave in dense lines came forward.

The western allied flank has maintained its positions well, and reserves are hurrying toward the danger point of the greatest advance.

The retreat of the French and British was made in orderly fashion, the troops destroying their material as they withdrew, or taking it along with them. The Army Staff still retains the fullest confidence in the outcome of the battle.

The Germans yesterday, executing a pepetition of their tactics of March 21, threw overwhelming forces which they had brought forward during the night on the lightly held positions extending from the westward end of the Chemin des Dames to Courcy, near Brimont.

At least twenty-five German divisions participated in the onslaught. Among them were two Guards divisions. The attack was preceded by the most intense bombardment of poison gas shells lasting for several hours. The entire allied line was thinly held by French and British troops.

Meantime other German divisions attacked from the Ailette Valley, and the small bodies of allied troops holding the knifelike ridge decided to fall back in order to avoid useless losses in trying to keep an untenable position in the face of greatly superior numbers.

Everything had been prepared for such a movement in the case of necessity, and the troops retired, fighting foot by foot, until joined by their reserves further back, the local reserves covering the retirement of their comrades before the German masses.

As the troops fell back with virtually all of their guns and material they took up positions already prepared, where they awaited the arrival of reinforcements, which were rapidly coming.

Very strong enemy columns about 4 o'clock in the morning came through the plain to the east of Craonne and around Juvincourt, and the allied troops, after the overwhelming nature of the enemy's forces were perceived, carried out the order to retire across the Aisne to their principal defensive positions. Craonne fell, leaving the remainder of the Chemin des Dames open to a flank attack.

RUSSIANS READY TO RALLY

Would Be Encouraged, It Is Argued, by Direct Military and Economic Assistance from the Allies.

By HAROLD WILLIAMS.

Copyright, 1918, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, May 28.—Russia needs support from the Allies in the shape of direct military and economic assistance. The technical term for such action is intervention. This word may be interpreted variously from certain comments and criticisms. It is in my last article stated that intervention must be disinterested, that its sole object must be to help Russia as a whole to resist the efforts of Germany to secure and extend her domination in Eastern Europe and in Asia.

We are fighting against German aggression, and nothing else; and in this we know that we have the warm sympathy of Russians of every class and every shade of opinion. We, as allies, are desirous of helping Russia to resist her enemy and ours. We cannot take sides in Russian internal politics. It is a great error to suppose that intervention should take the form of a campaign against the Bolsheviki. Neither should the Allies come in to support the Bolsheviki. There is one all-sufficient motive for operations of an allied force on Russian soil, and that is to fight Germany.

Intervention does not, and must not, mean that we are going to undertake a punitive expedition, to shoot down Russian peasants and workmen. That would be suicidal. It would only make confusion worse confounded and facilitate the task of Germany, besides compromising the principles for which we are waging war. The whole purpose of intervention is to enable Russia to help herself, to supply a rallying point for resistance to Germany.

Russia is in a deplorable condition, torn by internal dissension, by bitter class strife. In ordinary circumstances friendly nations could only leave her to work out her own salvation, whatever suffering this might cost her. But the present Russian confusion is not an isolated fact in an otherwise stable world. It is the outcome of the war. It is one of the aspects of the world war in which we are engaged and in which, until recently, Russia fought bravely by our side.

Military Motive for Intervention.

It is not the confusion in Russia in itself—the civil war, bitter feuds, immense physical and moral suffering—that immediately concerns us as allies, it is the fact that the remnants of Russian independence are menaced by our enemy, that Germany is doing her utmost in Russia to take full advantage for her military purposes in the world war of the confusion she herself has provoked. Therein lies the direct and urgent appeal to us. This is an all-sufficient military motive for intervention, and this motive must be kept clear of all other issues, both in the discussion of intervention and in its important execution. But, and here is the important point, would the dispatch of allied forces to Russia on this purely military mission bring us into conflict with any section of the population and furnish fresh occasion for civil war? There is not the slightest reason why it should. On the contrary, evidence is increasing daily that all classes, all parties, would welcome allied assistance against the Germans.

Reports from the Ukraine, which is in German occupation, are most illuminating. Here the attempts of the Germans to requisition corn have provoked a peasant rising. The peasants are resisting by every means in their power, with rifles and machine guns. An irregular force of peasants, including former soldiers of the regular army, is carrying on a guerrilla warfare all over the country. Hatred of Germany is breaking out into fierce flame. Actual experience of German methods is provoking a passion of patriotic resistance that no amount of persuasion and argument could ever have aroused.

The German peace is forcing home to the Russian people an explanation and justification of war. Germans on Russian soil have transformed the appeal of Belgium and Serbia from a distant barely credible abstraction into a poignant reality.

But what of the Bolsheviki themselves? I do not speak of the masses, whose instincts are naturally anti-German, but of the leaders, who still, to an obviously diminishing extent, influence the masses. Recently the Izvestia, the official organ of the Soviets, published an article conveying a veiled intimation that the Bolsheviki were disposed on terms to accept allied aid and to struggle with a too-insistent Germany.

Restive Under German Demands.

There can be no doubt that the Bolshevist leaders find the German demands extremely oppressive. While the task of governing what remains of Russia on communist principles under the darkening shadow of German imperialism is insuperable, Lenine still seems to believe he can retain an oasis for Socialist experiments by playing off against each other the two groups of belligerent powers.

But other Bolsheviki, who were opposed to the conclusion of the Brest-Litovsk peace, realize clearly that their only hope is in resistance to Germany. Tchitcherin, for instance, the leader of the delegation that signed the peace of Brest-Litovsk, said to me on his return: "We hate the Germans as the French hated them in 1871."

The Bolsheviki are forming a Red Army. It is true that, so far, this army has been wholly ineffective against the Germans, and that it has only served as a kind of gendarmerie for the maintenance of Bolshevist despotism. But in idea and inception, at any rate, it is anti-German, and several Generals hope to make it so in fact. Taking everything into account, it is extremely unlikely that the Bolsheviki will oppose a firm allied determination, and the advent of an allied force, strictly neutral in internal affairs, should have a calming effect on all political passions and rivalries. That is the clear ground for military intervention in Russia. Whether the Russian people choose to be governed by Bolsheviki or monarchs, or by occult planetary powers, is not a matter that concerns the Allies in the very least.

The War Situation

BY THE MILITARY EXPERT OF THE NEW YORK TIMES

From such news as has reached us as to the progress of the German offensive along the Chemin des Dames, a success is threatened which will rival that in the Picardy battle zone. The news from the battlefield is distinctly bad. At the outbreak of the offensive the French had every advantage of terrain. The Germans were down in the valley of the little Ailette River, with the river between them and the French. Above them towered the Chemin des Dames. Some four miles behind the French lines ran the Aisne, a river of considerable width, with banks which recent heavy rains had turned into wide marsh belts. The Germans not only crossed the Ailette in the first rush, but completely overran the Chemin des Dames, driving the French back toward the low land of the Aisne Valley. By nightfall they had reached the Aisne at one point—Pont Arcy.

The degree of success gives some idea of the force of the blow. In one day's fighting every advantage of terrain which the French and British held was completely swept away. Only the Aisne remained, and it was hoped that, once behind this formidable military obstacle, the allied troops would be able to make a stand which would check the German rush. But in the fighting of yesterday this line also went.

Monday's reports indicated that the Germans had plunged into the French lines for about four miles and had dug a salient into the line at Pont Arcy. Following this up, the Germans crossed the Aisne, presumably first at this point and later apparently at other points between Berry au Bac and Vailly. The entire position behind the Aisne was thus flanked, and there was nothing left to do but pull the entire line back. To have adopted any other course would have exposed the French who still remained on the north bank of the river to destruction or capture. With this barrier behind them, the Germans then began to struggle for the high ground south of the Aisne.

South of the Aisne at an average distance of about four and a half miles is the Vesle River. This river empties into the Aisne two miles to the west of Vailly. Between the Aisne and the Vesle there is a stretch of rolling ground which gradually rises from the Aisne Valley until a ridge is reached which runs almost parallel to the course of the Vesle and about midway between the two rivers. The valley of the Aisne is about 125 feet above sea level, that of the Vesle about the same. The height of the ridge between, which is the watershed between the two streams, is about 550 feet. This high ground is the key to the defense of the Vesle Valley. It is this ridge which the Germans are fighting for now, and which the French are defending, although, with the tremendous impetus the German advance received as a result of its first successes, it is doubtful whether the French will be able to hold it.

It is becoming clearer that this attack is no mere diversion, no feint to draw men away from the Picardy front. It is an attempt to force the French line back and to widen out the Amiens salient. At the same time there is the effort to beat the French by destroying them if possible. No word has reached us of the number of prisoners taken. The list, it is feared, will be heavy. The Germans tried to do what they had previously tried to do at Verdun—by a very heavy and sudden attack to drive the French back upon a large river and catch them before they had an opportunity to cross. In the case of Verdun it was the Meuse; now it is the Aisne. To just what extent they have accomplished their object remains to be seen.

The successes which have been gained, however, are already sufficiently serious regarded merely from a territorial aspect. Rheims, which the French have defended for so long, is in serious danger. If the French are forced back to the southern bank of the Vesle River, it does not appear that any power can prevent Rheims from falling into German hands. The city will be practically surrounded. This may not affect the French positions in Champagne, but it will have a most depressing effect on the world at large.

At the same time we must realize and must keep constantly in mind, in order to retain a true perspective, that geographical locations no longer have any necessary bearing, no matter what the location may be. It is now a question of armies, and as long as the armies of France and Great Britain remain intact and keep an unbroken front Germany has not won and cannot win. And this has been done to date.

The question of numbers has again arisen, with the statement that the Allies have been greatly outnumbered in this fighting. This is undoubtedly true at the line of contact. But this means only one thing. The object of military strategy is to concentrate at a threatened point more troops than one's opponent; it is to have the most troops at the right point at the right time. This the Germans have done, this the Allies have failed to do. The German General Staff has simply outguessed the Allies for the time being. And the German advance will probably go on, as it did before, until this condition is corrected by the arrival of the allied reserves.

GERMANY MAY PLAN UKRAINE MONARCHY

Preliminary to Modified Restoration of Romanoff Dynasty, One Theory Held.

ROYALISTS COMING TO FORE

New Metropolitan of Kiev a Stanch Supporter of Czardom—Other Significant Appointments.

By JULIUS WEST.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

GENEVA, May 28.—The prevalent theory that Germany intends to establish a monarchy in the Ukraine, preliminary to a modified restoration of the Romanoff dynasty, is distinctly supported by news just received from Kiev. Antonius, Archbishop of Kharkov, has just been appointed Metropolitan of Kiev, which is the highest post in the hierarchy of the Orthodox Russian Church in the Ukraine. (His predecessor was murdered by hooligans in February in circumstances of extraordinary brutality.) Now the sentiments of Antonius are as well known as his career. He has always been pro-Czar, first and all the time.

Since the March revolution he has been one of the few leaders of the Church who offered public prayers for the restoration of Czardom, and he is known as the centre of the monarchist propaganda.

At the same time as this interesting elevation takes place, Eulogius, Archbishop of Volhynia, a friend of Antonius and also a monarchist, breaks out in a significant manner. When the Ukrainians began discussing independence a year ago, and the prospects of a return of the monarchy were very slight, Eulogius was violently opposed to all talk of Ukrainian autonomy, let alone separatism. Now the same Eulogius, scenting a return of Czardom in the Ukraine, whatever its prospects in the rest of Russia, has become almost a fanatical follower of Skoropadsky and is addressing numerous public meetings in support of the Hetman appointed by Germany. The sentiments of Eulogius are no secret either, as he distinguished himself as a member of the Russian Duma by the reactionary nature of his speeches.

Nor are these the only straws which show the way the wind is blowing. The forces behind the Ukrainian Government caused the appointment of Professor Senkovsy as Minister of Public Worship and M. Lerke as Director of the Public Treasury at Kiev. Both these men are known monarchists.

Germany's intentions are therefore obvious. But of one thing we may be sure, if Germany sets up a King at Kiev, she will not allow him to reign also at Moscow. Rival monarchs, always quarreling, suit her book much better.

GERMANY REACHING FURTHER INTO RUSSIA

Bolshevist Official Organ Explains Advance of Enemy, Despite Russia's Truce with Ukraine.

MOSCOW, May 25, (Associated Press.)—Although the peace negotiations between Russia and Ukraine have now been begun at Kiev, the Germans have broken the armistice on the Voronezh front, occupying the town of Valuiki after four days of fighting, and making a further advance. The Izvestia, organ of the Bolsheviki, explains the advance as being due to Germany's intention to seize those portions of the Voronezh Government which Ukraine desires.

Meanwhile the Germans are making extensive preparations in the Caucasus and continuing their operations in the Don region, where no armistice has been agreed to. Germany's intentions, says the newspaper, seem to be widening in scope.

Reports of the first session of the Kiev peace conference, held on May 23, indicate that the Germans are in no hurry for the conclusion of peace between Russia and Ukraine. The Ukrainian delegates told the Russians their credentials were invalid because they did not specifically contain authorization for concluding peace or an armistice, and also did not state what parts of Russia composed the Soviet Republic. The Russians requested time to make a reply, and a day was granted for this purpose.

Opposition by the peasants in the Ukraine against the Germans and the Russians supporting the Central Powers is extending rapidly. The peasants are firing forests, destroying buildings, and otherwise hindering the work of German bands trying to commandeer food. The Germans have been forced to send additional troops into Poltava, where rioting is reported to be most serious. The peasants have organized large detachments, and are armed with machine guns and rifles. The Germans are using artillery to suppress the rioting.

The financial congress just held at Moscow, which was called to devise plans for financial reorganization to be submitted to the Fifth All-Russian Congress of Soviets, which is to meet in Moscow on June 20, developed considerable friction.

The congress named a commission of four Bolsheviki and two Social Revolutionists to frame the plan, but the Social Revolutionists thereupon quit the congress, declaring their representation on the commission was not in proportion to their membership.

The congress passed a resolution instructing the commission to devise a temporary scheme for taxation, pending the adoption of the larger measures contemplated. Under this scheme the local Soviets will be permitted to continue to levy contributions, provided the Provincial Soviets approve the levies.

M. Axelrod, prominently identified with the Bolshevist financial program and formerly Commissioner of Banks, addressed the congress in explanation of Premier Lenine's recent speech to that body, which M. Axelrod declared had been misinterpreted. He said Premier Lenine had explained to him that indirect taxation was necessary as a temporary measure. (Lenine in his speech told the Congress that the Socialists favored a property and income tax rather than indirect taxation, and expressed expectation that the Soviet Government would adopt a general income tax, collected monthly.)

The Chinese representatives in Russia have sent a protest to Foreign Minister Tchitcherin against the confiscation of property of Chinese firms in Mongolia and Siberia by Russian customs officers and other officials.

SHELLS KILL 3 IN PARIS.

14 Persons Also Hurt in German Long-Range Bombardment.

PARIS, May 28.—The long-range bombardment of Paris by the Germans was continued this morning.

In yesterday's bombardment three persons were killed and fourteen injured. One shell burst in a crowded street in front of a tramway station. Three women were getting into a car. One was killed and the others injured. Several persons within the car, one a child, were injured.

An official explanation has been issued by the Government as to why it cannot make public more than the scantiest details regarding the regions suffering from the bombardment.

"In its daily communiqués," says the statement, "the Government keeps the public absolutely up to date on military operations and their development. As to the bombardment of the Paris districts, this cannot be done.

"Though it is permissible to indicate the positions where we are in contact with the enemy, it would be a veritable crime to permit the Germans by means of details furnished by us to rectify the least precise of their fire. It is therefore forbidden to announce the points where bombs strike; likewise to make them known. It is in the interest of the population itself that this good sense measure is taken."

PARIS RAIDERS FOILED.

German Airmen Only Succeed in Bombing Remote Suburbs.

PARIS, May 28.—German aviators attempted last night to raid Paris. They dropped bombs in the suburbs, but were prevented from flying over the city. The announcement follows:

Last night about ten enemy airplanes which were flying toward Paris were reported by our lookout stations. An alarm was given at 10:32 P. M., and anti-aircraft batteries threw up a curtain of fire.

Several bombs were thrown on the more remote suburbs. No enemy machine flew over Paris. The "All Clear" signal was given at 11:45 P. M.

WOMEN SIT IN RIGSDAG.

King Opens First Parliament Under Denmark's New Constitution.

COPENHAGEN, May 28.—Denmark's first Rigsdag, assembled under the new Constitution giving equal suffrage to men and women, was formally opened today by King Christian in the new Cristiansborg Palace, on the site of the old palace burned thirty-four years ago. Interest was added by the presence for the first time of the nine women members.

The address from the throne emphasized the Government's intention to continue its policy of strict neutrality, expressed confidence that the Iceland question would be amicably adjusted, and referred with satisfaction to the co-operation of the Scandinavian countries.

ALLIES CONSULTING ON HELP TO RUSSIA

Seeking Constantly to Find the Most Effective Way, Cecil Tells Commons.

REJECTS RUMANIAN TREATY

Statement on Ireland Withheld by Government—Hospital Casualties from Bombing.

LONDON, May 28.—The British Government, according to Lord Robert Cecil, Minister of Blockade, speaking in the House of Commons, which reassembled today, is in constant consultation with the allied Governments as to the most effective way of rendering assistance to Russia.

Lord Robert said that the diplomatic representatives of the Allies at Jassy had notified Rumania that their Governments could but consider as null and void the stipulations of peace forced upon Rumania, inasmuch as they violated the rights and interests of the Allied Powers and the principles for which they were fighting.

There are 6,000 American civilians between the ages of 18 and 41 years resident in England, according to a statement made in the House by A. Cecil Beck, Parliamentary Secretary for National Service. The statement was made in reply to a question as to how many men, subjects or citizens of allied countries, of military age, were resident here, and whether it was proposed by convention, legislation, or otherwise, to make these men eligible for military service.

Andrew Bonar Law, Government spokesman in the House, announced that he had no intention at present of making any statement regarding affairs in Ireland. He also today told the House that 300 casualties to hospital cases had been caused by the bombing of British hospitals in France by German aviators.

Speaking on the subject of the payment by the Bank of England next Saturday of well over £50,000,000 in dividends on war loan stock, Bonar Law said he was looking forward to the reinvestment of a very large part of this sum in national war bonds. The system of continuous borrowing, he added, had been a much greater success than he had hoped for at the time it was adopted. It had the advantage from the point of view of bankers and financial interests generally, of causing the least disturbance of the money market, and the further advantage of encouraging the avoidance of unnecessary expenditure.

Up to the end of last week the amount raised by national war bonds since the issue of Oct. 1, 1917, was £738,043,303, in addition to £59,000,000 raised by war savings certificates, said Bonar Law.

He added that the banks had agreed to invest in war bonds the dividends they received from all Government stocks within the coming week, to deal generously with customers in making advances against war bonds and to persuade customers to invest directly in the war loan instead of piling up deposits, which were steadily increasing. In addition many of the biggest financial institutions were arranging to set aside weekly a definite proportion of their resources for immediate investment in war bonds.

GERMAN CROPS GOOD, BUT HERDS SUFFERING

Food for Animals Scarce and Farming Hindered by Shortage of Labor.

AMSTERDAM, May 28.—The official German agricultural report for Western and Northwestern Germany states that the crops in this district are from three to four weeks earlier than in 1917. The growth of rye is described as luxuriant and the condition of Summer grain as satisfactory. Grass in general is of good growth, but clover is not uniformly so, the report says.

Cattle which, owing to lack of fodder, had been put to pasture early in April are beginning to pick up, the report announces, but animals kept in the stable are in very poor condition because of the lack of straw and hay. There have been no oats available for a long time, it is added.

Pigs are in poor condition, owing to lack of fodder, so that next Fall, the report forecasts, a larger number of them must be killed. Young porkers are commanding fabulous prices.

Expropriations of cattle for the army and navy, it is pointed out, have a very bad effect on breeding, while the extremely low prices paid by the Government is a cause of much irritation. The lack of farm labor is hampering the proper tilling of the soil.

LOOKS FOR CHANGE IN IRISH ATTITUDE

Party Conference in Dublin Tomorrow May Bring Shift in Form of Opposition.

FEAR LOSS OF SYMPATHY

Realization That Present Method of Combating Conscription Is Alienating Friends Abroad.

Copyright, 1918, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, May 28.—The Chronicle's Dublin correspondent reports that a meeting of the Irish Parliamentary Party will be held in Dublin on Thursday, when topics of the greatest importance will be discussed.

"I believe a definite halt will be called, not to the policy but to the method of advocating that policy, which certainly tended to alienate former friends of Ireland and even Irishmen themselves in other countries," he says. "No democracy in the world would resent Ireland's hostility to conscription imposed upon her against her will, if the unanswerable objection were fairly stated; but many of the objectors, through their want of faith in democratic principles, or perhaps their ignorance of them, have resorted to more primitive and dramatic arguments which needlessly introduced passion and confusion into what one might almost call an issue of arithmetic—do two and two make four?

"Dillon seems determined to bring us all back to this calculable issue, and so at the eleventh hour to save the Irish cause from the worldwide prejudice in which it has been obscured by the frenzied irrelevancies of violent men, not all of them Sinn Feiners. His language in East Cavan yesterday was very significant, and it may be accepted as an introduction to topics which will be considered on Thursday. He declared that the Sinn Feiners, by refusing to enter into a party truce, were 'gravely endangering the continued existence of the Mansion House conference.'

"His consent to the diversion of the National Defense Fund for the support of dependents of deported suspects, he honestly described as 'a surrender,' though he claimed he could defend it. The main argument of his speech was that arrests and deportations had nothing whatever to do with the fight of suspects against conscription. His defense of the surrender was that it was a sacrifice made to preserve the unity of the anti-conscription forces."

FOE STRIVING FOR DECISION.

Paris Temps Says Leaders Are Searching for Weak Defenses.

Copyright, 1918, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, May 28.—"Hindenburg and Ludendorff," says the Temps, "are widening the battlefront in search of a place where they imagine our defenses are less strong. They are once more striving for that decisive battle which so far they have always missed. The tremendous struggle is again in progress. The shock will be formidable. The enemy for months has brought together an accumulation of his most powerful possible materials. Our soldiers know it, and they await the enormous effort of the enemy with a valor which is universally acclaimed.

"The dearest and most grateful thoughts of France are with them. Our British allies are fighting by our side. The rear will show the same calm, the same confidence, as our magnificent men at the front."

LONDON LESS ANXIOUS.

Not So Disturbed as During the First Days of March Offensive.

LONDON, May 28.—The British public received the news of the resumption of the German offensive with less manifestations of anxiety than were observable during the critical days last March.

At that time the Germans sprang a surprise, as the British people did not expect the allied line to fall back. On the present occasion, the much-advertised resumption of the German onslaught found the public prepared. Furthermore, the attack comes under somewhat changed conditions, such as the unified command and new troop dispositions, all of which give the people here greater confidence in the final outcome of the gigantic struggle.

The crowds which thronged the streets, the parks, and other public places eagerly read the latest reports from the battlefront. The first editions of the afternoon newspapers, which appeared shortly after midday with Field Marshal Haig's official dispatch, the longest in many weeks, were snatched up quickly everywhere, and some persons stood in the middle of the street at the imminent risk of being run over while they scanned the statement.

Among the groups which gathered before the newspaper offices and read the latest news there were frequent remarks as to the probable participation of the Americans in the new battle.

BRITISH CASUALTIES 33,694.

Week's Total Shows Decrease from Preceding Seven Days.

LONDON, May 28.—British casualties reported in the week ending today reached a total of 33,694. They are divided as follows:

Killed or Died of Wounds—Officers, 168; men, 3,527.

Wounded or Missing—Officers, 735; men, 29,264.

The total for last week was 36,677 and for the week before 41,612, the largest of any week since the beginning of the German offensive. The falling off in the totals reflects the lull in the fighting between the attack which ended in April and the one now beginning.

STRIKE FOE IN EAST AFRICA.

British Seize Guns and Equipment and Rescue Prisoners.

LONDON, May 28.—Reporting recent military operations in East Africa, an official statement issued tonight by the British War Office says:

East Africa—German troops remaining in the field have been driven southward of the Lurio River with substantial casualties.

In addition to war material captured in an action midway between Nanungu and Makua, we have taken a machine gun, a three-pounder gun and the entire equipment of four enemy companies. Thirty Portuguese native soldiers, prisoners with the Germans, have been released.

At the same time, as the result of an attack by our patrols on the enemy near Monende, we released one British officer and two British noncommissioned officers, who also were prisoners in the hands of the Germans.

PRIZES FOR BOMBING PARIS.

German Airmen Who Succeed Have Claim to Iron Cross.

Copyright, 1918, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, May 28.—It has just transpired that German airmen who succeed in bombing Paris have a right to claim the Iron Cross for their prowess. Such is the statement made by Captain Kohl and a "Feldwebel," who formed the crew of a Gotha brought down by French fire near Verberie last Tuesday night, after attempting to bomb Paris.

Kohl and the Feldwebel when they made their enforced landing set their machine on fire. After wandering nearly four days inside the French lines, both were captured on Saturday night at Dives le Franc by some French trench artillerymen, just as they were in the act of slipping down a sunken road running across the French front line into the German trenches.

COLOGNE IN PANIC FOLLOWING AIR RAID

88 Victims Buried in One Grave—Havoc at Liege—Bombs Dropped on Landau.

THE HAGUE, May 28.—Eighty-eight of the persons who were killed when the British air squadron raided Cologne on May 18 were buried in the same grave, according to Les Nouvelles. The correspondent of the newspaper says the inhabitants of the city are panic-stricken.

Les Nouvelles also publishes details of the British air raid last week in the Liege district of Belgium. A score of machines participated in the action, dropping about twenty bombs.

One bomb fell in the middle of the important railway station of Kinkempois, killing or injuring a large number of German soldiers and civilians. The explosion set fire to the building, and part of it was destroyed.

Another missile fell close to the Meuse iron works, which was occupied by Germans, and it produced a panic among the workers. Bombs also were dropped at Herstal upon the Pieper Munition Works and the National Arsenal, which is now German controlled. The damage here was small. Another bomb fell on an industrial plant at Chenee.

The raid, according to the newspaper, completely surprised the Germans. No defense airplanes went up, and the anti-aircraft guns had not been supplied with suitable ammunition.

On the same day this British air squadron also successfully bombed and set on fire factories at Aix-la-Chapelle.

AMSTERDAM, May 28.—Nineteen bombs have been dropped on Landau, Germany, by ten allied airmen, the Tageblatt of Berlin reports. The garrison headquarters and some private houses are said to have been damaged.

GERMANS LOSE 15 AIRPLANES

Tons of Bombs Dropped on German Towns and Positions.

LONDON, May 28.—Fifteen German airplanes have been destroyed by British aviators and three others have been driven down out of control, according to the British official communication on aviation issued tonight. The communication says also that many tons of bombs have been dropped on railway stations in Germany.

The text of the communication follows:

"Monday the weather generally was cloudy and the visibility was not good. However, a full day's work was done by our airplanes, both in co-operation with the artillery and in photography and bombing.

"Sixteen tons of bombs were dropped in the course of the day on various objectives, including billets between Armentières and Lens, and the docks at Bruges.

"Fifteen German machines were destroyed and three driven down out of control.

"Two of our machines are missing.

"Monday night heavy bombs were dropped on the Zeebrugge lock and the Bruges docks. A great number of dumps and billets behind the enemy's lines also were bombed. A total weight of twenty-one tons of bombs was used in these different attacks. All the airplanes engaged in this work returned in safety.

"Hostile night-bombing machines have been active over our back areas. A Gotha airplane was forced to descend behind our lines, and its three occupants were captured.

"The same night our long-distance bombing machines were very active. They dropped between four and five tons of bombs on chemical works at Mannheim, the Landau railway station, an electric power station at Kreuzwald, and on the Metz-Sablons railway station and the Courcelles railway station. Very large explosions were caused. All our machines except one returned."

CAPTURE 433 AUSTRIANS.

Italians Storm Defenses on Lower Piave and Hold Gains.

ROME, May 28.—Italian troops on Monday night broke into the Austro-German defenses at Capo Sile, on the Lower Piave front, to a depth of 750 yards. The Italians captured 433 prisoners. The Italian official statement says:

On the night of May 26-27 our assault parties broke into successive enemy defenses at Capo Sile to a depth of more than 750 yards. In spite of the enemy's violent reaction, the positions reached were maintained. There were considerable enemy losses, 450 prisoners being taken and four trench mortars, ten machine guns, several hundred rifles, and ammunition and material being captured.

The artillery of the Italian Navy contributed to the success of the action, which cost us very slight losses.

Hostile detachments were repulsed in the Ornic Valley and on the banks of the Piave.

At Cortellazzo sailor patrols penetrated an enemy trench and took four prisoners.

VIENNA, May 28, (via London.)—The official communication on operations in the Italian theatre, issued today, reads:

The fighting activity in the Tonale region diminished yesterday. Repeated Italian attempts to make further progress were frustrated, but part of our materials, built in what is no wa glacier, fell into the hands of the enemy.

Strong reconnoitering advances to the south of Capo Sile, supported by violent artillery and mine fire, put the Italians in possession of an unimportant part of our first line.

WANTS TO KEEP BELGIUM.

Von Tirpitz Declares It Must Be Retained for Welfare of Germany.

AMSTERDAM, May 28.—"We must retain Belgium economically, politically, and militarily," said Admiral von Tirpitz, former German Minister of Marine, in an address at Düsseldorf on Sunday, as quoted in the Nachrichten of that city. The Admiral's address was delivered before the Düsseldorf branch of the reactionary Fatherland Party, of which he is one of the leading spirits. Speaking of Germany's requirements after the war, he said:

"Neither Central Europe, the Orient, nor Northern Europe can supply us with the raw materials requisite to our industries. We need to have the sea free from Anglo-Saxon tyranny for that purpose."

Apparently the Admiral did not mention the submarine warfare, which was discussed at the same meeting in a highly optimistic manner by Herr Bachmeister, a Deputy in the Landtag.

False Report of the Effect of Paris Bombardment Credited to Swiss Paper.

By JULIUS WEST.

GENEVA, May 28.—Two interesting illustrations of the unscrupulous nature of German propaganda have just come to light. The Berliner Tageblatt printed a telegram purporting to have been sent to the Züricher Post by its Paris correspondent, describing the devastating effects of the bombardment of Paris, which went so far as to say that the South of France was filled with refugees from the capital.

The Züricher Post now protests that its Paris correspondent never wired anything of the sort. The Berliner Tageblatt invented the telegram for the double purpose of raising the German morale and arousing French feeling against Switzerland.

The other case shows equal ingenuousness on the part of the Germans. The Gazette de Lausanne a few days ago published an estimate of the recent German losses. It was stated in the article that the German papers now no longer are a guide to the number of casualties, as since April 15 the publication of notices of deaths has been forbidden. The German Minister in Switzerland, Herr Romberg, now writes to the Gazette de Lausanne, contradicting the last statement and inclosing a few papers published since April 15. But the Swiss paper points out that although these contain fewer death notices, curiously enough, very nearly all the dead were holders of the Iron Cross. An issue of the Tägliche Rundschau, for example, had a list of fifty-five dead, all decorated with the Iron Cross except four soldiers whose deaths were advertised by their employers.

The Gazette de Lausanne now asks if Iron Cross heroes are especially vulnerable. If not, why is it that deaths of undecorated soldiers are not advertised by their own relatives? Clearly the Germans are attempting to suppress knowledge of their losses.

icans just about three-quarters of an hour to complete their conquest, which included that amount of territory as well as the village of Cantigny—an exceptionally short time for such an operation.

This remarkably fine showing comes as a fitting companion piece to the brilliant work done by the United States soldiers in repulsing an enemy assault made against them in the same region yesterday. One American division was attacked at that time, and the gray coats met with a complete reversal at all points.

Causes Good Impression.

This enemy attack was not a heavy one, however, and was easily dealt with by the Americans, who had the situation well in hand at all times.

Word of these two victories has added much to the very favorable impression which the American troops already have created along the British front. It was a foregone conclusion that the Germans would make the newest of the Allies along this front the object of an attack, in an attempt to push them back and thereby create a feeling that they had formed a weak link in the defending chain.

The general opinion of the way in which these American troops have handled themselves in the last two days seems to be summed up in a comment made to the correspondent this afternoon by a French liaison officer.

"Magnificent!" he exclaimed with delight. "That is the sort of stuff we will give the boche."

British Comrades Pleased.

LONDON, May 28.—The capture of 140 prisoners by the American forces near Montdidier is reported by Reuter's Headquarters correspondent.

"Great satisfaction is expressed among the British troops," says the correspondent, "at the news of a successful attack by the Americans near Montdidier, where they captured over 140 prisoners.

"Four British divisions that so stoutly withstood the tremendous enemy onslaught in the Aisne Valley had already borne their full share of the desperate fighting since March 21."

AMERICANS REPULSE FOUR RAIDING PARTIES

Pershing Reports Germans Suffered Heavy Losses and Some Prisoners Were Taken.

WASHINGTON, May 28.—Another section of General Pershing's communiqué of yesterday, made public today by the War Department, said that an enemy attack after a violent bombardment with high explosives and gas shells on American advance positions in Picardy before daylight yesterday was repulsed by counterattacks. Two places in the American lines were penetrated. An attempted raid accompanied by artillery fire in the Woevre also was repulsed. There were gas attacks in Lorraine yesterday.

The text of the communiqué follows:

Section B—In Picardy before daylight this morning the enemy after a violent bombardment with high explosives and gas, attacked our advance positions in three detachments. In two places he penerated small portions of our front lines. Shortly afterward our troops counterattacked, expelled the Germans at all points, and occupied part of the German trenches. Heavy losses were inflicted on the enemy and some prisoners were taken. Our casualties are light. In one case an American was taken prisoner, but was rescued by counterattacks and all of his captors were killed. Our troops displayed a fine offensive spirit at all times, and have achieved a notable success.

During the early hours of the morning in the Woevre a hostile force, supported by violent artillery fire, attempted a raid upon our lines. This force, which was composed of three officers and about one hundred men, well equipped with light machine guns, blew up our wires and attempted to capture portions of our trenches. They were completely repulsed by our infantry and our artillery, leaving one officer and four men dead in our trenches and one wounded prisoner in our hands. Fifteen or twenty dead were observed near our wire and ten stretchers were seen being carried from this point. Here also our losses appear to have been relatively slight.

Yesterday in Lorraine the enemy was unusually active in bombarding our trenches with gas and in patroling. On one occasion a patroling party approached our lines with cries of "Kamerad!" Our troops replied with rifle fire. One of the hostile detachment was killed and his body secured.

Reference in the communiqué to the incident on the Lorraine front wherein German soldiers apparently attempting to surrender were greeted by rifle fire from the American trenches was easily explained by army officers here. On more than one occasion, they said, the Germans deliberately have sent patrols forward with every man in the front rank holding his hands high in the air and shouting the familiar "Kamerad!" Directly behind these and shielded from view would be two or three men with light rapid-firers. As the party approached the first line would drop to the ground or swiftly separate and the machine gunners would obtain immense advantage in sweeping a considerable section of trenches.

The reception given the patrol by the American commander indicates that the allied Generals have determined to stop this violation of one of the most elementary rules of civilized fighting.

Instances frequently have been reported of the Germans failing to respect the white flags sent forward with parley parties. With the Allies adopting a precedent estblished by the Germans, some officers are of the opinion that hostilities in which little quarter will be given and perhaps none at all are not beyond the bounds of possibility.

AMERICAN HEADQUARTERS ON THE FRENCH FRONT, May 27, (Associated Press.)—In the simultaneous attack of three German raiding parties against the American positions in Picardy today, the enemy penetrated the American first line to a depth of 200 yards.

A brilliant counterattack threw the Germans out and the Americans kept on until they had entered the enemy first line, where they remained until ordered back.

The Germans suffered heavily in the fighting, which was of a hand-to-hand nature at times. Several prisoners were taken by the Americans.

After a lull of several days the artillery bombardment in Picardy has become more intense on both sides. The Germans are throwing many gas shells into the American lines. The American gunners, however, are returning the enemy fire twofold.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, May 27.—German raiding troops attacked the Americans in the Lunéville sector this morning. In sharp fighting the raiders lost five men killed. The Americans suffered some casualties.

The German infantrymen were sent forward after the American positions had been deluged with gas launched by the use of projectors. The body of one German was brought into the American trenches.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, May 28, (Associated Press.)—After French aviators had located the approximate positions of the German gas projectors which deluged the American Luneville front with a thousand shells on Sunday and early Monday, the American artillery laid a heavy fire of high explosives throughout last night, covering the area with hundreds of shells and making it virtually certain that the projectors were destroyed.

There has been increased artillery activity and also increased patrol activity on all the sectors held by the Americans since the resumption of the German offensive.

Shortly before the American attack today the Germans again attempted to shell American hospitals behind the American lines. Two high explosive shells fell one hundred yards from one hospital. All patients able to walk or to be moved sought safety in shelter trenches.

38 Casualties Reported by Gen. Pershing Include 7 Killed in Action, 18 Wounded

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 28.—The War Department today gave out a list of 38 casualties in the American army abroad, bringing the total to 6,399. In the list there were the names of 7 killed in action, 1 died of wounds, 18 wounded severely, 6 missing in action, 1 died of drowning, and 5 died of disease.

Two commissioned officers were named, one of them being Major Raoul Lufbery, who was regarded as the best ace in the American air service. He was shot down in flames by a big German triplane the morning of May 19. The other commissioned officers named is Lieutenant Walter B. Schafer, missing in action.

to take them to France. Among these was Major Gen. J. Franklin Bell, who organized and trained the Seventy-seventh National Army Division at Camp Upton. Another was Major General Hugh L. Scott, former Chief of the Army General Staff, who was in command of the Seventy-eighth Division at Camp Dix. Another was Major Gen. J. F. Morrison, formerly in command of the Thirtieth Division at Camp Sevier, recognized as one of the most advanced officers of the army in military science and a foremost advocate of scientific military training.

Wood Highest in Rank.

Major Gen. Wood is the highest ranking officer of permanent grade in the regular army. He is senior in the regular establishment to General Pershing, who holds his present rank under a temporary commission while serving as commander of the expeditionary forces. Major Gen. Bell ranks next to General Wood in the regular establishment. The third ranking officer in the regular establishment is Major Gen. Thomas H. Barry, who commanded the 86th Division at Camp Grant, Rockford, Ill.

With the displacement of General Wood all these ranking officers of the regular army have been deprived of service at the front. All of them are senior in the regular army to General Pershing, although he ranks them under his commission as the commander of the American expeditionary forces.

It became known today that Major Gen. Bell had not been detached from command of the 77th Division at Camp Upton because of physical disability. This was admitted officially and caused surprise, as it was the understanding that General Bell's detachment had been due to a report of the Medical Board that he was physically unfit for overseas service. It was explained that General Bell was found to have some slight ailment that could be corrected by dieting, and that his detachment from active service with troops destined for the expeditionary forces was not due to any physical reason. However, the real reason for his detachment was not revealed. The hint is being conveyed that General Bell was deprived of an opportunity to command troops in France because General Pershing did not want him. His name, it is said, did not appear on the list submitted by General Pershing.

At the time General Barry, their ranking officer of the regular army, was detached from command of the Eighty-sixth Division it was said at the War Department that he had been found physically unfit. It is not certain, however, that this statement was made officially. Nothing has appeared to show that his name was not on the preference list said to have been prepared by General Pershing.

During the day General Wood called on Senator Warren of Wyoming, father-in-law of General Pershing. When General Pershing was promoted by President Roosevelt, General Wood's intimate friend, from the rank of Captain to that of Brigadier General in the regular army, for his services in the campaign against the Moros, Senator Warren was Chairman of the Senate Committee on Military Affairs, of which he is now the ranking Republican member. Neither General Wood nor Senator Warren would discuss the visit.

There is reason to believe that the case of General Wood was discussed at the regular meeting of the Cabinet today. One Cabinet officer said afterward that General Wood knew why he had been detached and that it was for a military reason. He would not throw any further light on the subject.

It is generally believed in the best informed quarters here that if General Wood's orders to proceed to San Francisco are countermanded he will not be assigned to the command of troops ordered to France, but may be permitted again to undertake the training of the new drafts that will be sent to Camp Funston.

ROOSEVELT SILENT ON WOOD.

But He Declares America Could Have Prevented the War.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, May 28.—Colonel Roosevelt, who was in Chicago today for a few hours while awaiting a train for Madison, Wis., refrained from any mention of the transfer of General Leonard Wood. He did say, however, that in his opinion the German drive was a distinct lesson for the people of the United States. He declared that America is awakening to Hun aggression.

"If we had been as wide-awake three years ago as we are now," he said, "there never would have been a war. And if we had been as keen to the dangers of our enemy's aggression one year ago the present German drive could never have been launched. We would have had 1,000,000 Americans on the fighting line today. But the people realize the great significance of the war now.

"It is needless to say that those at home must do everything in their power to re-enforce our army and navy. We must take for granted that every one is giving liberally, sacrificing everything through the Y. M. C. A., the Red Cross, the War Savings Stamp campaign, and other war measures. But it is our men at the front who count, and no sacrifice is too great to meet their sacrifices."

MADISON, Wis., May 28, (Associated Press.)—Declaring that the war would have been over a year ago if this nation had started to prepare three years ago, and criticisms for the Government censorship were the features of the speech of Colonel Roosevelt here tonight.

"Most of the censorship which we have had, I think, is exceedingly foolish," he said. "I have wished there had been a censorship on boasting. The statements of what we are going to do should have been censored. Six months ago we were going to startle the world with our achievements. Six months have passed. We were going to have a large airplane fleet. The Germans built to meet that fleet. We were not ready, and our allies, England and France, have had to ward off the attack. Let achievement speak without boasting."

The Colonel declared that only the English language should be taught in the grade schools and asserted that "English should be the national language, and Americanism the national ideal."

"Americans should be educated in our own universities and every newspaper should, within a reasonable time, be printed in the English language," he said.

During the course of his address the speaker praised the loyalty of the "State of Wisconsin and the Wisconsin State University." The large audience which heard him had expected him to make some reference to Senator La Follette, but the Colonel never mentioned his name.

BROOKLYN MEN WOUNDED.

J. A. Holland, Jr., and William Kearns on Casualty List.

Private James A. Holland, Jr., named in yesterday's casualty list from General Pershing as among those severely wounded in action, is a son of Mrs. James A. Holland of 101 Lincoln Place, Brooklyn. He is in the regular army and is with one of the engineer units, supposed to be on the Picardy front. Mrs. Holland received a telegram yesterday announcing that her son was wounded on May 15. She also received a letter from him yesterday written on May 5.

"If my boy has been permanently disabled I want him sent home," Mrs. Holland said, "but if he is not so seriously hurt and recovers I want him to fight on, for it is a good cause. I have another boy who is going into the army next week, and in doing so he is doing exactly what I want him to do."

Another Brooklyn boy reported severely wounded in yesterday's list is Private William Kearns, a son of Mrs. Margaret Kearns of 4,802 Atlantic Avenue. Kearns, like Holland, is in the regular engineers. He was in the employ of the Long Island Railroad before the war and enlisted the day that Congress declared war. He went to France with the first division of regular troops to follow General Pershing overseas.

FIVE AMERICANS WIN THE SERVICE CROSS

Citation Describes Heroism That Cost Lives of Two—Three Marines Decorated.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, May 28, (Associated Press.)—Three men attached to the American Marine Corps and two American infantryman have won the Distinguished Service Cross for conspicuous heroism in action. Two of the crosses will be delivered to the next of kin of the men upon whom they were conferred, who lost their lives.

Pharmacist Fred C. Schaffner, U. S. N., serving with the marines during an engagement on the west side of the St. Mihiel salient, southeast of Verdun, died as a result of his heroism. The cross was awarded him for "the highly commendable action he displayed in the care and attention incident to the removal of more than one hundred casualties, following a gas shell bombardment April 13," says the citation, which adds:

"He worked incessantly for the comfort and welfare of the sick, disregarding his own premonitory symptoms, insisting that he was all right, when the contrary was evident. He had to be relieved against his will, and as a result of the gassing died."

The citation and award to Hospital Apprentice Carl O. Kingsbury, U. S. N., are presented for work identical to that done by Schaffner. Kingsbury, however, did not lose his life.

Corporal Walcott Winchenbaugh of the marines got the Cross for having "on April 22, with exceptional coolness and devotion to duty while under fire near the enemy lines, rescued his severely wounded leader, Second Lieutenant A. L. Sumoval, from the hands of the enemy."

The citation of Private Charles Schmitz of the infantry says: "During an attack April 14 by his company against superior enemy forces he advanced single-handed against five Germans who had taken cover in a shell hole and killed or wounded all of them with his automatic rifle."

Private Frank Alekno of the infantry on April 21, while a member of a patrol of three men, attacked an enemy patrol of seven men.

"Although mortally wounded," the citation adds, "he continued in action until the enemy was driven off. He then carried a message for assistance 200 yards from the place where he was wounded."

Not long afterward Alekno died from his wounds.

AMERICANS WIN AIR COMBAT.

Rickenbacher and Campbell, Fighting Six Planes, Down One.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, May 28, (Associated Press.)—Lieutenant Edward V. Rickenbacher of Columbus, Ohio, and Lieutenant Douglas Campbell of California this morning forced a German biplane down out of control in the Bois de Rate, northeast of Xivray, in the Toul sector. They fought six enemy planes.

The German machines encircled the American pilots and attempted to drive them behind the German lines. Rickenbached suddenly pounsed on one of the enemy planes, and Campbell going to his assistance, managed to drive the enemy down.

It was Lieutenant Campbell, it has been established, who destroyed an enemy biplane near Essey, inside the German lines on the Toul front, yesterday in a battle a mile in the air. The German machine's wings crumpled and it crashed to the earth.

American pursuit monoplanes on Monday evening brought down a German biplane in flames east of St. Mihiel in a two-minute fight. The Americans sighted two German patrolling machines and pounced upon them. One German fled, but the American pilots surrounded the other and speedily put an end to his attempts to give battle.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, May 27.—A number of American airplanes late this afternoon assisted the French infantry in fighting near Pont-au-Mousson. Swooping down over the German lines, the Americans poured an avalanche of bullets into the enemy's trenches.

ATTACK AMERICAN HOSPITALS.

Enemy Artillery and Fliers Rouse Anger in Picardy.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, May 27, (Associated Press.)—What was apparently a deliberate attempt to wreck American hospitals in the rear of the American lines in Picardy occurred Sunday afternoon when the Germans hurled high explosive and gas shells within a few hundred yards of two hospitals. Fortunately, no damage was done.

The bombardment was going on while American funerals were being held. Several shells fell a short distance from one funeral party, but the ceremony was not disturbed.

German attempts to carry the warfare to American sick and wounded began about ten days ago, when, with the advent of a new moon, enemy airplanes circled over the little villages where it has long been known hospitals were situated and dropped bombs. Several civilians were injured in a recent air raid while not far from the American hospitals. They were asleep when the attack began, feeling secure in their proximity to the hospitals.

Much indignation has been caused among the soldiers and civilians over the air raids and Sunday's bombardment. It was not the fault of the Germans that those in the hospitals were not killed and wounded, as were those in the British hospitals in Flanders recently.

The only comment of the sick and wounded American soldiers is that they want to get out as soon as the doctors will permit, so as to strike back at the enemy.

Aged French women in the villages in the rear of the American sector in Picardy have asked and received permission to take care of one or more graves of American soldiers. This tribute is all the more impressive because it comes from peasant women, most of whom have been robbed of their husbands and sons by the war and have had a hard time to sustain themselves.

The affection with which the villagers regard the Americans is most pathetic at times. The difficulty of languages is swept aside, and the villagers share the American sorrows and joys. In the villages where American troops are billeted and which are in constant danger from enemy shells the Americans share their gas masks with the peasants, whom they teach how to use them.

NEW YORK DOCTOR HONORED.

Lieut. L. M. Gable and 11 Others Get British Military Cross.

AMERICAN HEADQUARTERS ON THE BRITISH FRONT, May 28, (Associated Press.)—The British Military Cross has been awarded Captain Thomas Edward Walker of the United States Army Medical Service and eleven Lieutenants in that service.

The Lieutenants thus honored are Linwood M. Gable, Arthur Irving Haskell, James B. Clinton, Samuel Adams, Gouverneur Boyer, Harold Foster, John Gregg, Albert I. L. Jones, Baldwin L. Keyes, Guy D. Tibbetts, and Harvey C. Updegrove.

Lieutenant Linwood M. Gable was the second of the fifty-four doctors who within the last year have left the staff of the Polyclinic Hospita, 353 West Fiftieth Street, for war work. Dr. Gable was house surgeon of the hospital. His home address is Brooks, Ga.

HOUSE RUSHING BILL FOR INCREASED ARMY

Spurred by German Drive, Congress Is Eager to Give President Unlimited Power.

AIR PROGRAM DEFENDED

Kahn Declares Pershing Has 323 Foreign Battleplanes and a Number That Were Built Here.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 28.—Spurred by the German drive and eager to give the President unlimited authority to expand the army, the House today began the consideration of the Army bill, carrying the largest appropriation for war purposes ever before a legislative body. The chief feature of the bill, providing for the expenditure of more than $12,000,000,000, is the clause conferring upon President Wilson unlimited authority to increase the size of the army.

In the course of today's debate it was disclosed that the American troops in France had 323 battleplanes that were bought there, and some that had been built in this country.

With the House entirely agreed upon the unlimited authority section and not opposed to the main provisions of the bill, Representative Dent, Chairman of the Military Committee, formally presenting arguments for its passage, asked that the House pass it promptly. He said that the committee had carefully inquired into all the proposed expenditures. Mr. Dent asserted that no bill had been more carefully prepared, as the committee began its hearings early in December last, and only reported the measure last week after hearings attended by the war officials.

Because of the necessity of having bills out of the way early, this and the other annual appropriation bills will be acted upon promptly. Before the end of the week the House probably will have passed the bill and sent it to the Senate.

Kahn Asks for Speedy Action.

Representative Julius Kahn, ranking Republican member of the committee, pleaded for speedy action. He said there had been various mistakes made in the war programs, and accounted for this condition by the lack of preparedness existing in the nation.

"For years," he said, "some of us tried to make the rest see that we were living in a 'fool's paradise.' So we drifted along while the sparks were flying everywhere, and refused to make appropriations. I myself offered an amendment here to increase the army to 250,000 men. It was voted down, because some thought that because we were the United States of America no nation dare attack us. Some thought the war could be prevented by the circulation of religious tracts. We were notoriously unprepared. The enemy knew it. They thought that because of it they could heap everything on us, and we could never fight. So when war broke out we had to start from the bottom with everything. We had to create industries.

"We have had criticism from the beginning. Honest criticism is a good thing, and it has not been amiss at the present time, because when criticisms were made the War Department exerted every effort to correct the evils that had been pointed out. So at the start we were criticized about the building of the cantonments. I know there have been mistakes, serious mistakes, but when you think that we had to start out on an uncharted sea it is surprising that so few have occurred."

Representative Philip T. Campbell, Republican of Kansas, interrupted Mr. Kahn to say that there was graft in the cantonment building due to the cost plus principle, and that it had to be abandoned, but not before enormous and unjustified profits had been made.

"The gentleman speaks of graft," replied Mr. Kahn. "I have here a clipping from a Liverpool paper, showing what real graft occurred in England."

"But graft in England does not justify graft in America," retorted Mr. Campbell.

Demands Proof of Graft.

"Does the gentleman know of any graft?" snapped Mr. Kahn. "It is his duty to notify the proper officials of this Government if he does."

"I know this: that the cantonments have cost much more than they ought to have cost," replied Mr. Campbell.

"I submit further that if the gentleman knows of a case where contracts were delayed in order to make profits, as a good, loyal citizen, it is his duty to call the attention of he prosecuting officer of the Government to any violation of the law," said Mr. Kahn.

Discussing the aircraft program, Mr. Kahn declared that much time had been lost in trying to create an engine. He told of the great precautions to perfect the Liberty engine. It was tested on Pike's Peak, he said, to adjust it to changes of temperature. These experiments and the failure of the co-belligerent nations to co-operate, he said, were other causes for the delay in the perfecting of the Liberty engine.

A cable from abroad recommended manufacture of a certain foreign engine. The Dusenberry factory in New Jersey, Mr. Kahn said, was re-equipped for this work after some weeks. "Just as it was ready," he declared, "another cable came that the engine was not desired. That is some of the evidence before the committee."

Mr. Campbell asked about reports that only one or two battleplanes were in France.

"That information," Mr. Kahn replied, "was not before our committee. That is misinformation that was published in some of the newspapers.

"You have been reading of our men bringing down enemy machines. What more evidence do you want as to whether we have battleplanes or not? There are at least 323 battleplanes on the other side that were purchased there and quite a number made in this country. They had the factories ready to make them on the other side."

Mr. Kahn said that while one-third of the $640,000,000 for airplanes was actually expended the balance and much more had been contracted for.

"Ted" Meredith Safe at Front.

PHILADELPHIA, May 28.—Notice that her brother, Lieutenant James E. ("Ted") Meredith, the University of Pennsylvania athlete, was safe, was received today by Mrs. Albert E. Holl from Washington. It was reported by the War Department last week that "Aviator Lieutenant J. J. Meredith" was among Americans captured, and it was feared here that the prisoner was "Ted" Meredith.

TOLD MORGENTHAU OF KAISER'S PLOT

Secrets of Potsdam War Council Were Revealed by German Colleague to Our Envoy.

FINANCIERS DELAYED COUP

Obtained Two Weeks in Which to Change Securities Into Cash on World Exchanges.

The inside story of the Potsdam conference, at which the Kaiser decided on war, was told to United States Ambassador Henry Morgenthau by a German who was present at the Kaiser's command. This man was Baron von Wangenheim, the German Ambassador at Constantinople when the war began. Mr. Morgenthau tells the story in the June issue of World's Work, just published. He says:

"The German Ambassador left for Berlin soon after the assassination of the Grand Duke, and he now revealed the cause of his sudden disappearance. The Kaiser, he told me, had summoned him to Berlin for an imperial conference. This meeting took place at Potsdam on July 5. The Kaiser presided; nearly all the Ambassadors attended; Wangenheim came to tell of Turkey and enlighten his associates on the situation in Constantinople. Moltke, then Chief of Staff, was there, representing the army, and Admiral von Tirpitz spoke for the navy. The great bankers, railroad Directors, and the captains of German industry, all of whom were as necessary to German war preparations as the army itself, also attended.

"Wangenheim now told me that the Kaiser solemnly put the question to each man in turn: Was he ready for war? All replied 'Yes' except the financiers. They said that they must have two weeks to sell their foreign securities and to make loans. At that time few people had looked upon the Sarajevo tragedy as something that was likely to cause war. This conference took all precautions that no such suspicion should be aroused. It decided to give the bankers time to readjust their finances for the coming war, and then the several members went quietly back to their work or started on vacations. The Kaiser went to Norway on his yacht, von Bethmann-Hollweg left for a rest, and Wangenheim returned to Constantinople.

Proud of Germany's Action.

"In telling me about this conference, Wangenheim, of course, admitted that Germany had precipitated the war. I think that he was rather proud of the whole performance; proud that Germany had gone about the matter in so methodical and farseeing a way; especially proud that he himself had been invited to participate in so momentous a gathering. The several blue, red, and yellow books which flooded Europe the few months following the outbreak, and the hundreds of documents which were issued by German propaganda attempting to establish Germany's innocence, never made any impression on me. For, my conclusions as to the responsibility are not based on suspicions or belief or the study of circumstantial data. I do not have to reason or argue about the matter. I know.

"The conspiracy that has caused this greatest of human tragedies was hatched by the Kaiser and his imperial crew at this Potsdam conference of July 5, 1914. One of the chief participants, flushed with his triumph at the apparent success of the plot, told me the details with his own mouth. Whenever I hear people arguing about the responsibility for this war or read the clumsy and lying excuses put forth by Germany, I simply recall the burly figure of Wangenheim as he appeared that August afternoon, puffing away at a huge black cigar, and giving me his account of this historic meeting. Why waste any time discussing the matter after that?

"This imperial conference took place July 5; the Serbian ultimatum was sent on July 22. That is just about the two weeks interval which the financiers had demanded to complete their plans. All the great stock exchanges of the world show that the German bankers profitably used this interval. Their records disclose that stocks were being sold in large quantities and that prices declined rapidly. At that time the markets were somewhat puzzled at this movement; Wangenheim's explanation clears up any doubts that may still remain. Germany was changing her securities into cash, for war purposes.

Stock Market Slump the Proof.

"If any one wishes to verify Wangenheim, I would suggest that he examine the quotations of the New York stock market for these two historic weeks. He will find that there were astonishing slumps in quotations, especially on the stocks that had an international market. Between July 5 and July 22, Union Pacific dropped from 155½ to 127½, Baltimore & Ohio from 91½ to 81, United States Steel from 61 to 50½, Canadian Pacific from 194 to 185½, and Northern Pacific from 111⅝ to 108. At that time the high protectionists were blaming the Simmons-Underwood tariff act as responsible for this fall in values; other critics of the Administration attributed it to the Federal Reserve act—which had not yet been passed. How little the Wall Street brokers and the financial experts realized that an imperial conference held in Potsdam, presided over by the Kaiser, was the real force that was then depressing the market!

"Wangenheim not only gave me the details of this Potsdam conference, but he disclosed the same secret to the Marquis Garroni, the Italian Ambassador at Constantinople. Italy was at that time technically Germany's ally."

CONGRESS PLANS RECESS.

Members to Go Home While Committee Works on Revenue Bill.

WASHINGTON, May 28.—Congressional leaders of both parties agreed late today on a plan for a recess about June 15, after appropriation bills are out of the way, until Aug. 1, while the House Ways and Means Committee works on the new revenue bill. Passage of the revenue measure by the House between Aug. 1 and Aug. 10 is contemplated, to be followed by a thirty-day recess of the House to await action by the Senate.

The Senate adjourned today until next Friday so that members may fill Memorial Day speaking engagements in distant cities.

FRIEND OF KAISER IS ARRESTED HERE

Gustav Kuhlenkampff Described as "Probably the Most Important Enemy Alien."

INTIMATE OF BERNSTORFF

Hoffermann Drank Beer, Assailed the United States, and Then Got Six Months.

Gustav Bernhardt Kuhlenkampff, an importer who is reputed to be one of the wealthiest enemy aliens in the United States, who is said to have been on intimate terms with von Bernstorff and his two chief plot assistants, Captains von Papen and Boy-Ed, was arrested as a dangerous enemy alien yesterday. Kuhlenkampff is also an officer in the German Army and is said to enjoy much more than a speaking acquaintance with the Kaiser and Crown Prince. He has been in the United States twenty years, has amassed a fortune here, yet has remained a loyal subject of Germany. His standing is such that it is said the German Government has promised to reimburse him after the war for a small fortune he has lost in the West Indies as a result of Great Britain's entry into the world struggle.

Kuhlenkampff, who is 41 years old, was arrested by agents of the Department of Justice, who acted under instructions from Chief De Woody. An official of the Government described Kuhlenkampff yesterday as "probably the most important enemy alien in this country," yet for more than a year he has been permitted to enjoy complete freedom. In the first two years of the war Kuhlenkampff is said to have been an intimate adviser of Bernstorff. He is said to have had a prominent part in a scheme perfected in 1914 to get supplies from American ports to German commerce raiders in the Atlantic. He is also said to have handled large sums of money in this country for the Germans, both before and after the outbreak of the war.

Recently the Department of Justice learned that Kuhlenkampff had a code which might have easily been used to communicate important information to Germany. It was pointed out that the war regulations of the United States prohibit Germans from having code books of any kind.

Agents of the Government are said to have found several important letters, including one from Boy-Ed, in which he thanked Kuhlenkampff for "all the services rendered us." It was also said yesterday that Kuhlenkampff's books show that at one time he had on deposit in New York banks about $750,000, all of which he is said to have received from the Deutsche Bank in Berlin, of which Hugo Schmidt, the interned German agent, was the American representative at the time. Kuhlenkampff is reported to have made the claim that he did not know who placed the $750,000 to his credit. It is alleged that much of the money was paid out on orders issued by Boy-Ed.

Kuhlenkampff, when asked why he had never become an American citizen after a residence of twenty years in this country, replied frankly that he had never desired to be anything else than a subject of the German crown. He said he expected to return to Germany some day and spend the rest of his life in that country. The amount of money he is said to have lost in the British West Indies is estimated at about $150,000. Captain Boy-Ed, it was stated, promised to see to it that he was reimbursed after "Germany won the war."

At one time Kuhlenkampff is said to have been the Treasurer of the German Club in this city, which was closed recently after the effects of several of the resident members had been seized by Secret Service agents of the Government. The German Club was the New York City home of Boy-Ed, Hugo Schmidt, Carl Buenz, and other well-known enemy subjects. Buenz is now serving a sentence in the penitentiary at Atlanta for being concerned in a conspiracy to make New York a supply base for German raiders.

Friedrich Hoffermann, a German, whose American home is in White Plains, was arraigned in the West Side Court yesterday, charged with making insulting remarks about the war activities of the United States. He pleaded as an excuse that he had drunk two bottles of beer.

"I am glad you did, since it made you speak your true thoughts," said Magistrate Healy when he sentenced him to serve a jail term of six months. Another subject of the Kaiser who got into trouble by talking too much is Otto Woldt of 432 East 145th Street.

"I have been an officer in the German Army for seven years," Woldt is charged with saying, "and I say damn the United States, the President, and the Red Cross! Before we get through, we Germans will wipe out this country, and I am going to help do it."

Woldt said his father had served as an officer in the German Army for thirty-three years, and claims that his grandfather was a General under William I. Magistrate Mancuso sentenced him to serve six months in the Workhouse. It was said that the Department of Justice may request that the prisoner be transferred to Federal control for more drastic action.

MEXICO STANDS FIRM FOR NEW OIL TAX

Lawyer Who Assisted in Framing It Replies to Secretary Lansing's Protest.

DENIES INDUSTRIAL BURDEN

Measure Only Checks Speculators and Is Not Confiscatory, It Is Asserted.

Copyright, 1918, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MEXICO CITY, May 27.—The unofficial attitude of the Mexican Government on the oil question is explained by a prominent Mexican lawyer, who aided in drafting the law which has caused a protest by the American State Department. A note sent through Ambassador Fletcher states that the United States cannot permit confiscation of the private property of American citizens or arbitrary loss of acquired rights, and makes it known that the Mexican Government law of impuestos [taxes] will be considered so. Supporting the position the United States cites the following principle of international law:

"Exploitation of property by simple supreme sovereignty without due process of law, amply and equitably administered, always has been considered as a denial of justice."

The note calls attention also to the distinction established in Article 27 of the Federal Constitution between property in superficial and property in subsoil oil lands. This principle is applied in the law of impuestos without first having made effective the expropriation in accord with constitutional principles because until now there has not been made a legal disposition which explains the form which the verified expropriation takes or the means of discounting the rights of interested parties.

Protecting American Rights.

For this reason the United States calls the attention of the Mexican Government to the necessity that might present itself for the United States to protect the property of its citizens in Mexico. In conclusion the United States manifesto says it cannot believe that the Mexican Government will not attend to its obligations toward Americans who have invested capital in Mexico, trusting to the justice and good faith of the Mexican Government and its laws.

The note also contains several questions about the payment of taxes in coin and the conditions of the storage of the oil product. It adds that the new tax is a heavy burden for the oil industry and its tendency is confiscatory. The American note sets forth that the ratification of articles 4, 13, and 14 of the law which seems to indicate an intention to separate property in oil from the suboil and to give owners only a superficial preference in exploration and exploitation.

Mexico Claims Full Legality.

The lawyer, in setting forth the unofficial attitude of the Mexican Government, begins by remarking that the principle of right on which the demand is founded is that there is a denial of justice in an arbitrary act of sovereignty which despoils an owner or several owners of properties by its simple will without following legal proceedings. His statement follows:

It is indubitable that the Federal Constitution is Mexico's supreme law. The principles that it contains are obligatory for all the inhabitants of the country. Its application cannot be considered arbitrary, but, on the contrary, all laws and all decisions of Mexican authorities are obliged to be adjusted to constitutional principles, so that the validity of the new law of impuestos or any of its clauses never can be in contradiction with constitutional rulings.

The Constitution, when promulgated, established the direct dominion of nation over carbide of hydrogen and confirmed the difference that has always been recognized between superficial soil and subsoil. Whatever other laws have been made later must of necessity conform to the same principle. This is enough to justify the decision to pass the new law of impuestos, whose confiscatory character disappears when it is considered that the State only collects part rent, although given the right to collect all through direct dominion.

In mining matters, Mexican legislation has taken up Spanish legislation. Besides the mining laws issued at Aranjuez, several rulings had been applied by New Spain, some of which did not make clear the distinction between property and subsoil and superficial soil, as shown by the history of this legislation, in which is the noted order of Philip II., which revoked mining gifts bestowed since the time of Juan I. and incorporated them in the Crown. In the same way Charles V. took the use of the subsoil from the owners in America.

Article 1, Title 5 of the law of Aranjuez states that the King of Spain is the owner of the mines. This is confirmed in Article 2, which states that "without separating from my royal patrimony, I concede my vassals in possession in such form that they may sell, transfer, and inherit; they may transfer the same rights as they possess." Article 22, Title 6, states the right to denounce the titles not only of mines of gold and silver, but also of precious stones, copper, lead, fossil metals, or half metals, and coal.

Spanish Rights Acquired.

The royal patrimony of the Spanish Crown was converted into the national patrimony of the United States of Mexico historically by the war of independence of 1810 and 1821, and this was legalized by the treaty signed at Madrid Dec. 28, 1836, which states that his Majesty renounces for himself and his succession all claims to government, property and territorial rights in these States and countries. The same article recognizes the Republic of Mexico as a free and independent sovereignty, fixing the limits of her territory.

The Mexican nation takes the place of the Spanish Crown in sovereignty over the national patrimony, with all inheritances of rights to be conserved and actually protected by the flag. These rights, under the Constitution of 1917, confirm the direct dominion of the nation over carbide of hydrogen rights, which never had been disputed before 1884.

The law of Dec. 14, 1883, reformed the Constitution of 1857, changing Article 72 as follows: "The issue of laws is obligatory for all the republic on mining and commerce, embracing in this last banking institutions." With this constitutional reform the legislators of 1884 pretended to destroy the direct dominion of the nation over carbide of hydrogen without being authorized. Clearly this dominion existed and exists, and the Constitution of 1917 proclaims its legal standing and general principles, nullifying the arbitrary exception referring to coal and oil.

Rights to Oil Deposits.

To understand the principle of the constitutionally proclaimed Article 27, we must analyze the rights conceded in 1884 to the owners of the superficial soil. This right is no manner of right of property for the deposits contained in the subsoil. It cannot be, because this right can only be acquired by the possession of the oil, which requires its discovery and the working of the deposit. The law compares oil with game, over which full dominion is only acquired by possession.

Explorers are permitted to extract from the wells that they own all the oil possible, even though they drain the beds used in a different end of the stratum, nullifying the production of neighboring wells. The only defense against this system is to drill wells called defense wells as near the boundaries as is permitted by the regulations.

The law of 1884 does not concede to the owners of the superficial soil property in the deposits, but only the power to start exploration work and exploit the oil within the limits of their property, prohibiting this right to foreigners. This power was granted as a free title, but even supposing that the concession was legal the same legal power that issued it has the power to retire it through the act of the same constitutional Congress which has inherited the sovereignty.

[Merlin—"Les droits que la société cree elle peut aussi les abolir."]

"The constitutional recovery of the dominion over oil and coal cannot be considered as confiscatory or arbitrary. Its action should only be restricted by the principle of equity which respects legitimate individual interest, but without admitting that possession of the superficial soil carries rights over the flows of beds which were not known, or that the right conceded for oil exploration in 1884 is irrevocable and perpetual.

The American citizens to whom the State Department at Washington refers can be superficial owners, middlemen, and industrials. Regarding the first, rights acquired by purchase of land, the superficial part, carry the right to make oil explorations and exploitations. Rights which are maintained within the law are only lost in case the owners are unwilling to recognize the law of the Mexican National Constitution, which authorizes owners to maintain their rights always when willing to be considered Mexican citizens.

Denies Impairing Title to Soil.

Respecting property, the new law of impuestos only asserts the maintenance of the power to explore and work oil lands, without this obligation working any injury to the owners of the superficial soil. This power as to the intermediators was not due to the revolution.

The dominion of the nation over oil always has been inalienable and imprescriptible. The Constitution of 1917 and laws derived from that Constitution define the right to determine proceedings of application but do not take away all benefits that have been obtained by law, even though the law was not permanent.

When slavery was abolished in the United States there was no existing law on the expropriation of slaves for the public good, nor were special courts established to defend the rights of foreigners who owned slaves expropriated. It was only considered contrary to the public welfare to consent to the exploitation of human beings, even though they were considered commercial articles by the buyers of slaves and the owners of plantations in the South. The justice of the measure cannot escape the comprehension of any cultured person, although in those times it caused a civil war which was the greatest conflict the United States has had until the present war.

The Constitution of Mexico does not abolish the rights of superficial owners by reviving the national right. The law of impuestos shows the way to superficial owners to adjust themselves to the new system without disparagement to the interests by which proceedings are taken in Mexico, which are most equitable and liberal.

Rent Converted Into Taxes.

It is considered that capitalists, individuals, and companies which have invested capital in oil exploration and exploitation will not feel the new tax, as they will continue to pay the same rent as they paid before, only entering part as taxes in the Federal Treasury, which is perfectly legal.

Article 2957 of the civil code provides that when a law imposes taxes the landlord demands payment from the lessee, who will pay from the rent. Considering cases which do not pay rent, the regalia which the same owners exploit on account of rent, the Federal regalia has the character of a charge due to the national dominion. This charge cannot be considered confiscatory. Allowing that the regalia equals half the regalia of 10 per cent. deducted from agreed contracts made with the owners of the superficial soil, the Federal rent of five pesos per hectare is less than half the rent which was deducted according to agreements made in the District of Tuxpam during the years 1911 to 1916.

Another company owns lots for which it pays 1,000 pesos yearly per hectare. Many other companies pay excessive rents, so that oil workers whose payments are reduced to the rent Federal basis are found in better conditions than industrialists who carry the weight of the dead change of the land owners.

Asserts Law Favors Americans.

It should be noted that Americans form the principal part of the group of industrialists, and those can be considered an exception who belong to the group of superficial owners or speculators in oil lands.

Ambassador Fletcher, a profound student of our laws, can make known to his Government that the nationalization of oil in Mexico, instead of harming, favors American citizens, especially those who have devoted capital and initiative to the exploration of oil, harming only a part of those who have gone into exploration and exploitation in behalf of shareholders assembled by companies for the sale of shares and not for exploration of the subsoil.

Referring to payments in specie, the law states that the Federal regalia can be paid in specie when designated by the Secretary of Hacienda, it being understood that the Government of Mexico will elect payment in specie when the needs of oil for public service do not conflict.

The only object is to injure exploiters, which could be inferred from reading the diplomatic note, because the interests of the Government coincide with the interests of the industrialists. There is a desire to facilitate the progress and development of the most flourishing industries of the country which were the least damaged during the disturbances in Mexico in the last few years. Not only the actual conditions of the country would incline the Government to give easier facilities to foreign capital for investment in Mexico, but since half a century there has been a tendency by the Mexican Government to be always benevolent toward foreigners who in good faith have come to our country with capital and labor to help Mexicans exploit the natural riches. The Constitution of 1917, it can be seen, reflects this tendency, even though it contains clauses which demand respect for the sovereignty of the actual statutes of the nation.

Ambassador Fletcher states truly that until now there has been no confiscation of property. Americans can have the security that in future all the acts of the Mexican Government will be adjusted so that Mexican laws will class Americans with all the inhabitants of the country, with protection and shelter under the laws equally as effective as the protection that could be given by their Governments.

In order to correct wrong interpretations the State Department of Commerce and Industry is willing to furnish pertinent data to Am'assador Fletcher, esteeming it a great pleasurt. Although the enforcement of the law has been postponed to the end of June, it can be considered that the Government stands pat on this article regarding oil. Representatives here are holding conferences, but do not expect results until the end of June.

WILL HEAR RATE PROTESTS.

Commission May Modify McAdoo Increase in Minor Particulars.

WASHINGTON, May 28.—Complaints against the order of Director General McAdoo increasing freight rates approximately 25 per cent. and raising all passenger fares to 3 cents a mile will be heard by the Interstate Commerce Commission, despite the action of that body yesterday in approving the order without hearings, it was pointed out today by Railroad Administration officials. It was said that suggestions would be welcomed either from individuals and concerns or from State Railroad Commissions. It is hoped in this way that a satisfactory adjustment of the new rates can be made.

Through the reviewing by the Interstate Commerce Commission of these complaints many adjustments will be made, but it is not expected the general percentages of increase will be changed to any great extent, nor will the additional revenues, estimated at from $800,000,000 to $900,000,000, be lowered to any appreciable extent.

LEWIS MEN HOPE FOR ROOSEVELT AID

Selection of Colonel's Nephew as Campaign Manager Causes Republican Comment.

CANDIDATE WOULD LIKE IT

Senator Robinson Says He Consulted Uncle Before Agreeing to Take Charge of Campaign.

The selection of Senator Theodore Douglas Robinson, a nephew of Colonel Theodore Roosevelt, as campaign manager for Attorney General Merton E. Lewis in his fight against Governor Whitman for the Republican nomination for Governor, has caused a flutter of excitement among Republican politicians and thrown wide the doors of speculation.

"Does it mean that the Colonel is behind Attorney General Lewis in his fight?" was a question invariably asked when the matter came up for discussion among the politicians. Incidentally it was recalled that, politically speaking, Colonel Roosevelt and Governor Whitman have not been on friendly terms since the Colonel added Mr. Whitman to the membership of the Ananias Club in 1914, after a bitter controversy in the course of Mr. Whitman's first campaign for the Governorship. It is not on record that the Colonel has slapped Governor Whitman on the back and made up with him, although they have observed the amenities when meeting in public, and the Governor at one time presided at a meeting in Albany where Colonel Roosevelt was the principal speaker.

Attorney General Lewis was at the Murray Hill Hotel yesterday attending to the opening of his campaign headquarters. He was asked whether the selection of Senator Robinson was an indication that he would have the backing of Colonel Roosevelt. Senator Robinson himself, in an interview in Albany yesterday, admitted that he had consulted his uncle before he agreed to take charge of the Lewis campaign.

"I am sure I do not know whether Colonel Roosevelt will support me or not," said Mr. Lewis. "I hope he will. I have only seen Colonel Roosevelt twice since he left Albany. When he was Governor I was in the Assembly and had occasion to see him frequently."

Colonel Roosevelt when he occupied the Governor's chair regarded Mr. Lewis as one of the men in the House on whom he "could depend." The relations between Colonel Roosevelt and the Assembly, where the late Fred Nixon at that time was Speaker, were not always pleasant. It is on record that Speaker Nixon upon one occasion tore up a message sent to the Assembly by Governor Roosevelt, in which the Assembly was chided for its action on a tax measure.

Put Civil Service Bill Through.

The attention of Colonel Roosevelt was first fixed upon Mr. Lewis after, unsolicited, he had become sponsor for a civil service reform bill which Mr. Roosevelt had very much at heart. Governor Black, who preceded Mr. Roosevelt as Chief Executive of the State, in his inaugural speech pledged himself to "take the starch" out of the civil service law. He kept his word. When Colonel Roosevelt was inaugurated he pledged himself solemnly to "put the starch back" into the law. He caused a bill to be introduced which was passed by the Senate and sent to the Assembly, where it was planned it should be defeated by the coterie of Republican lawmakers who worked in close co-operation with the Speaker. Mr. Lewis took up the fight for the bill, and fought so vigorously that it was passed by a majority of two votes.

A couple of days later, after Colonel Roosevelt had read Mr. Lewis's speech in a Rochester paper, he sent for him to come to the Governor's private room back of the Executive Chamber and take luncheon with him. President Nicholas Murray Butler of Columbia and Elihu Root lunched with Colonel Roosevelt, too. After this incident Mr. Lewis was included in the little circle of lawmakers, among whom were Regis H. Post, later Governor of Porto Rico, and Gherardi Davis, who were frequently consulted by the Colonel.

George A. Glynn, Chairman of the Republican State Committee, and some other Republicans in Governor Whitman's corner profess to see in the selection of Senator Robinson as campaign manager for Attorney General Lewis no significance beyond his outspoken hostility to the Governor. They do not look for any active opposition from the Colonel. It is the consensus of opinion in Republican circles that the Colonel will not take any part in the campaign in this State, either in the primaries or after.

With the arrival of Governor Whitman yesterday from Rochester, where he spoke on Monday night, came a rumor that the Governor's friends, with the aid of George W. Aldridge, Republican leader of Monroe County, where Attorney General Lewis resides, were seeking to induce Public Service Commissioner John A. Barhite, a Monroe County man, to become candidate for Attorney General on the "Whitman-Officeholders' Entente" primary ticket. Commissioner Barhite received his appointment, which pays him $15,000 a year, after it had first been rejected by Mr. Aldridge.

"Putting a man from Monroe on the ticket is regarded by Governor Whitman's friends as good strategy, which would save to the Whitman ticket many votes which otherwise out of local pride might be cast for Mr. Lewis, despite the fact that the Monroe County Republican organization a week ago last Saturday adopted resolutions indorsing the Governor's third term candidacy.

It was learned yesterday that soon after Senator Robinson, who, as the result of a slight injury he suffered recently, will be compelled to undergo a minor operation in one of the hospitals in this city next week, takes up his new duties, a representative Statewide committee will be formed to promote the candidacy of Attorney General Lewis. Senator Robinson expects to take hold on June 15.

PEBECO
TOOTH PASTE
A Safeguard Against Tooth Decay

Ninety-five out of a hundred people are said to have "Acid-Mouth."

Many authorities regard "Acid-Mouth" as one of the chief causes of tooth decay. The daily use of Pebeco is a safeguard against decay because—first—it thoroughly cleanses the teeth.

Second—it neutralizes the excess of acid and imparts a delightful sense of cleanliness to the mouth and teeth.

You can prove its cleansing power to your own satisfaction by one trial brushing with Pebeco.

INDICT NEW YORKER FOR OUSTING I.W.W.'S

Walter Douglas of Phelps-Dodge Corporation Accused of Aiding Bisbee Deportations.

HIS COUNSEL DEFENDS ACT

Asserts There Could Be No Temporizing with a Movement to Defeat Nation's War Plans.

TUCSON, Ariz., May 28.—That Walter Douglas of New York, President of the Phelps-Dodge Corporation, was among those indicted in the United States District Court here for alleged participation in the deportations at Bisbee on July 12 last, developed here today. Douglas, through his attorney, entered a voluntary appearance together with other Bisbee and Douglas citizens indicted jointly on a charge of conspiracy to deprive citizens of the rights guaranteed them by the Constitution and laws of the United States.

This was the date set for the arraignment, but none of the defendants appeared in person. Through their counsel, they filed a demurer to the indictments, on the ground that the facts as alleged do not constitute a violation of the Federal law. A hearing on the demurer probably will not be held before the Fall.

In addition to Douglas, twenty-one Arizona citizens now stand indicted by the Tucson Grand Jury. All of these entered demurrers today through counsel.

Douglas formerly was general manager of the Phelps-Dodge interests at Bisbee and lived there prior to 1917. He was in Bisbee on the day of the deportations. He is one of the most widely known copper producers in the United States. About a year ago he succeeded his father, James Douglas, as President of the Phelps-Dodge Corporation.

Walter Douglas, President of the Phelps-Dodge Corporation, declined yesterday to discuss the indictment handed down against him by the Federal Grand Jury in Arizona. Matthew C. Fleming of 71 Broadway, attorney for Mr. Douglas, pointed out that the indictment did not charge the latter with any overt act, and, while he was unwilling to comment on Mr. Douglas's alleged participations in the deportations, he outlined the situation which led up to the indictments.

"Mr. Douglas was in Arizona when members of the I. W. W. outside the State started in to cripple production there," he said. "It is generally considered that this was part of the movement to stir up industrial trouble in the Rocky Mountain region. The I. W. W. prosecutions now going on in Chicago are the outcome of that widespread activity.

"Urged by the alien I. W. W. mischiefmakers, the Austrian and Mexican miners in Bisbee struck on the call of a committee and without vote of the men, and began a campaign of intimidation and violence. The copper output, desperately needed by the Federal Government, was tied up.

"Sheriff Wheeler, who is now a Captain with the American Expeditionary Forces in France, taking the stand that the schemes of the I. W. W. were aimed at the Government's prosecution of the war, and thus were treasonable, adopted means to rid the community of the disturbers as quickly as possible. In this he was joined by other loyal citizens in Bisbee.

"With the aid of a large force of special Deputies and a posse comitatus, including some of the most prominent men in the county, the Sheriff arrested 1,200 of the troublemakers. He hired a train, stocked it with food and water, and sent the men to the nearest army post, which was at Columbus, N. M. No man was deported who, on being asked, consented to take the oath of loyalty to the United States.

"No steps were taken by the Federal authorities to return these men to Bisbee, the general feeling being that there could be no temporizing with a movement that aimed to keep the Government from getting the copper it needed. The men were fed at the army post for a time, and finally were allowed to drift away. No women and children were deported. False statements to that effect probably were based on the fact that three women insisted on going with their husbands. In the East there seems to have been a general misunderstanding of the situation and what actually happened."

PRIORITY FOR NEWS PRINT.

But Fuel Applications Will Be Acted Upon Individually by Board.

WASHINGTON, May 28.—Under a policy agreed upon today by the Priorities Board of the War Industries Board, fuel priority will be granted manufacturers of news print paper upon application accompanied by proof that the plant applying is entitled to priority.

Newspapers were placed on the preference list some time ago, but the paper industry was not included, and representatives of the mills have complained that scarcity of fuel had curtailed their output to such an extent that hundreds of newspapers might be compelled to shut down for lack of paper. The Priorities Board decided to meet the situation by dealing with each plant separately.

Edwin B. Parker, Priorities Commissioner, authorized this statement after today's meeting:

"The Priorities Board has not declined to put manufacturers of news print on the preference list, but will consider their application as a plant and not as an industry, as some plants may be entitled to preference while others are not, and those having preference may be entitled to varying degrees of preference. Each case must be considered on its merits."

Testimony before the Federal Trade Commission on the cost of making news print paper ended today. Three days will be allowed for argument, after which the commission will undertake to fix a fair price for paper, in accordance with the agreement made by manufacturers with the Department of Justice.

BEAT COMMISSION PLAN.

Women Help to Defeat Change in Government of Poughkeepsie.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., May 28.—At a special election held here today the proposition to adopt the plan "C" commission form of city government was defeated by a majority of 170.

There were 1,635 votes cast in favor of the plan and 1,805 against. About 600 women voted.

Wrecks Not Due to Raiders.

NORFOLK, Va., May 28.—One of the several derelicts, the presence of which off the Virginia Capes gave rise to rumors that German submarines or raiders had been operating along the coast recently, was the wreck of a coastal schooner which collided with another off Winter Quarter Shoals, Del., last week. This was learned today at the office of the Commandant of this naval district, where it was announced that the wreck had been destroyed by coast guard cutters.

Miss Stinson's Machine Damaged.

BINGHAMTON, N. Y., May 28.—Miss Catherine Stinson attempted to resume her flight to New York from this city this morning. When she was about to rise from the field a gust of wind caused her plane to drop forward, the propeller striking the earth and the plane turning turtle. Miss Stinson was unhurt, but the propeller was broken and the steering gear damaged.

SEVEN ORDNANCE DIVISIONS.

Not Reorganization, but Development of Department, Says Baker.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 28.—The War Department today announced more changes in the organization of the Ordnance Department to bring the operating divisions more closely in contact with the Acting Chief of Ordnance. The Ordnance Department will now be divided into seven divisions—Administration, Engineering, Estimates and Requirements, Procurement, Production, Inspection, and Supply.

The name of the General Administration Bureau is changed to Administration Division, without any change in its work. The Engineering Bureau is changed to the Engineering Division, charged with the preparation of designs and specifications of material and the decision as to types to be manufactured.

The Estimates and Requirements Division will be charged with the formulation of requirement schedules based upon the man-power program dictated by the General Staff. This division is also charged with the statistical analysis of the work and progress of the Ordnance Department.

The Procurement Division will be charged with the purchase of all ordnance material, a task which includes the development of facilities for manufacture as well as the letting of contracts where such facilities already exist.

The Production Division will be charged with the responsibility for production. The Inspection Division will be charged with the responsibility of maintaining quality and uniformity in production.

To the Supply Division is assigned the entire task of storage and distribution of more than 50,000 different articles supplied by the Ordnance Department to the armed forces. It was explained that this form of organization placed special emphasis upon the importance of production and gave the freest rein to those divisions charged with that responsibility.

"The changes made do not, however, constitute a reorganization of the Ordnance Department," said Secretary Baker. "The achievements of that department during the last few months are considered to have demonstrated the soundness of the form of organization planned last Fall and finally established by official order on Jan. 14, 1918. It has been realized for some time that certain modifications and improvements in the plan of organization would be suggested by actual operation under that form of organization. The order just issued is an improvement and development of the plan of organization as it existed heretofore."

DENIES WHEAT IS ABUNDANT

Hoover Warns That Consumption Must Be One-third Normal.

Herbert Hoover, United States Food Administrator, yesterday branded as false a report that the United States Food Administration no longer considers the conservation of wheat a factor of vital importance. Officials of the Federal Food Board, 220 West Fifty-seventh Street, were unable to locate the source of the rumor, but bulletined Mr. Hoover's message, which was forwarded to Federal Food Administrator Arthur Williams.

"Reports have been circulated that the Food Administration officials state that further wheat conservation is not necessary," read Mr. Hoover's telegram. "No statement of this character has ever been issued. The actual position is that our wheat supply until harvest allows a home consumption one-third normal, if we are to maintain supplies to the Allies. The actual position is that in farmers' hands and in storage we had at the beginning of May 75,000,000 bushels of wheat to carry for approximately three months, or, with an early harvest, perhaps two weeks shorter. Our normal consumption for three months would be 120,000,000 bushels, not allowing the Allies anything."

In New York State approximately 75 per cent. of the householders have pledged total abstinence from wheat or wheat products until the next harvest, it was announced. The organizations which have passed resolutions pledging membership in the all-wheatless program include the Knights of Columbus, Masonic bodies, the Odd Fellows, and the Knights of the Golden Eagle.

$50,000 FOR SHIPWORKERS.

London Daily Mail Offers Prizes—Riveting Contests Stopped.

LONDON, May 28.—The Daily Mail offers £10,000 as prize money for competition among workers in merchant shipbuilding yards in Great Britain and Ireland. The contest will be based on the percentage of time actually worked according to the total possible number of working hours.

An attempt to establish a record for hand riveting at the shipyard of J. Crichton & Co. at Saltney, near Chester, was stopped by officials of the Boilermakers' Society, according to The Daily Mail. This action was taken after a riveting squad had driven 2,125 five-eighths inch steel rivets into frames for ships in six and a half hours.

The stoppage of the attempt is believed to have resulted from the circular sent by Secretary Hill of the Boilermakers' Society to branches declaring that riveting contests must be stopped, and that members taking part in them would be dealt with by the society.

SEMINARY TO AID IN WAR.

General Theological Will Turn Over All Unused Dormitories.

The Board of Trustees of the General Theological Seminary voted yesterday to turn all unused dormitories over to the War Department for war service work. It was decided that to help make up the deficit the students this coming year should follow the example of the West Point cadets in shoveling snow from paths and sidewalks, an item which amounted to $800 last year. The degree of Doctor of Divinity was conferred on the Rev. Edward A. White of Bloomfield, N. J., and Bishop Charles Fiske of Syracuse, N. Y. The Rev. Dr. Francis J. Hall was elected a professor in the seminary for life.

HOSPITALS WILL AID DRAFT REGISTRANTS

To Give Surgical and Medical Treatment to Make Men Fit for Service.

4,000 DEPART FOR CAMPS

Thousands Join in Final Celebrations at Ferries, Which Are More Joyous Than Sad.

In response to an appeal by the Government, the hospitals of New York have notified Adjt. Gen. Charles H. Sherrill, as chief representative in New York State of Provost Marshal General Crowder, that they are now prepared to give surgical and medical treatment to those registrants of Class 1, who have been classified as eligible for military service subject to necessary surgical operation or medical treatment. Dr. Victor Pedersen, chief medical officer of the selective draft for New York, will be in general charge of this part of the draft work in New York.

General Sherrill's instructions were mailed to the 189 local draft boards of New York last night. After referring to the patriotic offer of the hospitals, the instructions give the following procedure to be followed by the local boards and the hospitals:

> Authority for treatment must be shown by a letter from the board. Identification of the registrant before the board and again before the hospital must be completed. Special cases, such as eye, ear, nose, and throat and foot cases, should be referred to special hospitals limited to these classes of service. The registrant should be told that if no bed is available at the time of application, his name shall be placed on a waiting list from which notice will be sent as soon as there is a bed.
>
> The registrant should understand that he must go to the hospital on thee day when such notice is received, otherwise his opportunity of treatment will be postponed. The registrant should understand that if a hospital states its waiting list to be unreasonably full, he should report back to his board for reference to another hospital.
>
> Boards and hospitals should confer so that the condition just referred to shall as far as possible not occur. No responsibility is of course assumed by the Government, the State, or by those called upon to perform these gratuitous services.
>
> If you will communicate with Dr. Pederson, consulting medical aid of this office, by letter or telephone, he will advise you of the hospitals to which you should send your registrants.

More than 4,000 New York City selective draft soldiers left for camps and cantonments in New York, New Jersey, and the Southern States yesterday. Stirring scenes marked the departures of the units when thousands of persons gathered at Manhattan ferry terminals to join in the farewells to the soldiers of the new National Army. The final celebrations were joyous and there were few tears. The men were happy and shouted their good-bye to friends and relatives.

FOUND BY CRYPTIC LETTER.

C. W. Myer, Wanted in Ranger Will Case, Arrested in Pittsburgh.

Carl W. Myer, a law clerk, was arrested yesterday in Pittsburgh by Detective Cunniff of the District Attorney's office, according to a statement by the District Attorney's office yesterday. Myer was indicted some time ago on the charge of being a co-conspirator and for alleged subornation of perjury, with Edith Ranger, a sister of the late Henry W. Ranger, an artist. Mr. Ranger's probated will, leaving his estate to the National Academy of Design, was contested by an alleged later will presented by Miss Ranger.

Myer, it was said, waived extradition and is on the way to this city. It was said by the authorities that Myer was found by means of a cryptic letter intercepted in New York, in which he gave a certain code message and an address by which he was to be notified if the "coast was clear." The District Attorney sent the necessary message and Myer was arrested at the address to which the letter was sent.

Service Board Sees Danger to Public in Proposed Government Action.

ASKS FOR A CONFERENCE

Lower Cost of Production by Cutting Supply of Oil Must Be Accompanied by Lower Rates.

Word reached the Public Service Commission yesterday that W. L. Requa, Fuel Administrator, had under consideration a proposed order limiting the supply of oil to the gas companies throughout the United States. For the purpose of reducing the oil consumption without depriving the public of gas it was the intention of the Administrator, it was said, to fix a maximum standard of quality of gas. This standard was to be 528 B. T. U.'s, and it was understood that if the companies exceeded this maximum they would get no oil at all.

Last October the gas companies here appeared before the commission on the question of changing the standard of gas from twenty-two candle power to the B. T. U., or heat basis. Then came the question of the number of units it would take to make gas equal to the legal standard of twenty-two candle power. The companies fought for a low basis because cheaper gas could be made and more would have to be used to get the same results. Finally the commission fixed the standard at 650 units but gave the companies the privilege of accepting this offer or rejecting it as they pleased. They made no sign and the old candle power standard has continued to prevail.

When it was learned that the Washington authorities were interesting themselves in the matter, the commission felt that any interference with its control of public service corporations by representatives of the Federal Government might weaken public supervision to the extent of making any further orders of the commission of no avail. The commission sent this telegram to Mr. Requa:

"Any change to heating standard at a low B. T. U. without corresponding reduction in gas rate and other important conditions would seriously affect consuming public. Opportunity is, therefore, requested to present important phases of the matter from the public point of view by this commission and such other commissions and cities as may wish to join."

Public Service Commissioner Travis H. Whitney said yesterday that if the gas companies in this city were losing money and needed an increase in their net earnings they should apply to the commission and present the necessary evidence. He added that if the heat basis was fixed at 528 units it would have startling and far-reaching results to the public in every section of the United States.

Mr. Whitney said that the commission had already given the companies permission to reduce the quality providing that they lower the price, but the companies did not care for such a privilege.

"As approximately 80 per cent. of the gas is used primarily for its heat value," continued Mr. Whitney, "it will be appreciated that a reduction to a maximum 528 B. T. U.'s would be a very substantial reduction in quality and therefore would to a corresponding extent affect consumers' bills."

Lightning Strikes du Pont Mill.

CAMDEN, N. J., May 28.—Three tons of nitroglycerine were exploded today when the mill of the Repauno chemical plant, at Gibbstown, N. J., a subsidiary of the Du Pont Company, was struck by lightning. The explosion tore a great crater in the ground and destroyed several buildings. The mill was not in operation when struck and there were no casualties. The loss is estimated at $80,000.

WITNESSES IDENTIFY SLAYERS OF PRAGER

Pick Out Five of Defendants on Trial for Lynching German in Illinois.

Special to The New York Times.

EDWARDSVILLE, Ill., May 28.—Five of the eleven defendants on trial on charges of murder in connection with the lynching of Robert Prager on April 5 at Collinsville, Ill., were partly identified today by witnesses who took the stand after eleven days had been used up in getting a jury. The chief witnesses of the day were Mayor Siegel of Collinsville and John Bruso, a lumber dealer, who was foreman of the Coroner's jury that investigated Prager's death.

Important testimony given before the Coroner three days after the lynching became public for the first time today through the testimony of Bruso. The inquest was held behind closed doors. Bruso said that Joseph Riegel, one of the defendants, testified he had addressed the crowd with the words:

"Come on fellows, we're all in on this, don't be slackers."

Bruso said that Riegel stated he didn't remember who placed the noose about Prager's neck, but it might have been himself. He further stated that Riegel described how Prager was lowered to the ground after it was discovered that his hands were not tied; how he was asked if he had anything to say, and in response to a request, received paper and pencil and addressed a farewell note to his father in Germany, and of how he received a moment in which to pray before he again was hoisted into the air.

Louis A. Gerding, a druggist, gave a graphic account of the actual lynching. He testified that he left a picture show at 10:15 and soon afterward met the crowd and followed them to the City Hall. He followed the crowd in his automobile to the scene of the lynching, and the lights from his car helped illuminate the death scene.

Mayor Siegel, who attempted to prevent the mob from getting Prager, told of seeing a crowd leading Prager through the streets early in the evening, of rescuing the man with a policeman's aid, of attempting to hide him from the mob at the City Building, and of the search of the premises by the mob until Prager was discovered. He identified Joseph Riegel, Wesley Beaver, and William Brockmeier of the defendants as having been in the mob.

PIGEON BRINGS WAR CALL.

Delivers Countess of Reading's Plea for British Recruits.

Having flown from Washington to this city in seven hours, three carrier pigeons released in front of the British Embassy by the Countess of Reading, wife of the Ambassador, arrived at the British-Canadian Recruiting Mission, 220 West Forty-second Street, yesterday evening. Attached to the leg of one of the birds was the following message from Lady Reading:

"This is the supreme crisis of the war. Honor and loyalty call every British subject of military age to the fighting line. Our American comrades are pouring across in their thousands. Don't lag behind. Time presses. Come now and join your brothers who are in arms to crush perfidy and cruelty and to win freedom and happiness for a suffering world."

The pigeon and message arrived in time to be taken along to a recruiting rally held between acts of "The Man Who Stayed Home," West Forty-eighth Street Theatre. Following the act in which a German spy uses a carrier pigeon to transmit a message from England to Berlin, a member of the British Mission handed the pigeon which made yesterday's flight to one of the actors, who read out the Countess's summons.

CITY TO STORE COAL FOR WINTER NEEDS

Has Storing Facilities—Problem Is to Buy Supply, Say Dealers and Officials.

TO PURCHASE 100,000 TONS

Committee Appointed to Arrange to Buy Coal Wherever It Can Be Obtained.

The Committee on Domestic Supplies of the Mayor's Committee on National Defense took the first steps yesterday in carrying out the plan for storing at least 100,000 tons of domestic coal against the days of need next Winter. The Committee, Chairman George W. Loft presiding, held a conference with coal dealers representing the different boroughs in the Board of Estimate room in the City Hall, and it was the opinion of both the city officials and the coal men that the city has facilities for the storing of the coal and that the problem is where the coal can be purchased.

After a thorough discussion of the situation a committee of city officials and coal men was appointed to press the National Fuel Administration for an answer to the question, and to make arrangements for the acquisition of whatever coal could be obtained. The meeting agreed not to limit the amount to any stated figure, but to purchase what coal could be obtained in whatever amounts it could be purchased.

At the beginning of the conference Supervisor Brady charged that last Winter some coal dealers took advantage of the situation to profiteer. He warned that unless the city administration did something now there would be riots next Winter, with men and women marching to the City Hall crying for fuel.

The Chairman read a letter sent to Fuel Administrator Garfield some weeks ago asking what coal could be sent to New York, and whether the city would have to store coal, or if the dealers would receive sufficient to meet the demands. To this letter Dr. Garfield replied under date of May 25 that the shortage in this city was being looked into by the National Distribution Committee, and that that body would take action to meet the situation.

Michael Burns said he believed that if everybody waited patiently they would get enough coal. He said that the Administration was making arrangements to supply the necessary coal to the Atlantic States. In this connection he said that the Fuel Administration had stopped the delivery of anthracite coal in twenty-four States where they burn bituminous coal and have it at their very doors. He thought much of the trouble last Winter was due to nervousness. As it is going to take from now until the cold weather to supply the orders on the books, he said, it would be advisable for the city to put in a supply for the needy even if it lost money on the transaction.

Other dealers spoke and resented the charge that they were profiteers. Finally Chairman Loft demanded of Mr. Brady the names of those who had profiteered. "This is a serious matter," he said. "You have made the charge and I think you should give the names."

This Mr. Brady was not inclined to do, and the City Chamberlain broke in to say that it was not the time for a discussion on profiteering which happened last Winter.

There was talk at the conference of using Blackwell's Island to store coal, and it was agreed to ask the State authorities for the use of the property on the waterfront acquired for barge canal terminals. There was also discussion on the proposition of allowing the reserve supply of coal to flow into the dealers' yards and letting them handle at least a part of the supply. These matters will be taken up by the new committee, which will first get into touch with the National Fuel Administration to find out what coal can be obtained.

ASK CITY LAND FOR GARDENS

Socialist Aldermen Want Property Used by Community Farmers.

A proposal that all available land in the city which is under municipal control be turned over to the Park Department in each borough to be used for community gardening purposes was made by the Socialist Aldermen at yesterday's meeting of the board. The suggestion came in the form of a resolution which provides that the Commissioners of the Sinking Fund "shall turn over to the Department of Parks in each borough such property as the Commissioners of the Sinking Fund may certify as available for use as community gardens and which, in the opinion of the Commissioners, is not available for any other purpose." The resolution was referred to the General Welfare Committee.

By a vote of 49 to 7 the board adopted the report of the Committee on Labor and Industry to file a proposed ordinance introduced by the Socialists in behalf of the street cleaners, proposing for them an eight-hour day, time and a half for overtime and the right to form a labor union. All the Socialist Aldermen voted against filing the proposed ordinance. They declared that if the majority of the board wished to pass the measure there would be no difficulty, and also stated that the maximum salary of the street cleaners was only $720 a year, and that the previous administration had found it impossible to get men at that wage.

TO CURTAIL DEBATES.

Committee Reports Measure Limiting Speechmaking in Senate.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 28.—The Senate Rules Committee today agreed to report out an amendment, offered by Senator Underwood, that, if adopted, would have the effect of greatly curtailing debate in the future whenever the Senate might want to invoke it. The amendment would limit debate for each Senator to one hour on a bill and twenty minutes on any amendment of a bill, except when, by general consent, the Senate would decide to extend the time. This amendment takes the place of a resolution offered in the Senate a few days ago by Senator Underwood limiting debate to twenty minutes on a bill and ten minutes on amendments after a bill has been on the calendar for two days.

The object of the Underwood amendment is to hold debate within reasonable bounds on bills that otherwise might drag through the Senate for weeks. It is a compromise for the closure rule, adopted at the last session, but never invoked. If the amendment is adopted, it is believed that it will tend to shorten appreciably the debate on the new Revenue bill when it comes up.

Telegraphers' Inquiry Here June 1.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, May 28.—The grievance of the commercial telegraphers against the Western Union and Postal Telegraph Companies, involving the right of the telegraphers to be members of a union, will be taken up by the full National War Labor Board next Saturday at the Hotel Belmont in New York. Today's sessions here were presided over by Chairman Frank P. Walsh. In New York both Mr. Walsh and ex-President Taft will be present.

HURLEY SAYS COAL MUST BE SPEEDED UP

Producing of Sufficient Fuel Soon Will Be Squarely Up to Operators.

MORE EFFICIENCY NEEDED

Urges Owners and Unions to Co-operate for Fuller Working Time and Increased Effort.

PHILADELPHIA, May 28.—Bituminous coal men from all parts of the country attending the first annual convention of the National Coal Association here, were told today that as the Government purposed to spend $1,000,000,000 to expand railroad facilities, the producing of sufficient fuel would sooner or later be squarely up to the operators.

This declaration was made to the convention by E. N. Hurley, Chairman of the United States Shipping Board. Mr. Hurley said there must be more efficiency in and about the mines to increase production and that there must be new business methods, new co-operation between employer and employe, and creation of schools for training new superintendents, foremen, and workers to meet military drafts on labor.

He urged that a study be made of production in the weaker mines, that competent foremen and superintendents be obtained and that both owners and unions appoint committees in each district to "co-operate in democratic fashion" in the matter of fuller working time and better effort on the part of American labor.

With full running time Mr. Hurley said the miners could make good earnings, because their pay was based on individual effort. He paid a tribute to leaders of organized labor and expressed admiration for the United Mine Workers of America, the only union that as a whole recognized the piece work basis of remuneration. Mr. Hurley decried the practice of some manufacturers in lowering piece rates when the earnings of employes through more efficient work began to mount.

J. D. A. Morrow, General Director of Distribution of the Federal Fuel Administration, said the coal production for the coal year starting April 1 must reach 785,000,000 tons in order to meet the country's war needs, and that under the present rate of consumption and output the production of bituminous would fall short 71,000,000.

Other speakers today included W. K. Fields of Pittsburgh, Penn., President of the association, and former Ambassador to Italy William Potter, who is Federal Fuel Administrator for Pennsylvania. Mr. Field said the coal operators of the country are doing their best to co-operate with the Government and produce a record output of coal.

SCHOOL IS 100 YEARS OLD.

Institution Named for B. D. L. Southerland Observes Its Centenary.

Public School 3, better known as the B. D. L. Southerland School, at Hudson and Grove Streets, celebrated its hundredth anniversary yesterday afternoon. Everett P. Wheeler, ex-Congressman and member of the class of 1853, in a speech, reviewed the history of the school, and urged the children to do all they could to help win the war.

Charles W. Laws, Park Ridge, N. J., showed a "good ticket" which he had won in 1852 for being "punctual, regular, and obedient" for one month. A playlet presented by girls from the middle grades depicted the changes that had taken place in the school since its first teacher, Shepherd Johnson, opened its doors. Mrs. H. Crosswell Tuttle, a former student, announced that she would award a gold medal every year for the best paper on some topic of American history. Other speakers were James R. McFee, a graduate and founder of the B. D. L. Southerland Association, and Robert L. Harrison, formerly a member of the Board of Education. The school is named for the late B. D. L. Southerland, who was Principal from 1862 to 1902.

THE NOVEL THAT WOULDN'T WAIT!

THE IDEA first came to her several months ago. She brushed it aside because, like most authors, Kathleen Norris was engrossed in the war. And this was an idea for a novel which had nothing to do with the war.

But presently it returned, with greater intensity. Again she thrust it back and it was overshadowed by the struggle overseas.

The third time it came with even greater force. Here was a theme which would not be denied. It would not wait!

And so she wrote it—this story of a girl who tangled up the lives of those about her, of the great unselfish love of sisterhood—this story that she gave the name of "Sisters."

She sent it to GOOD HOUSEKEEPING—the very magazine which, above all others, has been devoting itself to the war service of American women. At first we wondered. But that was before we read it. Then we saw why Kathleen Norris could not wait to write this story. Then there was no choice. It wouldn't wait!

To you we feel that "Sisters" will be a welcome interlude. Not to distract your mind from what your duty is today. But rather to show you with new vividness how great the love of womankind can be, how eager in its sacrifice, in the life of every day.

And as you watch this book unfold its story in our pages, we think that you will turn again to all your burdens of today, refreshed and heartened by the glory of its message. Begin it, now, tonight!

TEN STEEL SHIPS LAST WEEK'S OUTPUT

Deliveries of American Yards for Seven Days Ended May 25 Totaled 63,486 Tons.

18 MORE WERE LAUNCHED

Average of New Hulls for the Month Exceeds Two a Day—Strive for New Record.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 28.—Ten steel ships aggregating 63,486 tons, or the equivalent of a 9,069-ton ship a day, were completed and delivered by the shipyards of the nation during the week ended May 25. Of these deliveries, eight were requisitioned ships and two contract ships.

Launchings for the same week included fifteen steel and three wooden hulls, aggregating 109,700 tons. These bring the total launchings for the month up to May 25 to thirty steel and twenty-five wooden hulls, or more than two each day. Workmen are rapidly fitting these hulls with boilers and other equipment in an effort to establish a new record of deliveries for the month.

Here are the deliveries of completed vessels for the week ended May 25:

Requisitioned, steel—K. Luckenbach, cargo, 11,550 tons, Fore River Yard, Quincy, Mass.; Lake Allen, cargo, 3,300, Great Lakes Shipbuilding Company, Ecorse, Mich.; Westmount, cargo, 8,800 tons, Ames Shipbuilding Company, Seattle; Santa Luisa, passenger, 4,986 tons, Cramp Shipbuilding Company, Philadelphia; Lake Felicity, cargo, 3,100 tons, American Shipbuilding Company, Detroit; Cape Henry, cargo, 7,500 tons, Sparrows Point Yards, Sparrows Point, Md.; Lake Capens, cargo, 3,100 tons, American Shipbuilding Company, Superior, Wis.; Westbridge, cargo, 8,800 tons, J. EMERSON DIDN'T MOVE FORD

Reduction of Car Price, Witness Says, Was Not Due to Threat.

One of the witnesses yesterday in the trial of the Emerson Motors Company, its officers, and its selling agents on a charge of using the mails to defraud, now going on before Federal Judge Manton, was Frank L. Kleinschmidt, Vice President of the Ford Motors Company. One of the statements made by the defendants was that they had done a good thing in compelling the Ford Company to reduce the price of its cars. Several of the employes of the Ford Company had been employed by the Emerson Company.

The witness said that the fact that the Emerson Company intended to make a car for $390 had no effect on the Ford Company and in no way influenced the Ford Company to reduce its price from $450 to $360.

Fred L. Hunt, who had charge of the Emerson plant in Long Island City, testified that it was the custom of the Emerson concern to get parts of other cars and to use them in completing its own machines.

The trial will be continued today.

YOU ASK ME how we have done it in the Navy? A great many people are asking, and we can give them all a straight American answer . . . . Every man in the Navy is a student. Every man is a fighter. Every man is on tiptoe to put the big game through for Democracy, Patriotism, and Victory!!

Josephus Daniels

For that straight American answer, turn to page 418 of Hearst's Magazine for June. There you will find Secretary Daniels' signed statement on our New Navy.

YOU owe it to yourself to read this article. You owe it to yourself to know the glorious facts about the United States Navy. You owe it to yourself to know that our Navy—your Navy—is already second, and well on its way to being the greatest Navy in the world. You owe it to yourself to line up squarely with Hearst's Magazine. Hearst's stands solidly behind the President. Hearst's knows how able are the men he has gathered about him. And Hearst's Magazine—unlike some of the feebler magazines—realizes that these men are doing things that will make you, and every red-blooded American proud—whenever you are told the real facts!

HEARST'S is going to give you the real facts. It's your war just as much as Secretary Daniels' war or Secretary Baker's war. Why, then, shouldn't you know exactly what Secretary Daniels and Secretary Baker are doing? Hearst's Magazine will tell you. You can find on any newsstand today Daniels' signed statement about the Navy. And next month, Hearst's will give you Secretary Baker's own statement on the Army. Aren't you more than ready for a patriotic constructive policy like Hearst's? Aren't you about tired of reading attacks on our ablest executives written, oftentimes, by men you would hesitate to put in complete charge of a corner grocery store?

TO Daniels, Baker, and the others who are making our Nation the chief figure in the world's most magnificent enterprise—Hearst's offers the chance to fling the Truth in the face of the puny pessimists, petty politicians and professional faultfinders.

To an audience of readers of Hearst's Magazine—a half million real Americans—patriotic, sincere, lovers of fair play—Secretary Daniels addresses himself. Are you one of them? Do you dare to face the facts? Are you willing to learn how good America really is?

If you don't want to think well of your Government, you won't want Hearst's. But—if you are open minded and really prefer to be patriotic, you won't fail to start the series with Secretary Daniels in the June

INDIANS TAKE FINAL FRAY FROM YANKEES WITH PAIR OF CIRCUIT SMASHES IN SEVENTH

HOME RUN EPIDEMIC IS FATAL TO YANKS

Joe Wood Again Breaks Out with Circuit Fever and Beats New York, 3 to 2.

O'NEILL ALSO IS STRICKEN

Cleveland Catcher Pounds Ball Out of Park and Helps Dethrone Russell.

A violent epidemic of home runs broke out among the Cleveland Indians at the Polo Grounds yesterday, and the Yanks finished on the sad end of a 3 to 2 score. Joe Wood, who has taken up the home run fad seriously, slapped the ball into the right field stand in the seventh while Roth was on the bases and tied the score. A few moments later Steve O'Neill larruped a homer into the bleachers and won the game right then and there.

Outside of that ferocious seventh, the Clevelands were blind before Allan Russell's pitching. Up to that time they got only one hit, Roth making a single in the fourth. Before Wood exposed the blow which tied the game, Al Walters and Russell met in the middle of the diamond and held a hurried conversation. No one knows whether they were talking about baseball or the price of fur coats in the Desert of Sahara.

The very next ball that Russell pitched after the chest-to-chest talk was a wild one on the outside. Wood went out after it and punched it into the right field stand. This was rather unusual for Joseph, because he usually laces them into the left field bleachers.

The Yanks didn't lose because opportunities to win were lacking, for golden chances bobbed up in the seventh and eighth, when it seemed possible to score half a dozen runs. After Walters had gone out at first in the seventh, Russell walked. Gilhooley hit a grounder to Ed Miller, who made a wild throw to second trying to force Russell, thus mussing up a chance for a possible double play. Peckinpaugh singled to centre and jammed the bases.

O'Loughlin Gets Out of the Way.

One would naturally assume that this layout was most encouraging with Home Run Baker at the bat. Umpire Silk O'Loughlin was posing in the diamond back of second base, and Baker requested Silk to camp somewhere else, as his noble figure was just in line with his batting eye as he glued it on the ball. Silk obligingly moved out of the line of Baker's vision, for the umpire is obliging anyway about almost anything except changing a decision.

Baker was too all-fired anxious to slam the ball out of the lot, and when Jim Bagby sent over a slow floater Baker swung with all his might and executed no damage whatever except to roll an easy bounder down to Ed Miller, who promptly tossed the ball home and forced Russell at the plate. Thus did Baker's impatience play havoc with a good chance to win. Derrill Pratt tried to make up for Baker's shortcomings, and he almost did it, for he hammered a terrific liner to centre field, but one might as well hit the ball right into a bushel basket as in the garden where Tris Speaker is on watch. Tris raced back and made a good catch.

Again in the eighth, the Yanks had everything set to start a big blowup on Bagby, but again the fuse was damp. After Pipp flied to centre, Bodie singled to left, and Miller hoisted a fly to Tuck Turner. Walters singled to centre, putting Ping on second. Ray Caldwell was rushed in as a pinch hitter for Russell, and what do you think he did? Shame on him, he whiffed!

The Yanks got a run in the first. With one gone, Peck walked and went to third on Baker's single to left. He scored on Pratt's sacrifice fly to Wood.

Pratt Hits Timely.

Gilhooley opened the third with a nice single to left and went to second on Peck's sacrifice. Baker's long drive was gathered in by Bobby Roth over near the right field wall, and Gilhooley went to third after the catch. Pratt very properly pickled a two-bagger to left and sent Gilhooley over the platter.

With the score 2 to 0 and Russell behaving himself, it looked like another occasion of joy for Huggins's lads. Roth got the only hit made off Russell up to the seventh, and Roth again got busy in the seventh. He cudgeled a two-bagger over against the left field stockade, and Wambsgans rolled an easy grounder to Peck. The Yank shortstop surprised everybody by failing to make an easy play on Roth at third, making a difficult throw to first instead and retiring Wamby.

Joe Wood then parked the ball into the grand stand and sent Roth home ahead of him, tying the score. Turner lifted a foul to Walters and Steve O'Neill walloped the ball into the bleachers, and that's about all there was to it.

Before the game, Pat Kyne presented Peckinpaugh with a gold watch for playing such a fine game Monday, and Wambsgans was presented with a diamond stickpin by Pat for stealing home in the same game. The Yanks received no presents for what they did yesterday.

The score:

BRAVES MAKE CLEAN SWEEP

Boston Takes Third Successive Game from Pirates.

PITTSBURGH, May 28.—The Boston Braves made a clean sweep of the three-game series with the Pittsburgh Pirates, winning again today, 6 to 2.

Sanders was hit hard by the visitors and he gave way to Jacobs in the fifth inning. The latter held Boston scoreless for the remainder of the game.

Manager Bezdek of the Pirates was ordered from the coaching lines by Umpire O'Day, and Third Baseman McKechnie was ordered out of the game at the same time when they protested too vigorously against decisions at the plate.

NORSE GIRL GAINS SEMI-FINAL ROUND

Plays Sterling Tennis in Winning Her Way Through Three Matches at Pelham.

The brilliant play of Miss Molla Bjurstedt, holder of the women's national singles championship, was the outstanding feature of the opening rounds of the annual women's invitation tennis tournament on the courts of the Pelham Country Club yesterday. With the lustre of her game in nowise dimmed by the meagre practice which the season has thus far afforded, the famous Norse girl forced her way through to the semi-final round of the event by winning three keenly waged matches.

In the first round she defeated Miss Helene Pollak at 6—0, 6—1, in the second round disposed of Miss Edith Handy at 6—1, 6—4, and in the third round earned the verdict over Mrs. Homer S. Green at 6—2, 6—3. It was this last match which gave the title holder her sharpest battle of the tournament, a contest in which the score hardly indicates the calibre of play.

There were eighteen players entered, and among them the best that the metropolitan district could call to the courts. Although it may be said that the matches ran true to form in the great majority of instances, there were several notable players who fell by the wayside. Among them was Miss Clare Cassel, who is playing in her first tournament since the United States National Lawn Tennis Association reconsidered its action in barring her from amateur tournaments more than a year ago. Miss Cassel won her second-round match against Mrs. Ernest Eberhardt at 6—2, 6—0, but could not withstand the spirited play of Mrs. Edward Raymond, former metropolitan champion, in the third round, and was beaten at 6—1, 7—5.

Another player, who caused something of a sensation in tennis circles during the Winter, Mrs. Johan Rogge, also was among the early victims. She was beaten in two love sets by Mrs. Homer S. Green. Doubtless the nearest approach to an upset was the defeat of Mrs. H. F. Morse, née Marion Vanderhoef, who was runner-up to Miss Bjurstedt in the national patriotic tournament at Philadelphia last Summer, by Miss Marie Wagner in the third round. The score was 6—1, 6—2.

The four players who attained the semi-final round brackets were Miss Wagner, Miss Molla Bjurstedt, Mrs. Edward Raymond, and Mrs. Rawson L. Wood. Mrs. Wood played some clever tennis in making her advance. In the second round she vanquished Mrs. Benjamin F. Briggs at 6—2, 6—4, and then won a sharply played three-set encounter from Mrs. E. V. Lynch at 4—6, 7—5, 6—0.

The play of Miss Bjurstedt was watched with especial interest, as the indoor season of last Winter seemed to indicate that the Norse queen was in as good, if not better, stroke than at any time since her tennis début in this country. In playing against Mrs. Green, Miss Bjurstedt was opposed by a contestant of remarkable resourcefulness and one who has the ability to make astonishing gets. The score of 6—2, 6—3 in favor of Miss Bjurstedt shows nothing of many keen rallies that were played.

Miss Bjurstedt found Mrs. Green equally good off both forehand and backhand, and she had to play carefully to make the openings for her famous passing shots down the lines or cross court. Mrs. Green's driving was deep, and as a result Miss Bjurstedt did not often essay the net attack which she employed with pronounced success during the latter part of last season. Her driving from the base line, or from behind it, often was hard and remarkably free from errors, but with Mrs. Green covering court by astonishing fleetness of foot the Norse girl had a stern contest on her hands before pulling out the victory.

From the way of the contest now it may be that the tournament of two years ago will be repeated as far as the final round is concerned. At that time Mrs. Raymond and Miss Bjurstedt were the rivals, and it appears that they will once again be the finalists. Miss Bjurstedt could hardly be expected to have much difficulty in disposing of Miss Wagner in the upper half semi-final. In the lower half there will doubtless be a merry contest between Mrs. Raymond and Mrs. Wood, and with a rather more severe game than her rival, Mrs. Raymond may force her way through to the final bracket.

The summaries:

First Round.—Miss Molla Bjurstedt defeated Miss Helene Pollak, 6—0, 6—1; Miss Carona Winn defeated Mrs. R. S. Leachman, 6—2, 2—6, 6—2.

Second Round.—Miss Marie Wagner defeated Mrs. L. G. Morris, 6—1, 6—2; Mrs. H. F. Morse defeated Miss Elizabeth Holden, 6—4, 5—7, 6—4; Mrs. Homer S. Green defeated Mrs. Johan Rogge, 6—0, 6—0; Miss Molla Bjurstedt defeated Miss Edith Handy, 6—1, 6—4; Mrs. Edward Raymond defeated Miss Carona Winn, 6—2, 6—3; Miss Clare Cassel defeated Mrs. Ernest Eberhardt, 6—2, 6—0; Mrs. Rawson L. Wood defeated Mrs. B. F. Briggs, 6—2, 6—4; Mrs. E. V. Lynch defeated Mrs. W. H. Pritchard, 6—2, 6—4.

Third Round.—Miss Marie Wagner defeated Mrs. H. F. Morse, 6—1, 6—2; Miss Molla Bjurstedt defeated Mrs. Homer S. Green, 6—2, 6—3; Mrs. Edward Raymond defeated Miss Clare Cassel, 6—1, 7—5; Mrs. Rawson L. Wood defeated Mrs. E. V. Lynch, 4—6, 7—5, 6—0.

BIG OFFER FOR CHEVROLET.

Veteran Driver Has Added Incentive to Win Handicap Race.

Louis Chevrolet, speedway champion of 1917, has an added incentive to win the Harkness Handicap at Sheepshead Bay Speedway tomorrow afternoon. Chevrolet last night received an offer of $5,000 to compete in the Chicago Auto Derby on June 22, provided he finishes first in the big 100-mile race at the seaside course Memorial Day. The offer was made by Charles H. Porter, who is managing the Chicago event.

Chevrolet will be the only driver who will start from scratch, and he will have to break all existing records for 100 miles in order to flash across the finish line ahead of such pilots as Ralph De Palma, Dario Resta, Barney Oldfield, Ralph Mulford, Ira Vail, Eddie Hearn, Dan Hickey, Tommy Milton, and a dozen others.

All the drivers who will start in the Harkness event will hold a meeting today with Fred J. Wagner, starter and handicapper, and receive their handicaps for the Futurity Handicap, which will be run in two heats and a final at ten miles. De Palma and Resta will start from scratch in the two heats.

SINGER MEET IS ARRANGED.

Annual Spring Athletic Carnival to be Held June 9.

The annual Spring track and field meet of the Singer Employes Association will be held at Bennett Field, Elizabeth, N. J., June 9, according to an announcement made yesterday. The proceeds from the meet will be donated to the American Red Cross. Seven events have been listed for A. A. U. athletes, including a 100-yard dash, handicap; 1,000-yard run, handicap; three-mile walk, novice; one-mile run, novice; three-mile run, handicap; two-mile interleague relay race, and a two-mile bicycle race, handicap. In addition there will be a one-mile heavy marching order race for enlisted men of both branches of the country's service, and four events for members of the association.

Jersey Boxing Tonight.

Legalized boxing in the State of New Jersey will get started this evening under the recently adopted Hurley law, with the postponed show of the Armory Athletic Association of Jersey City. The principal contest of eight rounds will bring together Frankie Callahan, Brooklyn's sturdy lightweight, and Vic Moran of New Orleans. In addition there will be several bouts of four and six rounds duration.

MRS. STOCKTON LEADS FIELD

Has Low Gross of 95 in Women's One-Day Tourney at Fairview.

Mrs. L. C. Stockton of Raritan Valley led a field of twenty women golfers who participated in the one-day tournament of the Women's Metropolitan Golf Association on the links of the Fairview Country Club yesterday. Mrs. Stockton went over the course for a 95, earning the day's low gross prize. Miss Beatrice Lounsberry of the Bedford Country Club accounted for the low net prize with a card of 98, 2—96. In an approaching and putting competition Mrs. Henry Blumenthal was successful, while Mrs. S. F. Dribben was the runner-up.

PAWLING WINS ON LINKS.

Lawrenceville Golfers Are Defeated by a Score of 7 to 5.

The golf team of Pawling School won its second consecutive victory this season when it triumphed over Lawrenceville in a match yesterday on the Pawling links, at Pawling, N. Y., by the score of 7 to 5. The points were distributed under the Nassau system. In three of the four matches Pawling victories were scored. Stacey Robeson led the successful team in its triumph with a three-point victory over Battin of Lawrenceville, who was defeated 9 and 7.

PAWLING.	Pts.	LAWRENCEVILLE.	Pts.
Robeson	3	Battin	0
Conklin	2	Schmerz	1
Babcock	2	Stracheon	1
Posener	0	Dacken	3
Total	7	Total	5

Robeson defeated Battin, 9 and 7; Conklin defeated Schmerz, 4 and 3; Babcock defeated Stracheon, 2 up; Dacken defeated Posener, 6 and 4.

NEWS OF THE LINKS.

Entries close tonight for the tournament scheduled to start on the Bayside links tomorrow. It does not appear to be generally understood that the open event, which will be held under the auspices of the Matanwok Golf Club, will continue on Friday and Saturday. There will be a medal play test in the morning, followed by the first match round after luncheon. Dr. A. T. Haight, winner of the Bayside open last Fall, expects to play again.

Other attractions also are carded. They include a ball sweepstakes and a flag contest. There will be an entrance fee of $1, the idea being to turn over the entire proceeds to the Commission on Training Camp Activities.

In a tournament extending over a period of several weeks J. M. Clark won the title "champion of automobile row" on the links of the Dunwoodie Country Club yesterday. In the semi-final round J. Skelly beat E. H. Larson 2 up and Clark won from Percy Barton by default. In the final, handicap conditions, Clark, although asked to concede his opponent an initial advantage of 8 up, defeated Skelly by a 2 and 1 margin. Other prize winners were as follows: First beaten division, A. Van Alstyne; second beaten division, W. C. Poertner; third beaten division, George McCutcheon.

The course of the Shawnee Country Club will be opened for the season today, and the program calls for four tournaments, the same as last year. As usual, the women will be the first to gather, June 19 to 22 being set aside for their benefit. July 18 to 20 will see the amateurs playing for the Buckwood trophy, while on Aug. 7 and 8 the professionals will hold forth. The Fall invitation dates are Oct. 10 to 12.

CAPABLANCA HELD TO DRAW

Chajes Provides Struggle Against Cuban Chess Expert.

For the third time since his return to New York José R. Capablanca, the Cuban chess champion, took part yesterday in a rapid transit tournament at the Manhattan Chess Club and for the third time he captured the first prize without the loss of a game, but for the first time he failed to make a clean score. His final total was 4½—½. To Oscar Chajes, State champion, felt the distinction of making a draw with the Cuban expert, but the latter had to be content with second prize on account of a loss to Janowski of Paris, whom he defeated recently in a set match.

ROWING REGATTA ARRANGED

Annual Races on Harlem River to Have New Features.

One of the most interesting features of the annual regatta of the New York Rowing Association, which will be held over the Harlem River course tomorrow will be the races for crews from the naval training stations. The embryo sailors are entered in a twelve-oared cutter race. So many crews entered the Pelham Bay station that elimination races had to be held to reduce the entry to two crews. Crews will also be entered from the training ship Granite State, and possibly from several of the battleships.

One schoolboy race is on the program, in which New Rochelle and Stuyvesant will compete, and in another, a double-gig event, Morris and Stuyvesant are the entrants.

The other events are the usual ones of the annual regatta. Entries have been received from the Nonpariel, the Metropolitan, the Bohemian, the Active, and the Woodcliff Clubs. More than 25 per cent. of the membership in the various boat clubs is now in the service, and for this reason there will be no effort to have races for seniors and juniors. The men will be grouped together as the case may demand.

TANK CORPS PLANS GAMES.

Athletic Contests Being Arranged at Camp Colt for Tomorrow.

CAMP COLT, Gettysburg, Penn., May 28.—A military athletic meet has been arranged by the Tank Corps, U. S. A., to be held at Nixon Field, home of Pennsylvania College in Gettysburg, on Memorial Day, in which a number of the best boxers and wrestlers in the United States Army will be seen in action. Contests in the ring and on the mat will be the features, and in addition there will be a number of track and field events and a baseball contest, which will bring together the crack nine of Camp Colt and another first-class team.

Among the events on the program, in addition to the boxing, wrestling, and baseball contests, are 100-yard dash, 220-yard hurdle race, one-mile relay race, one-mile run and a pole vault. That the competition will be keen is evidenced by the spirit with which the various companies have entered into their preliminary training. The relay race will draw a team from every battalion in the camp. When the trial races were held several of the company teams registered scores that came close to rivaling the figures recorded by the competing teams in the last University of Pennsylvania relay carnival. As a matter of fact many of the teams will be composed of former university men who represented their Alma Maters on the cinderpath.

Special trains will be run into Gettysburg on Memorial Day for the annual exercises there. The meet will not start until 2:30, just after the termination of the exercises.

Belgians to Play Soccer Here.

WASHINGTON, May 28.—The champion soccer team of the Belgian Army, which has defeated crack British, French, and Italian elevens, has challenged any soccer teams in America, the Commission on Training Camp Activities announced today. The Belgians would play in the larger cities of the country and in army and navy camps and stipulate that the proceeds go to war relief.

JOCKEY IS CHEERED FOR SKILLFUL RIDE

Racegoers at Belmont Park yesterday paid a tribute to Johnny Loftus that is seldom earned by jockeys these days when he brought A. K. Macomber's Stargazer home first in the Garden City Handicap after the horse had been practically left at the post. When he returned to the scales to weigh out the rider was the recipient of hearty cheers from the crowd that had liberally supported the Macomber four-year-old. That the applause was meant for the jockey and not for the horse was made evident when the cheers were renewed as Loftus came out of the stand after making his weight.

Loftus has long been regarded as the premier jockey, and the fact that he had the mount on Stargazer in the feature race had much to do with the colt being backed from 7 to 5 to an odds-on favorite. A storm broke just before the race and the horses went to the six and a half furlong post for the start in a heavy rain.

Stargazer had the inside position in the field of seven good handicap performers, but his supporters received a shock when he reared as the barrier went up, and before he got in motion his competitors were hustling to the bend, with the leaders fifteen or twenty lengths in advance of the favorite.

There were some shifty sprinters in front of him, with Rhine Maiden and Tea Caddy showing the way, so that Loftus would have been justified if he had retired from the chase, especially as the event was a handicap, with the weights supposedly adjusted to a nicety. Instead of giving up the fight, however, Loftus sat down to ride with all the skill and finish at his command.

Gradually he worked his way through the field until at the stretch turn he saw an opening and shot his mount through to emerge in third place, but still far behind Tea Caddy and Rhine Maiden, which had the race to themselves many lengths in front. The task of Loftus and Stargazer looked hopeless, but it was evident that the jockey was making a bold bid to overcome his early disadvantage and land the Macomber colors in front. The crowd cheered his gallant effort, and, gaining on the leaders at every stride, Loftus redoubled his efforts in the last sixteenth and Stargazer closed with a rush that landed him a neck in front of Tea Caddy, which beat Rhine Maiden a nose for the place.

Before the rain made the track slow the Brighton Stable's Flags showed great speed when he galloped home in the second race for three-year-olds, in which he was a prohibitive favorite. Flags ran the five and a half furlongs in 1:04 2-5, which is three-fifths of a second slower than the track record.

Large fields went to the post for both the two-year-old races, but in the first the public had the satisfaction of selecting the winner in Mrs. R. L. Bressler's Sherman A., a son of Von Tromp, that easily defeated G. D. Widener's Osgood.

John E. Madden caused an upset in the other race for two-year-olds, which was confined to fillies and had many supposed good things. The Master of Hamburg Place sent Ambassador III., an imported daughter of Sweeper, to the post, and in a tight finish she won from Major Belmont's Duchess Lace, with C. E. Mickelwait's Zuleika third.

GOVERNMENT GETS HORSES.

A. K. Macomber Presents More Sires for Remount Purposes.

A. K. Macomber Monday donated the colt War Victory to the breeding bureau of the Jockey Club, and yesterday, in view of the demand for thoroughbred sires to get cavalry remounts, he decided to make a further gift. Included in the list of half a dozen well bred horses is Paicines, a half-brother to Mr. Macomber's Preakness winner, War Cloud. The Federal authorities will be notified that any and all of these horses are at their disposal. The new lot are quartered in Kentucky, but War Victory is at Belmont Park and will be inspected by an agent of the Government on Saturday. The horses given by Mr. Macomber and their breeding follow:

Paicines, (imp.,) b. h., 4 years, by Sunstar-Dreamy, by Persimmon; War God, b. h., 3 years, by Uncle-Tehera, by Nasturtium; William S. Culbertson, (imp.,) b. h., 3 years, by Sunstar-Cannie Lassie, by Ayrshire; War Dream, (imp.,) br. h., 2 years, by Sunstar-Cannie Lassie, by Ayrshire; War Gun, (imp.,) b. h., 3 years, by Sunstar-St. Olive, by St. Simon; War Call, (imp.,) ch. h., 2 years, by Cylgad-Helium, by Sundridge.

The Brighton Stable has bought from J. S. McClintock of Lexington, Ky., the dam of his good colt Lord Brighton, Miss Crittenden is by Royal Flush, 3d, dam Delicia, by Delpaso II. Included in the purchase was a filly foaled by Ballot and a yearling by The Manager, out of Miss Crittenden. The mare has been bred back to Ballot and is believed to be in foal.

J. E. Widener and Thomas Welsh were not the only turfmen interested in Trompe La Mort's victory in the Metropolitan. John Sanford owns Kilconan, by Ladas, the dam of Verwood, sire of the Metropolitan winner, while A. H. Diaz of Cuba, who also saw the race, owns Orestes, a half-brother to Verwood.

SAILOR ATHLETES HOLD TRACK MEET

Engine Company Squad of Granite State Proves Superior in N. Y. A. C. Games.

Sailor duties were forgotten yesterday on the training ship U. S. S. Granite State, moored at the foot of West Ninety-sixth Street, as the bluejackets frolicked in a track and field meet provided by the New York Athletic Club. In a program of six events, concluding with a rowing race in which two cutters and a whaleboat were propelled by strong sailor arms through the Hudson, 100 of the men competed.

Representatives of the Gas Engine Company predominated. They won three events and were placed third in two others. In the 100-yard dash A. G. Dix registered the first Gas Engine Company victory, and the second came in the three-legged race, when J. Farrell and F. H. Haines hobbled to an easy triumph. The third victory was scored in the medicine ball team race, when Team No. 1 was successful.

The sailors got plenty of amusement out of the three-legged event, which was held after the storm. The field was dotted with several miniature lakes, and several of the teams toppled into them.

The biggest thrill came in the boat race over a mile stretch of the Hudson, downsteam. The Second Division crew, Barney Malone coxswain, scored convincingly in this, leading the Third Division in a spirited sprint by about one length of open water.

Several boxing exhibitions were held, in which Joe Welling, Chicago lightweight, now of the U. S. S. Granite State, opposed Tommy Murphy; Joe Bonds, former Tacoma (Wash.) heavyweight, also of the Granite State, boxed Frank Sprague, and Billy Grupp vs. Frank Sprague.

The summaries:

100-Yard Dash.—Won by A. G. Dix, Gas Engine Company; Paul Delaney, Gas Engine Company, second; C. E. Bond, First Division, third. Time—0:12 2-5.

Three-Legged Race.—Won by J. Farrell and F. H. Haines, Gas Engine Company; A. F. Cutler, First Division, and W. A. Gibbons, Third Division, second; L. A. Van Vorst and F. L. Brown, Third Division, third. Time—0:15 1-5.

12-Pound Shot Put.—Won by George Berger, Second Division, 36 feet 9 inches; Joe Bonds, Commissary Department, 36 feet 4 inches, second; E. E. Lowe, Gas Engine Company, 35 feet 8 inches third.

Rescue Race.—Won by J. F. Horrigan and A. F. Cutler, First Division; J. P. Coyne, First Division, and E. N. Cordova, Third Division, second; E. E. Lowe and H. C. Brown, Gas Engine Company, third. Time—0:24 4-5.

Medicine Ball Team Race, (ten-Men Teams.)—Won by Gas Engine Company Team 1; Gas Engine Company Team 2, second; Ship's Company, third. Time—1:09.

Cutter and Whaleboat Rowing Race, (distance one mile.)—Won by Second Division crew; Third Division crew, second; First Division crew, third. No time taken.

SEEKERS OF LOANS EMBARRASS BOARD

Accommodation Must Be Obtained Through Banks, War Finance Directors Explain.

DIRECT LOANS TO BE RARE

Misconception of Corporation's Functions, Especially by Public Utility Concerns, Pointed Out.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 28.—The War Finance Corporation, organized last week, finds the heaviest end of its business to be the consideration of applications for loans from the large capitalization placed by Congress in the control of the corporation.

The primary purpose served in creating the corporation was to finance certain phases of war preparedness—to make advances to war industries. The corporation also possesses power to finance war industries by credit through the banks, good war paper being made the basis, not only of loans, but also of issues of Federal Reserve notes. But the business now coming to the new corporation seems mainly to be applications for direct loans from the capital placed in the hands of the Directors of the corporation as a trust and a basis for the larger financial operations which it must carry through to win the war.

The Directors have found the pressure for direct loans so great that it is necessary to remove an erroneous impression as to the functions of the War Finance Corporations. The Directors today issued a statement in which they say:

"The resources of the War Finance Corporation are not intended to be loaned directly to war industries, unless in an exceptional case, but only indirectly through the banks. As the Secretary of the Treasury stated before the committees of Congress when the bill was under consideration, 'The provision of the bill permitting direct loans by the corporation, in exceptional cases, is intended to provide for those rare instances where it may be made to appear to the corporation that a meritorious borrower is being unwisely discriminated against by the banks.'

"The corporation was organized to provide an instrumentality to which the banks of the country could resort to obtain accommodation on advances made by them to war industries upon a character of security not available for rediscount at a Federal Reserve Bank. It is hoped that as need arises the banks of the country will avail themselves of the facilities thus afforded, so that they may be amply able to extend credit to those industries of the country which are necessary or contributory to the prosecution of the war.

"From the applications received by the War Finance Corporation there seems to be an impression in certain quarters that the corporation was specially designed to provide funds for meeting maturing obligations, particularly those of public utility companies. The law expressly provides that the corporation shall not make direct advances to provide funds to meet such maturing obligations, except possibly in some rare case which could clearly be brought within the 'exceptional cases clause.' Of course, the corporation will stand ready to lend its assistance to banks and bankers in proper cases where they have themselves made advances to war industries, whether for the purpose of meeting maturing obligations or otherwise, and direct advances in deserving cases that come clearly within the provisions of the law.

Public Utility Demands.

"Holders of maturing obligations, whether of public utilities or of other concerns which may find themselves unable, because of temporary conditions, to meet their commitments punctually should consider whether, in the public interest, as well as their own, they should not co-operate by consenting to reasonable renewals. Public utility companies particularly, in co-operation with the communities in which they operate, ing themselves to the changed conditions brought about by the war.

"No machinery has been specially provided for direct purchases of obligations of the public utilities, whether to meet maturities or otherwise, either through the War Finance Corporation or through any other Governmental agency. The situation of these public utility companies is, therefore, quite different from that of the railroads, where Congress has made specific provision for the purchase of their securities by the Government in certain exigencies, yet even the railroads are expected, wherever possible, to meet their own maturities and to pay what the money is worth to accomplish that end.

"It must be remembered that the railroads are under Federal operation, and that their rates are subject to Federal control, and that the Government therefore is in a position to see to it that their charges shall be sufficient to meet the cost of the service rendered. In the case of the public utilities, however, neither their operation nor their rates are subject to Federal control. Wherever the charges do not amount to adequate compensation for the services rendered, relief can be had only through the appropriate local authorities, and time is essential to enable the companies and the communities in which they operate to reach a satisfactory solution of this important problem. It is not a problem which can be disposed of by having the Federal Government through the War Finance Corporation assume the burden of financing the operations of these local companies, except in exceptional circumstances which may make it a matter of national importance that advances should be made.

"The local authorities will no doubt respond as promptly as possible, in cases where relief is needed because of changed conditions, as it is clear that the soundness and efficiency of public utilities are intimately connected with a vigorous and successful prosecution of the war."

The financial condition of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit System was laid before the War Finance Corporation Directors today in support of an application for a loan. President Williams and the general counsel of the road discussed the question for nearly two hours. The Directors bave no intimation of what their course would be. The hearing was behind closed doors.

KLAW REGRETS ACTORS' APPEAL TO PRESIDENT

Head of Managers' Association Says Contract Itself Provides for Course in Event of Violation.

The appeal made by the Actors' Equity Association to President Wilson regarding the alleged failure of theatrical managers to live up to their agreements with the actors yesterday brought from several managers denials that they have been violating any of the clauses of the standard contract. Marc Klaw, President of the United Managers' Protective Association, issued a statement in which he declared that the contract itself provides for the course to be pursued in the event of violation, and that he could see no ground for the appeal to the President.

"Its tone is uncalled for," Mr. Klaw said, "and I regret that the President of the United States should be burdened with complaints of this character. No member of the Actors' Equity Association, I am sure, will accuse me of being inimical to its interest, as I presided at all conferences which led to the adoption of the equity contract, and was distinctly favorable to it in its present shape. The managers' association could not bind its individual members to the adoption of that contract, but, inasmuch as they asked all to adopt it, and the contract itself provides for the course to be pursued in the event of any violation of it, I cannot see any ground for this appeal to the President of the United States.

"The whole tone of Francis Wilson's letter is a surprise to me. The question of patriotism should not be lugged into it at all. Managers of the United States, as well as actors, have shown themselves ready and willing. Personally, I don't think they are entitled to a pat on the back for that."

SEES ROOM FOR FEW IN PALESTINE COLONY

Viscount Bryce Finds Country Able to Support Not More Than 300,000 Additional Souls.

MIGHT GAIN BY IRRIGATION

With Large Capital Expenditure Water Could Be Had to Make Land Serve 600,000.

The future of Palestine is discussed by Viscount Bryce in an article contributed by him to the June number of the Menorah Journal, which publishes a number of articles by noted thinkers and students.

In the opinion of Viscount Bryce, Palestine, which now has a population somewhat less than 650,000, can support by agriculture an additional population of 300,000 under present conditions and a second addition of 300,000, after irrigation dams and other construction works have been built.

"Upon the political aspects of the question of Jewish settlement in Palestine I cannot attempt to enter," says Viscount Bryce, "for they involve difficult questions, on some of which it is too soon to speak with confidence. But there are economic problems on which attention may now at once begin to be fixed. What field does the country now present for colonization, and how can its resources be developed?

"It is a small country. The area of the Kingdom of Solomon was about as large as that of the State of Massachusetts. But Palestine had not then, and never has had, and has not now, any well defined boundary except the sea on the west. But let us take it, as understood today, at about 10,000 square miles. Much of this area is too dry and rocky for tillage; large parts are too dry even for cattle or sheep. Some large tracts might be irrigated, and would then yield rich crops, but to construct irrigation works would require considerable capital expenditure. There is no water power, except in the Jordan, which has a rapid fall from the Sea of Galilee to the Dead Sea, and it is also the only important stream from which water could be drawn for irrigation. So far as is known, no minerals exist in quantities that would repay working. Its population must therefore depend on agriculture. This was estimated before the war at about 650,000. But as many have died of want, or been killed by the Turks, within the last three years, the number must be now smaller. About two-thirds are Moslems, speaking Arabic—some very fanatical. No one would propose to eject them from their lands, so the present question is: For how many immigrants can room be found?

"Taking the country as it stands, (including the cultivable parts of the district east of the Jordan,) probably not more than about 300,000. If, however, the middle and lower Jordan Valley were irrigated, if reservoirs of water from the Winter and Spring rains were provided, if the ancient cisterns were repaired, if the terrace cultivation on the slopes of the hills were replanted with trees, for the land is now terribly bare, it would be possible to provide work and sustenance for many more, perhaps for another 300,000, or an even larger number.

FAVOR JEWISH NATION.

Speaker Tells of the New Jerusalem Already in the Making.

Under the auspices of the Metropolis Club, 105 West Fifty-seventh Street, a dinner was held there last night, bringing together many prominent Jewish people to discuss the possibility of creating a Jewish State in Palestine.

Former Judge Moses H. Grossman, who presided over the discussion, called upon the assemblage to give a rising toast to President Wilson.

The first speaker was Ittamar Ben Aizi, a native of Palestine and the editor of the first daily paper ever published in Jerusalem. After paying a glowing tribute to the British Army for the conquest of Palestine, the speaker said:

"We are living again in Palestine just as Joshua lived. The Jewish colony there already has set itself to the arduous task of building the new Jerusalem. Many of you Jews in America will soon be coming over to the land of your forefathers."

Lieut. Col. J. Jamison of the British-Canadian Recruiting Mission, who has spent a year in Palestine with the British Army, said it was a happy day when the British Army wrenched Jerusalem from the Turks.

"The British Army defending Jerusalem," he added, "expect another attack in Palestine. Turkey does not need much of a force to fight Russia in the south and therefore she can muster a great army to oppose Britain in Palestine. Fourteen per cent. of the people of England, Scotland, and Wales have already become soldiers. We need more. That is why I am here with the British-Canadian Mission to enlist all British subjects and as many Jews as possible to help us fight this war out in Palestine."

"I must not be accused of preaching the dangerous doctrine of dual nationality," said Judge Julian W. Mack of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals, the next speaker, "when I say that every Jew, no matter in which country he lives, ought to favor the establishment of a Jewish State in Palestine. I don't want all Jews to go back to Jerusalem. I want the Jews to remain scattered all over the face of the earth just as they have been since ancient times, but I do want those who desire to go to Palestine and establish a State to have the privilege and opportunity of doing so. There ought to be something more than our religious bond to hold the Jews before the world as a people."

Captain David Albala of the Serbian Legation and Yehuda Barak, a former merchant of Palestine, also spoke.

WHITMAN ADDRESSES JEWS.

Praises Loyalty at B'rith Abraham National Convention.

Governor Whitman, at the new Star Casino, 107th Street and Lexington Avenue, last night addressed the final session of the three-day convention of the United States Grand Lodge, Independent Order B'rith Abraham. More than 2,000 members and delegates were present.

The Governor said the Jews deserved great praise for standing behind President Wilson in these troublous times. He declared that the loyalty of American Jewry could never be questioned, and asserted that the war, among other things, had brought Gentiles and Jews to a better understanding.

The election of officers resulted as follows:

Grand Master, Leon Sanders; First Deputy Grand Master, Max Silverstein; Second Deputy Grand Master, William Bluestin; Grand Secretary, Max L. Hollander; Grand Treasurer, David Goldberg; Grand Trustee, Isaac Frank.

All of the new officers live in New York excepting George I. Cohen, whose home is in Boston.

SOUSA HERE FOR FESTIVAL.

He Will Lead Chorus of 10,000 Voices at Polo Grounds June 2.

Lieutenant John Philip Sousa arrived yesterday from Detroit, where his navy band has been playing in aid of the Red Cross. He comes to conduct the final rehearsals of Mendelssohn's "Elijah," in which he will lead his own band and a chorus of 10,000 voices on Sunday, June 2, at the War Savings Committee's Thrift Stamp Festival at the Polo Grounds. On this occasion there will be joined with his own band, which consists of eighty pieces, and 120 others selected from the Metropolitan Opera and the New York Symphony Orchestras.

Plans have been submitted, the committee announced yesterday, to repeat the Thrift Festival in twenty large cities. For these festivals the committee has asked the services of Lieutenant Sousa and his band, Mme. Schumann-Heink, Mme. Frances Alda, Leon Rothier, Miss Marie Sundelius, Charles Harrison, and Oscar Seagle.

SPECIALISTS SEE ANNA HELD

Six Called Into Consultation—Her Condition Unchanged.

Miss Anna Held's attending physician in a statement he issued last night concerning his patient's condition said that six blood and bone specialists had been called into consultation on the case—a rare disease of the bones and bone marrow—and that their conclusions would be contained in a statement which would be issued today. One of the specialists, it was learned, was Dr. Ernest Laplace, Professor of Surgery in Medico-Chirurgical College in Philadelphia.

The actress's condition remained unchanged last night, it was announced, but she continued to be cheerful in spite of a fatal prognosis held out for her.

CITY WILL MOURN FOR DEAD IN FRANCE

In Accordance with President's Proclamation, Memorial Day Will Be One of Prayer.

FIELD MASS AT BATTERY

100 Jewish Cantors Will Sing Hymn for Dead in Great Parade on the East Side.

New York City will observe tomorrow a Memorial Day of solemnity, for, in addition to commemorating its sons who fell in earlier wars, it will pay tribute to the soldiers and sailors who have made the last great sacrifice during the year. While the observances are in progress over here soldiers in France will decorate the graves of their comrades whose names are freshest on the nation's list of heroes.

In accordance with the President's proclamation urging that the day be one of deep prayer, special services will be held by all denominations. On the east side 20,000 persons will participate in a parade which will march past Governor Whitman in a reviewing stand in Delancey Street. During the procession more than one hundred Jewish cantors will sing the Jewish hymn for the dead, and during the two hours the parade is expected to last all business activity on the east side will be suspended.

Final arrangements for the military field mass in Battery Park tomorrow morning were completed last night. At 10:30 o'clock the religious procession will start from the Church of Our Lady of the Rosary in State Street, and with Cardinal Farley and Bishop Hayes at the head, will march around Battery Park and thence to the altar erected in its centre. The committee in charge of the observances is headed by Cardinal Farley, and includes Charles M. Schwab, Director General of the Emergency Fleet Corporation; Edward N. Hurley, head of the United States Shipping Board; Morgan J. O'Brien, Charles E. McCarthy, William D. Guthrie, Thomas F. Ryan, Victor J. Dowling, Nicholas F. Brady, and Arthur S. Somers. At the conclusion of the mass, a letter will be read from President Wilson, in answer to the invitation extended to him, followed by the singing of "The Star-Spangled Banner" by the audience in the park. The anthems of the Allies, played by the bands from the Fire Department and the office of the Borough President, will close the day's program.

Memorial exercises conducted by Rabbi Jacob Tarlau will be held in the Educational Alliance Building, 197 East Broadway, at 10 o'clock, and an address will be delivered by Samuel Strauss. A union prayer service, participated in by several Harlem congregations, will be held at 10:30 o'clock at the Congregation Kol Israel, 24 West 114th Street. Prayers will be offered by Rabbi M. A. Margolis, Rabbi Herbert S. Goldstein, and Rabbi Meisel. Speeches will be made by Congressman Isaac Siegel, Rabbi Goldstein, and Rabbi B. Z. Pearl.

FAST TIME FOR AIR MAIL.

Liberty Motor Makes Trip from Philadelphia Under an Hour.

Yesterday was one of the best days so far for the air mail service despite a hazy atmosphere, which it was feared at first might interfere with the pilots.

Lieutenant Bonsal made the flight to Philadelphia and back, leaving Belmont Park at 11:29 A. M. and reaching Philadelphia at 12:30. He received the mail there from the Washington carrier, also that from Philadelphia, and started north with it at 1:42, reaching Belmont Park at 2:32, less than an hour.

It was just as the races were starting, and his arrival created another demonstration similar to that of Monday. Both going and returning he used a Liberty motor plane, and when he started out this forenoon he was accompanied by Lieutenant Webb in another plane with Liberty motor equipment, which Webb took to Philadelhia for use on the Washington-Philadelphia leg of the route. There was 150 pounds of mail going to Philadelphia and 135 returning.

WOMAN'S FORUM ACTS TRAVESTY ON HENRY VIII

Wives and Near Wives of Doughty King Resurrect Him in Miss Boswell's Skit at the Rivoli.

Henry VIII., Bluff King Hal, was resurrected with his six wives at the annual Forum Follies, given by the Woman's Forum yesterday at the Rivoli Theatre, and the doughty monarch was made to understand that the forum had no use for the kind of a feminist that he was.

Forum Follies has always been devoted to the exploitation of forum talent. Last year—when the "Follies" was given at the Rialto—and this year at the Rivoli, both houses given through the courtesy of the manager, Samuel L. Rothapfel, the program has been more elaborate with moving pictures, the orchestra of the house, and different professional features, but the numbers that the women, who, as yesterday, packed the house, like best are those which show real home talent. Miss Helen Varick Boswell, President of the forum, wrote the Henry VIII. skit. Its object was to give the "wives and near wives" (according to the program) of the monarch an opportunity to talk over the characteristics of their collective husband, something his autocratic methods of disposing of wives had prevented their doing in life.

There was nothing mean about the forum women in their travesty of the man whom they considered had taken unfair advantages of members of their sex, for they allowed him to have his innings on the stage, and there was not a wife or near-wife of the lot who made a more magnificent appearance than did King Henry, as he was represented by Miss Florence Guernsey. A portly gentleman of pompous mien, robed in crimson velvet and with small, white, jeweled hands, he opened the skit by walking majestically across the stage back of hanging gauzes. Then, following the reunion of the Queens, a seance, at which he was supposed to listen on the outside, he was permitted to make farewell remarks, though not without repression.

Katherine Parr, the last of Henry's Queens, was the first to appear, being given this prominence because "a woman who buried Henry the Eighth was one to be reckoned with." Catherine of Aragon, the first wife, was next to appear and admitted that at first Henry had not been so bad, but that finally she was so glad to be rid of him that she had no hard feeling to any of the women who had taken her place. Anne Boleyn boasted of having died in her bed; Jane Seymour said she loved candy and the King did not. The Marchioness de Montreuil said that she had been too wise to marry Henry, and Anne of Cleves, who acknowledged that she was Dutch and not good looking, said that whatever she was she was "much too good for Henry." When the King made a final appearance he was quietly snubbed when he told the women in a casual manner to "fade away."

"No, they will not, Henry," said Miss Boswell, who was the History Lady and as beautiful as any of the Queens, wearing a giddy crimson frock. "You lived in the sixteenth century. We are twentieth century women and have the vote."

The Queens were Mrs. Anna Lazear Allan, Mrs. I. Brooke Clarke, Mrs. Wayne, Mrs. Stanley K. Greene, Mrs. Ambrose Higgins, Mrs. Louis Whiting Gay, and Mrs. Roy Emery Fletcher. Mrs. John Francis Yawger, President of the City Federation of Women's Clubs, headed another skit, "The Club Knitting Class," among whose members were Presidents of individual organizations, among them Miss Evelyn Goldsmith, Mrs. Walter S. Comley, Mrs. Otto Hahn, Mrs. Everett M. Harter, and Mrs. Austin M. Palmer.

Not to Direct Boston Symphony.

LONDON, May 28.—Sir Henry Joseph Wood has decided not to accept the offer to become conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra. He will remain in London.

FULTON THEATRE LEASED.

Oliver D. Bailey and N. D. Smith Take Playhouse from Sept. 2.

A lease was executed yesterday by which the Fulton Theatre was taken over for a term of years by Oliver D. Bailey and N. D. Smith, the former a playwright and the author of "Pay Day" and "Branded," both of which were produced in New York. The theatre was rented from the Henry B. Harris estate at an annual rental said to be $40,000, and the lessors will take possession on Sept. 2.

The Fulton is now occupied by the Actors' and Authors' Theatre.

Seven Theatres to Close Saturday.

This week's hot weather is having its effect upon the theatres, and seven attractions are already announced to terminate their engagements this week. They are "Nancy Lee," at the Hudson; "A Cure for Curables," at the Thirty-ninth Street; "The Copperhead," at the Shubert; "Jack o' Lantern," at the Globe; "Belinda," at the Empire; "Seven Days Leave," at the Park, and the one-act plays at the Greenwich Village Theatre. In all but one of these cases the theatres probably will remain closed for the Summer.

KITCHIN SEES PLOT IN REVENUE BILL

large majority of the House and Senate were opposed to such undertaking, I ceased further insistence upon its consideration and at once began to make efforts to so arrange the legislative program that we would get away by July 1. I conferred with the minority leader and many other members of the minority, also with the Chairmen of the various committees relative to the speeding up of legislation. I assured them that we would not have a tax measure and, therefore, that we could get through the business in time to adjourn by July 1.

Tribute to Minority Co-operation.

"Many of us believed and all hoped that by mutual, earnest co-operation it was possible and probable to dispose of the legislative program and adjourn by July 1. We went to work to that end. I took the matter up with the leaders in the Senate on both sides, and the same assurances that no tax measure was included in the session's program were made. All agreed to co-operate in facilitating the consideration and passage of the necessary war measures and the appropriation bills in time to get through by July 1, if possible, and we all thought it possible and probable.

"I want to say that there has been upon the part of the minority, as well as the majority, an absolute keeping of good faith, both here and in the Senate, and today the program is in such advanced condition that, without a tax measure, we would be ready to adjourn by July 1. The minority has not forced the majority to bring in a special rule to consider any measure on the present program. The minority has consented to dispense with calendar Wednesdays and unanimous consent Mondays, whenever unanimous consent requests were made. While some did not favor all the measures on the program, or all the measures that have been presented as war measures, in toto, not one has attempted to filibuster or delay the consideration of these measures, but were willing to come to a showdown and vote.

"I wish to say that when I saw the notice for the first time—and it was the first intimation I had from any quarter—in The New York World, about May 10, that the Secretary of the Treasury would demand and insist upon a revenue measure at this session, I was the most surprised, the most amazed man in this body. I understood just a few weeks before that no revenue measure was in contemplation at all. I was firmly convinced that it was not necessary to enact revenue legislation at this session and that it was unwise, under all the circumstances, to undertake such a bill at this late date in the session.

"But the President of the United States, Commander in Chief of the army and navy of the United States, has declared otherwise. He has given it as his opinion that it is necessary that proper and just revenue measures be put upon the statute books before this session closes. Although, as I said, I do not believe there is an absolute necessity for the passage of such a measure at this session, yet when the Commander in Chief speaks I believe, under the present circumstances, that we should defer to his judgment. A refusal would be misconstrued and would be heralded by every enemy throughout the world, and especially in the Central Powers, as a split between the Congress and the Commander in Chief, and that Congress had refused to give him the necessary money to maintain our armies in Europe. We could not afford to be so misconstrued and misinterpreted. Our duty is plain. We should go to the task, as good soldiers and patriotic statesmen, promptly and uncomplainingly.

"It has been asked, How is it possible that we could pass a revenue measure in the short session, when we claim that now it will take four or five months or more to pass one at this session? The answer is easy. If the Ways and Means Committee—and it had decided to do that—should come back here a day or two after the Fall elections, Congress not being in session and no departmental work to perform, with no attendance necessary upon the sessions of the House, with no members bringing in their constituents to protest to us against taxing their particular product, or incomes, or profits—in that month of cool weather, working morning, afternoon, and night, we could do what it will now take us two or three months to do.

"As it is now, the House will be in session, and we will have to attend its sessions, and are subject to roll calls; we must attend to departmental duties, and our correspondence is three or four times as large when the House is in session. We cannot work as many hours, if the whole day were given to us in this hot, intolerable, Summer weather of Washington, I believe that by pursuing the other course we could have passed just as wise and as equitable a tax measure in the short session as we can at this session. And practically all the taxes would have been collected at the same time as they will be if the bill is passed at this session."

Representative Green of Iowa interrupted with the statement that he was convinced Mr. Kitchin had acted in good faith, but added:

"It has come to my attention and to the attention of others of the House by repeated rumors that the action of the press had something to do with this matter. Can the gentleman inform me whether there is any truth in that?"

"Mr. Speaker," replied Representative Kitchin, "I do not think that the Secretary of the Treasury thought it was necessary to have this revenue measure at this session until his return from the Liberty Loan campaign. In fact, I know he did not think it was necessary when he began that campaign. But I think, after going out in the campaign, seeing the situation from another viewpoint, and after getting to Washington, with a closer eye upon Treasury conditions, and learning the demands of the different departments for enormously increased appropriations, he became unduly alarmed and gave undue weight to opinion of Treasury officials, and was convinced it was necessary to have this legislation at this session.

Says Publishers Have a Lobby.

"In answer, further, I do not think that Secretary McAdoo thought about the press, the newspapers, and magazines one way or the other. However, I do believe, that, way back, hidden somewhere, unseen by most of us, there was the influence of one of the shrewdest and most powerful lobbies that ever infested the hotels or the corriodors of the Capitol which made itself felt with some in whose judgment the Secretary of the Treasury had great faith. I know that such a lobby has been maintained here by the big publishers. Its committee has had interviews with me. It was determined by the publishers at the first of the session that the session should not close until they had had a chance to put to a vote in Congress the question of either a repeal or a modification of a suspension of the operation of the postal rate provisions of existing law.

"I know they attempted to get it on the Post Office bill in the House or to get a separate bill for the purpose. They failed. They attempted to get it on the Post Office bill in the Senate Committee and they failed. They then gave notice that a motion would be made in the Senate, after the Post Office Appropriation bill was reported to it, to suspend the rules so that such amendment could be offered to the bill, and thus have another fight in the House and the Senate.

"I know that they planned that if they could not get it in some pending bill, one way or another, they would insist on a Revenue bill which would offer them their chance. I know that the leading papers that have been denouncing Congress and the Ways and Means Committee, and especially me, for the present postal rate provisions, as soon as they had the first intimation that a tax bill would be demanded by the Treasury Department, came out in strong leading editorials demanding, in the interest of the Treasury and the country, that Congress enact another revenue bill.

"I understand their game. I want to warn this House and the country of their game. Here it is: They are going to try to put the repeal of the postal provision or the suspension of its operation upon whatever revenue bill that is passed here. But they know that the manhood and the patriotism, the sense of right and justice, and of honesty and fair dealing, between the Government and every class of the people of the membership of this House will forbid and prevent such repeal or modification going on a bill here.

"They then hope to put such an amendment on in the Senate, and then, when it goes to conference, they are counting upon the conferees of the House and the Senate sitting in session day after day and week after week and finally getting together on every proposition except the repeal or the modification of that provision, and then, when election time or adjournment time is nearing, they hope to get the President or the Secretary of the Treasury to insist upon the House conferees yielding, appealing to them not to take the responsibility of defeating or further delaying the passage of the greatest and most important tax and financial measure ever proposed, on account of sticking to the little, pitiful postal rate provision.

"That is their game, and, gentlemen, I warn you now, see if that is not the path they take. I am going to watch and see who is going to help them play that game and let you see what a prophet I am. I serve notice on them and the House now that, if the Speaker's judgment shall assign me as one of the conferees, there will be one who will not help them play that game, but will use all of his power to thwart it."

STIRRED BY WILSON SPEECH

London Newspapers Express Keen Appreciation of Address to Congress

LONDON, May 28.—The evening newspapers today express keen appreciation of President Wilson's last address to Congress. The Westminster Gazette says: "President Wilson touched his highest note in his recommendations to Congress of the new taxation America must impose upon herself. On this line the note of idealism did not obscure the practical purpose of the speech. The United States are not sparing themselves, and there is every indication that Congress will accept the new load with enthusiasm."

The Star says: "President Wilson's speech stirred our blood. 'Ships are crowding faster and faster to the ports of France and England with regiment after regiment.' This is, in his vivid phrase, the very peak and crisis of the war."

To OFFICERS of the AMERICAN EXPEDITIONARY FORCE

At the commencement of the present war, Cox & Company's Bank established a subsidiary in France under the name of Cox & Co. (France), Ltd., through which British Officers in uniform can cash checks on Cox & Company, London, up to the equivalent of £5 (about $25) at any one time, without the formality of establishing identity and signature—a convenience which no other Bank can offer, and which obviates the necessity of carrying ready money or easily-lost letters of credit in the war zone.

To cover the whole of France, a special arrangement was made with the Bank of France, whereby the same privileges were extended to Officers in uniform by all the many hundred Branches of that Bank in places where no branch of Cox & Co. (France), Ltd., existed. The same facilities were also provided throughout Italy, at all branches of the Banca Italiana di Sconto.

These facilities, of which practically all British Officers and a number of United States Officers already in Europe avail themselves, are now accorded to all Officers of the American Expeditionary Force, Military, Naval and Air Services, who open banking accounts with Cox & Company, London.

Founded in 1758—thirty-one years before George Washington became the first President of the United States—Cox & Company's Bank has been inseparably associated with British military enterprise ever since; it has held the appointment of Bankers and Official Agents to the entire British Household Brigade, as well as to the bulk of the Cavalry and Infantry, from the time of the Battle of Waterloo up to the present day.

BEFORE SAILING FOR EUROPE, instruct your local Banker to give you a draft or to cable you a transfer to Cox & Company, Charing Cross, London. Current accounts are conducted without charge, and interest at prevailing rate is allowed on deposit accounts. International exchange at finest rates.

CREDIT INFLATION AND WAGE INFLATION.

The President will find unanimous support in condemnation of inflation of the sort which he condemns. But it will not escape notice that he condones another sort of inflation which he practices. And the latter inflation is the worse of the two. It is open to question whether there is any considerable credit inflation, if allowance is made for the contraction of credit in the manner of the regulation of the railways and all public utilities. The laws have been enforced against some thirty billions of capital in a manner which has reduced their credit more billions than the banking credits have expanded, perhaps, and certainly so if allowance is made for that sort of banking inflation which is merely legitimate expansion in proportion to growth of trade.

Long ago THE ANNALIST published diagrams showing that railway credit had fallen below industrial credit. Recently The Tribune has been publishing diagrams showing that the credit of public utilities of all the sorts subject to regulation also has fallen below the credit of the industrials, and that both are above the credit of the railways, whose credit used to rank next to public credit. Here is represented contraction of credit as well worth notice as the inflation of credit so generally condemned. Both the contraction and the inflation should be corrected, and are in process of correction. The flurry in prices in the security market shows welcome progress in the direction of the restoration of railway credit and the reduction of industrial credit. Railway credit is improved by the increase in rates, and the Administration procedure is approved in that sort of inflation. Industrial credit is lowered by the prospect that profits of scores per cent. will be reduced by taxation, and that sort of contraction is approved.

Inflation above the market rate for money should be checked, and that is within the power of the Federal Reserve Bank by its control of the credit market. The Federal Bank officials need no instruction on that point. The writings of PAUL WARBURG have shown ample appreciation of the dangers of inflation in theory. But in practice the bank is embarrassed in the application of its knowledge. It is compelled to recognize the facts of the money market, and it is not the function of the bank to do what ought to be done by the regulators of rates and the tax layers. Still, there is room to show favor to railway credit in proportion that it is bettered by the action of the Director General of Railways, and to frown upon the speculation in industrials as their inflation is lessened by the tax laws.

Without excusing credit inflation of the obnoxious sort, it may be said that the harm it does is rivaled by the disturbance of all prices by wage inflation. In that sort of inflation the Government is a leading offender. The reference is not to the advance of railway wages by $300,000,000, but to the "labor snatching" which made the advance of railway wages necessary. Government contractors have overbid one another and all others in the labor market in the manner in which the Allies bought competitively in this market, and necessitated the Government regulation of prices. Now there is necessity of regulation of wages in the manner of price regulation. It is not possible to raise wages repeatedly, and to shorten hours, without reducing production to such an extent that the advance of wages is illusory and irritating to both those who pay and those who receive the wages. Labor is entitled to its pre-war pay, generously estimated. But labor is not entitled to wages which enable it to eat 10 per cent. more foodstuffs than when it was well fed in 1914, while our allies are eating 30 per cent. less.

Our consumption of sugar in 1917 was four pounds above the five-year average, and was more than is good for those who used it. Our use of tobacco is far above normal, the total of cigarettes leaping by billions, while the tobacco industrials earn several times as much as the railways. Government is responsible for this inflation more than private employers, who are compelled to pay wages in competition with Government. The result is that some sorts of capital and labor are inflated at the expense of other sorts of labor and capital, the latter sorts being unable to protect themselves because of the Government's regulation of markets.

This is all the worse because the Government condones all sorts of inflation of wages by the parasitic variety of labor, meaning the sort which inflates its wages by duress of various sorts, practiced both upon lawmakers and upon other sorts of labor. Individual workers are showing their patriotism in many ways, but union labor neglects the opportunity to establish a prevailing rate of wages, and work for wages, by which unionists would abide. But some sorts of labor and capital are alike in seeking all that the traffic will bear, and not being willing to accept a standard return. There never was in the history of labor in this country such a volume of strikes as in this wartime, when strikes have been forsworn formally, by an undertaking violated oftener than observed.

It would be less obnoxious if the increased wages were put to good use, instead of wasted. The United States ranks only fifteenth among the countries leading in savings banks. If the inflation of wages were used thriftily, there would be in the wage fund an inexhaustible source of Liberty Loans. But the inflation of wages and the contraction of credit together are making the situation more difficult as it ripens. These facts should be considered when the question of consumption taxes comes before Congress.

IDEAS IN POLITICS.

State Senator T. D. ROBINSON is to manage Attorney General LEWIS's campaign for the Republican nomination for Governor. Mr. ROBINSON is a nephew of Mr. ROOSEVELT, but no avuncular complicity in his designs is to be assumed or suspected. According to Senator ROBINSON, "the voters "are demanding with increasing vehemence that political bodies represent ideas and that these be made "clear in representative gatherings "and conventions." Senator ROBINSON's ears are acuter than those of some of the rest of us if that increasing vehemence is audible in their porches. Yet it is to be hoped that he is right. The return of the State convention, responsible representative party government, is devoutly to be wished. If Mr. LEWIS, Mr. ROBINSON, or anybody else can focus the attention of Republican voters on that end, good luck to their endeavor!

A NON-PARTISAN LEAGUER.

Former Congressman CHARLES A. LINDBERGH, candidate of Mr. TOWNLEY's Non-Partisan League for Governor of Minnesota, has had a chance to see how popular his notions are in Duluth. He couldn't find in "the Zenith City of the unsalted seas" anybody who would rent him a hall for his rally. It was proposed to let his orotundity be heard at a street meeting, but "the idea was abandoned." Duluth is a passionately patriotic town. Mr. LINDBERGH's patriotism may best be judged by a few dips into his little book, "Why Is Your Country at War?" which is published in pocket size so as "to be studied at spare moments." He is careful, but he cannot hide his animus:

> Trespass upon our rights upon the high seas makes our cause just, still I do not claim that it was wise to enter the war. I believe the problem could have been settled without war or sacrifice of national honor, the same as we expect to adjust the trespass upon our rights to the high seas by the other nations. Our purpose is humane, nevertheless I believe that I have proved that a certain "inner circle," without official authority and for selfish purposes, adroitly manoeuvred to bring about conditions that would make it particularly certain that some of the belligerents would violate our international rights and bring us to war with them.

That "inner circle" is "the interests," the "Money Trust," responsible for all our iniquities, including the Federal Reserve System. Evidently Mr. LINDBERGH's opinions have caused him to be classified as a pro-German:

> It is impossible, according to the big press, to be a true American unless you are pro-British.

The greed of "patriotic speculators" caused us to invite the violation of our international rights, inspired the campaign for preparedness, and the arming of our merchant ships. The speculators knew upon which side they could make the most money and forced "the American public to pay them many millions of dollars." "We "cannot repeal conscription without "in every way taking into considera-"tion" our soldiers abroad, but it should be repealed "as soon as it can be done" with protection to them. He complains that it is considered "traitorous to suggest terms of peace." And "the winning of battles by some "nations and their loss by others will "be of comparatively little value to "the winners and of loss to the losers—"with an economic victory for the "masses of the world." "Peace with universal victory and no defeat" is what we must get out of the war. Not as a logical result of the war, but "as a sequence to the absurdity of war."

A sort of a Gopher Bolshevik. Even the Liberty Loan was devised by the special interests "in the hope that the "plain people would get a little of the "loan so that they would believe "themselves to be interested in keep-"ing up the system." But "let us "not be prejudiced by any little per-"sonal interests," and so refuse to "support a true economic system." "The little dividend is a mere bagatel "[sic] compared with our losses under "the present system."

Mr. LINDBERGH's theory of war taxation is simple but filling:

> The taking of property or money to pay the costs of the war should begin with the largest of the fortunes, and as these are scaled down to equal the lesser, then conjointly they should be scaled down to take in the lesser still, and so on the process should run until all the greater fortunes should pay in full the material costs of the war. Those with comparatively small means should pay nothing until those with larger means had been reduced to their equal, [sic.] That is the only just rule.

If that just rule had been law, "there would have been no careless "and reckless, and as it was in some "cases wanton, traveling upon the "high sea in the danger zone by neu-"trals." Such is the gospel which Duluth refused to hear. Such is the platform of this candidate of the Non-Partisan League. More fortunate than many of the managers and orators of that concern, Mr. LINDBERGH, so far as we know, is not under indictment for sedition.

RAILWAY RATES AND WAGES.

The increase of railway rates is announced so nearly at the same time with the advance of wages that the public will think of them together, as it should. If the Interstate Commission had thought of them together, the country would not be in its present difficulty about the deficiency of railway accommodations. Now that they are thought of together, there will be an end of the politicians' and theorists' promise of lower rates and higher wages, although an economic contradiction is implicit in the promise. The two are joined when rates are at their approximate lowest and wages are at their actual highest. Labor cannot complain that it is being exploited for the benefit of capital. Capital has been exploited for the sake of labor, but railway capital is indifferent because its bargain has been made and is a good one. If the Director General continues to manifest the same spirit of fairness toward both labor and capital, the settlement will be as satisfactory to railway capital as to labor.

Also the settlement is as good for the Government as for labor and capital. There is a great present deficiency, and there even may be a deficiency on the Government's first year. But the present deficiency of some hundreds of millions is a mere matter of the worst Winter ever known, and cannot be expected to recur for another generation.

Rates are advanced 25 per cent., and apply only to the future. Wages are advanced in some cases over 40 per cent., and are made retroactive. If the Government could collect the increased rates back to Jan. 1, and apply the increase to the rates of 1915, in the manner of the wage increase, the Director General's deficiency of, say $750,000,000 for the year might not survive. The Interstate Commission might have made an order for the provisional collection of an increase of rates, subject to a refund if the decision were adverse to the increase. But that was not the way of the Commission with the railways. The Commission is now receiving its punishment in the reward of the railways. It has forfeited public confidence, and should have nothing to do in the way of regulating the Director General's management, beyond keeping the accounts, or giving advice on matters of fact. Policy is taken out of the Commission's control. There may be smiles at the increase of wages by $300,000,000, and the decrease of salaries by $3,000,000. It is clear that the Director General, like Congress, fears the rank and file more than the High Command. The time may come when he will want brains, and can be more independent about muscle.

It is thought a large order to increase the wages of 2,000,000 at a stroke of the pen. The rate increase will affect everybody and everything, for there is no man, no business, no commodity without concern in the increase of rates. For mere size the two increases are entitled to rank together as without precedent. Even the wage increase is not limited to 2,000,000 immediately concerned. When the Government decrees equality for men and women, for colored as well as whites, for union and nonunion alike, the standard is set for all employers. It is a blow which the unions will find it difficult to parry, at least on the railways. Why should anybody belong to the union when he gets no better pay, and no monopoly of employment? How can the unions object to equality and generosity of treatment? Clearly there is more than one way of fighting unreasonable unionism.

The same remark applies to the settlement of the eight-hour question. At the same time that it is put in the way of adoption by all industry, it is not settled in the union way. The Adamson law allowed the eight-hour day to 400,000. The Director General gives it to all. But he allows only pro rata pay, not punitive pay, in order, the men said, to prevent payment of the increase. The conditions of railway operation make it peculiarly difficult to do all work within an eight-hour day. All private employers have the same difficulty in some degree. No employer maliciously works his men over the customary day. The question of overtime is more in the control of the men than of the employers. There are abundant opportunities for the men to cause overtime, and punitive pay is rather an inducement for them to do so. As the matter is settled, the man whose increased wage is $4.23 for ten hours' work is allowed $3.38 for eight hours and 85 cents for two hours' overtime. He gets his pay, but the railway is not penalized. Finally, details of wage disputes are referred to a joint board of workmen and former railway officials. It is a pity that there is not also a rate board, composed of shippers and railway officials. But the settlement of the two questions is better than anybody expected, or might have hoped.

AERIAL MAIL SERVICE OF THE FUTURE.

The best authorities upon aeronautics, including inventors, entertain no doubt that the safety of the improved airplane will be limited only by the fallibility of pilots and mechanics and by unseen flaws of material used in construction. According to expert judgment, the airplane will compete with the automobile as a means of conveyance and communication. The inexorable demands of war have done more for the airplane than could have been expected from many years of industrial peace. A swifter, stancher, safer flying machine is a compensation of the war. It has multiplied trained pilots into the scores of thousands.

After the war inventive minds will evolve a motor compared with which our vaunted Liberty will seem like an experiment in the retrospect, and every one of the essential parts of the fabric that carries the motor will be perfected. So say scientists interested in aeronautics. Their confidence is infectious. It explains why there has been a design, some talk of a conspiracy, to make a monopoly of the airplane industry after the war. There is no cause for wonder if the Post Office Department, which has been experimenting with an aerial post between New York and Washington, is now planning an extension of the service to all parts of the United States. This is the program:

> Flights between Chicago and other Middle West cities and Eastern points, and, finally, transcontinental flights.
>
> Washington to Chicago flights in from seven to nine hours.
>
> Establishment of flights in sections not accessible by trains.
>
> Aerial routes where circuitous approaches, due to cañons, lakes, and other natural objects, make ordinary mail deliveries unusually slow.
> Final interlocking of the entire country after the war with airplane mail service for letters and packages.

The longer the route the greater the superiority of an airplane mail service over a railway service. The Empire State Express could run from New York to Chicago in eighteen hours; a high-power airplane would cut the time in half. A relay of airplanes would reduce the schedule between New York and San Francisco to thirty hours. Some day there should be an aerial express for a thousand and one articles, perhaps a service for perishable products. Baggage carried through the air is conceivable.

Of the hosts of war pilots many will be open to engagements when peace returns: to fly for the Government, for corporations and individuals. Now they are defying machine guns, aircraft guns, and diabolical devices of the busy munition-makers. In peaceful times these flying men will have to contend only with the elements. How beatific the transformation! Fogs, snowstorms, lightning will become as familiar as friends. "We are training aviators now," says Mr. PRAEGER, Second Assistant Postmaster General, "with "the intention of using them for the "airplane mail service when they "return from aviation in France." It will be exhilarating as well as remunerative work, and it may be supposed that the supply of airplane drivers will be greater than the demand eventually.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Taking First Lessons as Voters.

Two tales that are told about the enrollment of women last week can be taken or not taken, according to preference, as significant of feminine capacity for dealing with the formalities of politics. Before anybody, however, makes on them the comment, "Just like a woman, for all the world!" it would be well for him—of course it would be "him"—to ask some experienced election booth official if he could not tell tales of like quality about men.

The first of the stories concerns a woman who has always professed more than an ordinary interest in politics and whose fervent admiration for the Republican Party and its leaders has had for not a few years past frequent and voluble expression. The day after the enrollment she was asked by another woman who had herself enrolled if she had done it, too. "Certainly I did," she replied. "In which circle did you mark your cross?" was the next question, and to that came the astonishing answer, "Why, in none. That wasn't necessary!"

This, naturally, led to further interrogation, and in course of time the self-confident expert in politics disclosed, first, that in her opinion the enrolling place to which she had been directed by a circular from the Republican leader of her district was devoted exclusively to the enrollment of Republicans—else why should he have sent her there? Second, that after she had answered a long string of questions she had written her name in a book, which completed her enrollment in her grand old party. "But didn't they give you a slip of paper, bearing four circles, with a party emblem over each?" she was asked. She said: "Yes, here it is." And after a little fumbling in her handbag she produced it!

The second story concerns a more than elderly woman who, after answering the appointed questions, received her slip and evidently did not know what to do with it. She was told to make her cross in the circle of the party she wished to join. "What party does President WILSON belong to?" she asked. "That's the party for me!" The President's political preference was revealed to her. Then, without troubling to enter the seclusion of a curtained booth, she put her cross in the Democratic circle and handed in the slip.

An Answer Seemingly Sufficient.

Were it not for painful memories of "embalmed beef," and of the odors both literal and metaphorical that arose therefrom during and after our war with Spain, the reply of the two great meat packing companies now under accusation by the Federal Trade Commission would instantly be accepted as an adequate defense. Even in spite of those memories the answer is more than plausible, for all the statements in it are such as ordinarily intelligent men would be expected to make, and to make with truth. Surely it requires no more than ordinary intelligence, leaving the question of honesty entirely aside, to enable men to know that it would not do, in these days, even to offer unfit food for use in the training camps, and that only through a widespread conspiracy involving many army officers could such food ever get as far as the company cooks.

What would happen to bad meat, and about it, after that, could so easily be imagined by a would-be swindling purveyor that he would do business honestly or not at all. Times have changed since 1898, and though, as the President says, we still have profiteers, few indeed of them follow the crude lines of twenty years ago. As a nation we may not be much more conscientious than we were then, but at least our sense of the permissible and the safe has been considerably raised in those two decades.

It is easy to see that just what the packers say did happen to a little of the meat they shipped probably did happen, and that they probably were not to blame for it. On the other hand, there is difficulty in understanding why the members of the Federal Trade Commission should have made charges sure to be answered instantly and effectively. They, too, are credited with ordinary intelligence, and of course they would not knowingly invite a refutation so humiliating to themselves.

There the case stands, for the moment, with the packers having the better of it, and the public will wait for further developments with an interest as yet little more than amused. But how quickly that amusement would turn to fierce anger if by any chance it were proved that somebody has been trying to foist unfit food on our soldiers! The American people are not going to submit patiently to any profiteering of that kind, however it may be with other kinds.

Caution Is Not Unbelief.

As all reports of conditions in the Central Empires reach the outside world only after they have passed a rigid and effective censorship, they can be accepted as true only when corroborated by better evidence than themselves. And that better evidence is as scanty as the reports are abundant. Always it is necessary to remember that if we believe these stories of starvation, of cannibalism, of mutiny, and the like, we are believing what the rulers of Germany, for purposes of their own, want us to believe. Hence, comment on these terrible tales must be cautiously made, never forgetting that we have heard the same sort of things periodically, since soon after the war began, and that still the power of the German Army as a fighting machine is as great as ever, or greater, and it can still take the offensive against the combined forces of four big nations, to say nothing of seventeen little ones.

Nevertheless, the question is as to the accuracy of any particular story of privation rather than as to its general veracity. The Germans and the Austrians certainly are suffering, and suffering cruelly, from the scarcity of food and of many things besides food. There may be exaggeration, but exaggeration in itself implies the existence of truth. Here in the United States, where the effects of the war are only beginning to be felt, next to the whole of our normal course of life has been disarranged and restricted. Conditions far worse than ours prevail in England, France, and Italy, and by inevitable progression they can be little better than desperate in the lands that are hardest hit of all by the consequences of their own abominable crimes.

Remission of an Italian Tax.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In THE NEW YORK TIMES issue of May 25 there appeared a dispatch from Camp Dix regarding the steps taken for the exemption of military tax in Italy on the Italians who at the present time are serving in the United States Army. I think it my duty to state that your correspondent has not been exact in sending you information on that subject. What has been done for the Italian drafted or enlisted men, who may or may not be included in the deserters' lists, is due not to General Scott's initiative, but to my own, in execution of superior orders.

After a few very cordial and friendly meetings on the subject, the War Department has issued the General Order 33, dated April 6. General Scott's orders were then a consequence of that general order.

I will be grateful to you for publishing this letter.

A "Star-Spangled Banner Burg."

To the Editor of The New York Times:

To a Pennsylvanian the poor claim of six-starred Palenville is pitiably pathetic. The borough of York Haven, York County, Penn., flaunts a flag with a score of stars. With a population of 680 and an allotment of $5,000, this village had 285 subscribers to $105,000 of Liberty bonds of the third issue. Is or is not York Haven the star-spangled banner burg of the United States?

CRUELTY OF THE HESSIANS.

A Revolutionary War Episode of Present-Day Significance.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Long ago the writer was struck with the unfair and provincial way in which American history has been presented in school texts to the youth of this country. The aid given by France in men, ships, and money in the war of independence is glossed over as of no consequence, and as for the British, they are held responsible for deeds of cruelty in which they themselves probably had no hand. Here is one case, at all events, where the blame should fall upon the Hessian mercenaries. It is taken from a letter written by one John A. Gillett to his wife and is to be found on page 298 of Henry R. Stiles's "History and Genealogy of Ancient Windsor, Connecticut," 1892:

> My Friends: No doubt my misfortunes have reached your ears. Sad as it is, it is as true as sad. I was made prisoner the 27th day of August by a people called heshens (Hessians) and by a party called Gagers (Yagers or Jagers) the most Inhuman of all mortals. I can't give Room to picture them here; but thus much I at first Resolved not to be taken but by the Impertunity of the Seven taken with me und being sorounded on all sides by numbers I unhappily surrendered; would to God I never had then I should never (have) known their unmerciful cruelties; they first dissarmed me they plundered me of all I had, watch Buckles money and sum Clothing after which they abused me by bruising my flesh with the Buts of their (guns.) They knocked me down. I got up and they (kept on) beating me almost all the way to there (camp) where I got shot of them—the next thing was I was allmost starved to death by them. * * * After giving you a small sketch of myself and troubles, I will Endeavor to faintly lead you into the poor cituation the soldiers are in, especially those taken at Long Island, where I was; in fact, there cases are deplorable and they are Real objects of pity—they are still confined and in houses where there is no fire—poor mortals, with little or no cloths, perishing with hunger * * * occasioned for want of food their natures are brook and gone, some almost loose their voices and some their hearing. They are crowded into churches and there guarded day and night. I can't paint the horable appearance they make—it is shocking to human nature to behold them. Could I draw the curtain from before you there expose to your view a lean Jawd mortal * * * surrounded with tattered garments, Rotten Rags close beset with unwelcomed vermin. * * *

It has always seemed to the writer that Americans of British descent, instead of the narrow spirit some of them display toward the country from which they spring, would naturally be more anxious to refute, rather than to credit, any statement to its disadvantage. After all, in judging a man accused of a crime, we must take into consideration his past life. The English, the Scotch, the Irish, the Welsh have never been known, as a race, to be cruel or inhuman. In spite of her many wars with England, going back as far as the Hundred Years' War, during the greater part of which period the English ruled over quite a number of provinces in France, in spite of Waterloo, the French have never nursed any bitter feeling against the British. Both peoples fought each other time and again; in turn they won and were defeated, and that is all there ever was to it. Not so with the Germans. The "reiters," who were German mercenaries in the service of the French Protestants during the wars of religion in France in the sixteenth century, were the dread of the rural populations, and they were also the worthy progenitors of the Hessians in the American war of independence. Just as the Prussians of today are the worthy scions of the Hessians, with this difference, however, that "Kultur" and "efficiency" have made of them veritable fiends. Can the Ethiopian change his skin, or the leopard his spots?

Resented by the American Irish.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

It would be well for the Melloweses in and out of Ireland to understand that when they make threats to the American people the first to resent it will be the sons of Irishmen, who, above all things, are Americans. They will show the Melloweses and the Goldens that when they try to involve America in the affairs of Ireland at a time when their country is at war with Germany—a country to which Mellowes is avowedly friendly—they will put a "crusher" on them that will make known to them the real meaning of the United States "coming down" on them.

That they sense the feeling of Americans of Irish descent in the matter is evidenced by the statement that it is feared that England will try to induce America to send our troops to Ireland. Such nonsense!

That statement is the result of open expression on the part of Americans of Irish descent—said more in jest than in anything else—that they would like to go to Ireland to settle the whole matter. They meant by that that it would not be done in the blundering fashion of the English, but with long "night sticks," such as our New York police have used when they put down riots here greater than any rebellion Ireland ever has known, though, truthfully, with less loss of life. When the Irish agitators were trying to stir up trouble at Broadway and Thirty-eighth Street several months back, it was a lone detective of Irish descent who settled the whole thing forever by a liberal use of his police "billy."

MOTHER OF MERCY.

(Suggested by the Red Cross poster, "The Universal Mother.")

Though gone are all the old, familiar things,
The smiles he loved, the hands he yearned to touch,
Though peace had taken flight on shattered wings,
And hope gone limping off upon a crutch,
Though fled are all the joys he ever knew,
He finds them, mother, once again in you.

For you have all a loved one's magic power
To soothe his troubled breast, to banish sighs,
To rout the ills that haunt his darkened hour,
To conjure sunshine out of clouded skies.
The golden quest of life begins anew
And hope comes dancing back because of you.

What matters if in unfamiliar keys
He hears the drone and hum of every day?
What matters if the boulevards he sees Evoke no memories, are leagues away
From all his youth and childhood brought to view?
The homeland calls him back to life through you.

The strength of all the mother souls who give
Their sons to fight our cause dwells millionfold
In you. Through you Democracy shall live!
Through you the harassed ranks of Freedom hold!
Mother of mercy, naught that we can do
Can ever pay our debt of love to you.

THE FUTURE OF GERMAN STUDY.

In Favor of Putting the Whole Subject in the Hands of Native American Teachers.

By GARRETT W. THOMPSON,
Head Professor of German, University of Maine.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I should appreciate the privilege of expressing through your influential columns a conviction, anent the present war, which has an important relation to the future policy of our educational institutions.

It would be foolish indeed if the American people did not profit by the lessons of this awful conflict, or failed to read either the warning or the opportunity which will come with peace. It would be quite as foolish if the great institutions of our country, the press, the pulpit, the forum, the university, and college, did not realize that a new era is coming, with new demands, new ideals, new necessities, new possibilities. The great call of the hour is to study this coming era in the light of past mistakes, present revelations, and approaching needs.

I believe it is the paramount duty of every educational institution to decide that henceforth the teaching of German, its language, literature, and culture, shall be without exception in the hands of native American instructors.

I am aware how far-reaching such a decision would be; I have considered the arguments against its adoption which to some might seem reasonable; I realize that it would affect teachers whose loyalty has never been questioned. And yet, over against these and all other considerations stands one vital fact: the destiny of American civilization will be largely in the hands of the young men and women who throng our colleges, and the shaping of their ideals will be safest if controlled by American minds.

Do we value the blessings of liberty and the heritage which our forefathers left us? If we do, then surely these blessings are worth preserving. Do we appreciate the infinite sacrifice the allied arms are making and the terrible price in blood and property we are paying for the perpetuity of these self-same blessings? If we do, then our smallest duty is to see that when peace comes such costly treasures shall not be lost. The American heart is proverbially kind and generous; it does not encourage the harboring of deep wrongs. In the general joy of peace there will be a period of forgiving and forgetting, and a strong inclination toward the restoration of former conditions. Just here lies the peril. German intrigue is not going to cease with the end of war; it will make only a more subtle use of the calm and confidence of peace. To expose our American youth to such deadly and insidious agencies is to court disaster.

It is true that there are many loyal Germans in America, and in the teaching profession. We offer no affront to their patriotism; we do not question their sincerity. But many of the most prominent Germans in whom we have had absolute confidence have proved themselves false to American ideals. Propaganda has been sown carefully in our colleges by German teachers who were never suspected until too late, and even then convicted with utmost reluctance by the administrative authorities. How can we discriminate? We have been deceived; we can be deceived again. Who knows when and where the next case will break out? What real American believes that there ought to be a next case? Is it safer to spare the feelings of those German instructors who might suffer from the general rule, or to safeguard the ideals and character of our American youth?

It is needless to enumerate the things for which Germany stands condemned before the civilized world. Surely no one can be ignorant of them. These crimes against humanity have never been repudiated by the Germans as a people; their silence both here and in the Fatherland is an indictment against them. And even if the malpractices of the High Command found little sympathy among the masses, the taint is in the blood; it may be there honestly, but it is there no less dangerously. It is precisely this taint which is so perilous. German ideals cannot be those of our boys and girls. German atmosphere is not healthful for liberty-loving peoples. Teuton influence, as revealed in Germany's vast ambitions and practices, is a social poison. What greater reason could our educational institutions have for effecting the proposed change of policy than just this fact, that German teachers, consciously or unconsciously, bring into the classroom an un-American influence?

Since the beginning of the war German Kultur has become a household word. We have also heard much of the superiority of German learning and scholarship. We do not minimise the value of German scholarship, nor do we belittle its influence. But there is also broad scholarship in France, in England, in Italy, and in other countries. Each nation has been thinking and making its contribution in science and literature to the world's great store. The prize of honor has not always gone to the Teuton, and more than once he has sat at the feet of his superiors. In the present issue the question is not one of relative German or American scholarship. The ghastly insight into the Teuton mind and heart which we have gained would be meaningless if it involved merely a loss of teaching ability or equipment. The presence of German teachers in American education is a menace too great to be overlooked. In no way can our colleges and universities prove their patriotism more concretely than by surrounding their students with American influences, thus making "the world safe for democracy."

RUSSIA.

Will the Allies Act Before It Is Too Late?

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Your splendid editorial article, "Too Late," in yesterday's issue should strike a responsive chord in every American heart. I have been longing for the molders of public opinion to give attention to Russia. This conflagration is of such proportions that when the thought of the country is upon one portion of it, other, but most important, portions may be out of view.

Disintegration is taking place in Austria-Hungary, and a decisive victory in the west may cause a true self-determination of the peoples now under Austrian rule.

But Russia is helpless and prostrate, without worthy leadership, and is in a state of mind to yield to any strong power that will bring order out of chaos. We must be friends of the real Russia. How can we manifest that friendship toward the nine-tenths who do not adhere to the Bolsheviki, reaching out a strong hand which they may grasp? It is not best to pick fruit until it is ripe, but it is fatal to permit it to rot on the tree.

We realize the almost superhuman thought that must be expended by those in authority at this time in the preparation and conduct of the war and the splendid work that has been done at home and abroad in all these activities. We are assured that the necessary machinery has been set in motion to supply the western line with all it needs to secure a complete victory there, and trust that the time has come when the situation in the east may be thoroughly studied and its problems solved.

WESLEY K. WOODBURY.

Not a Day to Lose.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

May I express my gratitude, which is shared, I am sure, by great numbers of your readers, for the powerful and solemn warning uttered in your editorial article today as to our duty in regard to Russia?

The truth of your statement is self-evident and irresistible. If we continue to sit still while Germany, with the help of the Bolsheviki, annexes Russia, we shall have lost the war, no matter what may be done on the western front, and the consequences for us, and for the world, will be beyond all calculation. For our own sake we and our Allies, with Japan giving her full aid, must act and save Russia from this fate, and if Russia is to be saved we have not a day to lose. Now is the time for America to take the lead. The issue of the war depends upon what we are willing to do to save Russia. I wish your article might be read by every man and woman in our land.

Old Field Glasses Very Useful.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Believing an experience I have had in furnishing an old pair of field glasses for use on a submarine chaser may, if given publicity, help to get contributions of other glasses for use in the navy, I would like to say that I took an old pair of these glasses to a New York optician, had them tuned up, and sent them to a submarine chaser I have a special interest in, via the New York Postmaster. Today I am in receipt of an acknowledgment, with the statement that the glasses, which had been around my home for many years practically unused, were "by far the best glasses on the boat."

The difficulty the navy is experiencing in getting good glasses for work at sea and my gratification at being able to send glasses which may be of service at a critical moment prompt me to suggest to any one who has a good glass to send it to the navy, either by way of the Navy Department at Washington or to some fighting boat in the war zone in which he may have a special interest.

NO MORE GERMAN.

For a Return to Greek and Latin in the Schools.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Every unprejudiced educator, every clear-thinking linguist, will fully indorse your splendid article in which you summed up with rare lucidity the complex problem of the study of foreign languages in our schools. Right you are. English ought to be, for the time being at least, a good enough and sufficiently accommodating vehicle for the thought and feelings of our average native and foreign born population.

Properly speaking, the acquisition of a foreign language is nothing but the gaining of a key either opening a new literature to us or giving us access to the population of a country where that idiom is spoken, or both. At least 99 per cent. of our high school boys or girls, with the present faulty and perverse method of teaching foreign languages in use in our schools, never reach that stage where they could really enjoy their Heine, Maupassant, Cervantes, or Dante in the original; and hardly 5 per cent. of them ever have the occasion of utilizing their linguistic knowledge in foreign countries.

The only two languages which have a real educational, yea cultural value, Latin and Greek, have, alas! been almost eliminated from our colleges and universities as an integral part of the intellectual baggage of our graduates.

It is impossible to treat this vast problem adequately in a short letter, but I wish at least to state here that William II., through his educational revolution, in the first decade of his reign, one of whose principal platforms was the dilution of classical culture, has eventually contributed to the disruption of the splendid political and intellectual structure of old Germany, the Germany of Goethe and Schiller, of Ferdinand Lassalle and Karl Marx, of Virchow and Mommsen—that Germany, in brief, which was so dear to all of us, and whose memory still lurks in the hearts and minds of the descendants of our German immigrants of the forties, fifties, and sixties of the nineteenth century. The learned philologist and archaeologist, full of idealistic enthusiasm, and who was more at home in the Forum of Rome and about the Acropolis of Athens than in the streets of Berlin or Leipsic, yielded his time-honored place to the bespectacled doctor of chemistry working in his laboratory at the manufacturing of poisonous gases for the "poilus" of the future.

Germany has lost, probably for generations to come, her old claim to be counted among the intellectual world powers. It is Uncle Sam's chance to replace Fritz also in this domain. This war has transformed us from a conglomeration of disparate racial fragments into one great national unit, reduced the former Babel of tongues into one idiom, the idiom of patriotism and sacrifice; from a nation of debtors we have become a nation of creditors; the spendthrift of yesterday woke up next morning, as a docile and faithful pupil of Professor Hoover. A peaceful, pacific, yea to some extent pacifistic, Commonwealth is on its way of becoming more warriorlike than the barrack nation of Frederick the Great and William, the imperial Miles Gloriosus of Potsdam.

And now, let us have the ambition of becoming also the most cultured nation of the world, the leader of the world culture of the future. Our Harvard and Yale must gradually acquire the ring of Cambridge and Oxford; the literary output of our great publishing houses ought to be equal in quality and quantity to that of the most famous book factories of London and Paris, Berlin and Vienna.

Professor Woodrow Wilson, almost absolute ruler of our army and navy, finance and transportation, commerce and industry, lacks one brilliant feather in his cap—a congenial Secretary of Education, able to outline for the post-bellum school generations of our whole country a broad educational program commensurate with Uncle Sam's new position as the leader-to-be of the world's nations.

A LINGUIST.

New York, May 26, 1918.

RED CROSS TOTAL NOW $148,833,367

Figures Yet to be Received Are Expected to Swell Aggregate to $150,000,000.

CITY RAISED $35,000,000

Colonel W. B. Thompson Announces That Corporations Here Contributed Over $20,000,000.

WASHINGTON, May 28.—Final figures on the second American Red Cross $100,000,000 war mercy fund still were incomplete tonight, but on the face of latest returns the fund was over-subscribed $48,833,367. Figures yet to be received were expected to carry the total to $150,000,000.

New York's contributions to the Second Red Cross War Fund will probably reach $35,000,000, it was announced at Red Cross Headquarters yesterday. Returns have not all been received, and it may be several days before the final total for the city is reached.

Not only was it the greatest sum of its kind ever raised in the city, but there were by far a greater number of contributors than have ever made gifts to one such cause before, it was announced, the number of givers in New York City, large and small, being well above 2,000,000. The hearty popular support for the war and for all war causes was hailed by Red Cross leaders as a fact even more gratifying than the generous oversubscription of $10,000,000.

Brooklyn and other boroughs, which appeared to be lagging earlier in the campaign, made a better showing at the finish, carrying all boroughs up to their quota. Darwin P. James, Chairman of the campaign in Brooklyn, announced yesterday:

"Brooklyn has passed its quota. Its total contributions to the Red Cross will be in excess of $3,000,000, or greater by at least $1,000,000 than Brooklyn was asked to give. This figure does not include a considerable amount subscribed in Manhattan, which will be finally credited to Brooklyn."

All returns were not in for the other boroughs last night, but their committees estimated final figures as follows: Queens, $450,000; Bronx, $400,000; Richmond, $225,000.

One of the large contributions which was not announced until yesterday was $100,000 from Mr. and Mrs. Charles M. Schwab. Another additional contribution was $130,000 from Henry L. Doherty & Co. of 60 Wall Street, making a total of $280,000 from that firm.

Corporations Gave $20,000,000.

Colonel William Boyce Thompson, Chairman of the Corporations Division, which raised a total of more than $20,000,000, of which more than $12,000,000 was credited to New York City, said yesterday:

The corporations and business houses in New York deserve credit for the common sense they have shown by their fine support of the Red Cross. As was pointed out in the opinions of Charles E. Hughes, Morgan J. O'Brien, and other eminent lawyers, the corporations are vitally interested in protecting and preserving their property and they have responded splendidly to the call to insure the work of an unquestionably necessary agency in winning the war, as is the Red Cross.

The Corporations Committee is entirely satisfied with the responses made by the corporations. We actually raised here in Greater New York more than $20,000,000, although, because of deductions of subscriptions to be paid in other divisions our net total appears as something more than $12,000,000. This is really better than we aimed to do. Before the campaign started we felt that, apart from what we might get from the Carnegie Foundation and the Rockefeller Foundation, we ought to aim to get $15,000,000 here in Greater New York. Well, the Rockefeller Foundation gave $3,000,000 and the Carnegie Foundation gave $1,000,000. Deducting these, we succeeded in getting subscriptions of more than $16,000,000, thus bettering our goal.

The response to the call of the Red Cross has been so general all over the country and its work and purposes are now so much better understood by the great mass of Americans that we feel certain that in those cases where the corporations have declared special Red Cross dividends, instead of making direct contributions to the war fund, the greater part of these amounts will find their way into the treasury of the Red Cross.

Banks Here Contribute $1,802,800.

George F. Baker, Jr., Chairman of the committee canvassing banks and trust companies, summed up the week's results in the following letter sent to the Red Cross Headquarters yesterday:

I have to report that in Greater New York there are 49 national banks, 36 State banks, and 30 trust companies, all but five of which have contributed to the American Red Cross in this campaign.

Twenty-four national banks, 12 State banks, and 3 trust companies contributed 1 per cent. of their capital, the remaining banks contributing various sums aggregating $1,802,800.

The following additional contributions from banks were announced:

National Bank of Commerce	$100,000
Hanover National Bank	[illegible]
Lincoln National Bank	10,000
Second National Bank	10,000
Seaboard National Bank	10,000
Garfield National Bank	10,000
Metropolitan National Bank	10,000

Westchester Avenue	1,000
Bowery Bank	750
Chelsea Exchange	500
West Side Bank	500
East River National	250

Count Three Tons of Small Change.

The Central Trust Company, which is the local depository of the Red Cross, received yesterday 450 collection boxes from the Catholic churches of the city, containing Red Cross contributions. These weighed 1,206 pounds and netted, when counted, $10,800. During the drive the Central Trust Company has received for Red Cross account and counted three tons of small coinage.

It was announced that Red Cross girls raised $29,000 selling Red Cross signs to motorists in Queens.

Dr. Frank R. Oastler, Chairman of the Red Cross Hospital Division, announced yesterday that contributions to the Hospital, Homes and Dispensaries Fund amounted to $95,771. Contributions of $1,000 or more were as follows:

Roosevelt Hospital	$20,500
Woman's Hospital	9,000
German Hospital	7,500
Isabella Heimath Home	6,326
Knickerbocker Hospital	5,700
Italian Hospital	5,000
Mount Sinai Hospital	5,000
St. Bartholomew's	4,000
Sloane Hospital	3,515
Hahneman Hospital	3,000

Presbyterian Hospital	2,000
College of P. and S., Vanderbilt Clinic	1,800
Manhattan Eye and Ear	1,759
Neurological Institute	1,598
Rockefeller Institute	1,590
Manhattan Maternity	1,561
Deformity and Joint Diseases	1,500
New York Eye and Ear	1,480
St. Luke's Hospital	1,400
Cornell University Medical School	1,390
Polyclinic Hospital	1,228
Beth Israel	1,209
Manhattan State Hospital	1,050
New York Hospital for Women	1,050
Flower Hospital	821

It is expected that several hundred thousand dollars may be raised by the auction of art works donated to the Red Cross, which was to have taken place at the Waldorf-Astoria on Monday night, but was postponed because it was midnight before the speaking and the announcement of figures was concluded. The date for the auction will be announced later.

John McCormack, who pledged himself to raise $100,000 for the Red Cross by concerts, sang last night in Newark and went $1,000 over his mark. Mr. McCormack's audience in the First Regiment Armory paid $9,000 to hear his long program of Irish airs and patriotic songs and later paid $2,000 for phonographic records which the singer auctioned.

NEW ENGLAND 67% OVERTOP

Total for Division Reaches $11,100,000, and Is Still Growing.

BOSTON, May 28.—New England gave a Red Cross subscription of 167 per cent. of its minimum quota of $7,000,000, Red Cross officials announced tonight. The total tonight had reached $11,100,000. It had been hoped that the district would oversubscribe by 25 per cent. and efforts had been made to go over the mark by 50 per cent.

The Boston metropolitan district contributed $4,240,000, as against a minimum requirement of $3,000,000. Other districts gave as follows:

	Quota.	Subscription.
Maine	$550,000	$830,000
New Hampshire	300,000	513,000
Vermont	200,000	279,000
Rhode Island	750,000	1,144,000
Eastern Massachusetts	1,000,000	2,321,000

Special to The New York Times.

NEWPORT, R. I., May 28.—When the Red Cross Campaign Committee here finished work tonight there was $91,352.23 in hand, with Tiverton still to turn in $1,450 and Block Island $300. Several other places are also to be heard from, meaning that Newport County is away over its quota of $55,000. The City of Newport has exceeded $83,000.

Five Tenors at Navy Benefit.

The Metropolitan Opera House will stage one more benefit before the Summer holidays, on Monday evening, June 10, when Mme. Alda has arranged a program for the National Committee of Music, a branch of the Department of Navy Recreation.

Five tenors will sing—Caruso, McCormack, Muratore, Martinelli, and Lazaro. Other soloists are Mischa Elman, violin, and Harold Bauer, piano, while Mmes. Alda, Muzio, Case, Garrison, Sparkes, Braslau, Howard, Messrs. Scotti, Amato, Rothier, De Luca, De Segurola, and Didur will assist in a double trio from "Faust," double quartet from "Rigoletto," and double "Lucia" sextet.

Twenty women of society are to pose in a group symbolizing the spirit of the navy.

Italian Ace Bags 32d Airplane.

PARIS, May 28.—Major Baracca, the leading Italian ace, has brought down his thirty-second adversary, according to a dispatch from the Italian front to the Temps. He shot down the leading airplane of an enemy squadron.

STORM UPSETS FETE IN GRAMERCY PARK

Booth Sellers Flee in Downpour with Their Wares to National Arts Club.

STUYVESANT FISH GREETING

Sothern and Marlowe Recite in Aid of 307th Regimental Family Unit—Fete to Continue Today.

The Gramercy Park fête for the benefit of the 307th Regimental Family Unit began yesterday, but was interrupted by rain, and will be continued today from 3 until 11 P. M. The program mapped out for yesterday will be followed as closely as possible.

Stuyvesant Fish had not yet finished his address of welcome, as the representative of the Gramercy Park Trustees, who for the first time in the park's history opened the park to the public, when a thunderstorm broke. Less than $100 worth of cakes had been sold, when the downpour drove those in the booths, their arms filled with goods, including custard pies, to the refuge offered by the National Arts Club, whose doors were opened to the fête ticket-holders for the day, and there the day's program was carried out so far as speeches and recitations by E. H. Sothern, Julia Marlowe, Edwin Markham, and Robert Underwood Johnson went. But Boyce's Tigers and the Junior Police parade and several other events were postponed.

The evening weather being also unpropitious, the ticket holders filled the hall of the National Arts Club again, and again E. H. Sothern and Julia Marlowe recited; Miss MacDonald and Clifford Walker, who have been entertaining soldiers in their camps, did monologues, and Helen S. Woodruff read a "take-off" on hints as to how to make home beautiful. The Metropolitan Life Insurance Company's Glee Club also sang during the afternoon.

This afternoon the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company Military Band will play and tea will be served, and there will be dancing in the National Arts Club. Among those taking part yesterday were Mrs. Delancey Kane Jay, Mrs. Charles W. Cooper, Mrs. Robert G. Ingersoll, Mrs. Lewis B. Woodruff, Mrs. Henry Bartol, Mrs. Samuel P. Blagden, Mrs. Augustus Jay, Mrs. Schuyler Schieffelin, Mrs. Edward Ringwood Hewitt, Mrs. McNeal Swasey, Mrs. Lewis B. Woodruff and Mrs. J. A. Vanderpoel.

Some 1,200 tickets were sold for the fête, and those not used yesterday will be good for today.

HEBREW ORPHANS' HOME.

Part of Schieffelin Estate in Bronx Bought by Asylum.

One hundred and three acres of the Schieffelin estate in the Edenwald section of East Bronx have been sold through J. Clarence Davies to the Hebrew Orphan Asylum, it was announced yesterday. The property has large frontages on the Boston Road, Laconia Avenue, Baychester Avenue, and 231st Street. It has an elevation of 140 feet.

Ten streets and avenues were closed by the city in order to render the site available for the plan of building a number of separate cottages for the asylum. Building operations will not begin until after the war.

UPSET BY OVERWORK.

Committee Asked for David Nevius, Bank Cashier.

An application filed in the Supreme Court yesterday for the appointment of a committee of the property and person of David Nevius, until recently a resident of the Gotham Hotel, and relieved on May 8 of his duties as Vice President and Cashier of the Union Exchange National Bank, reveals the fact that Mr. Nevius is in the Rivercrest Sanitarium, and it is not believed his mental condition will improve. Mr. Nevius entered the employ of the bank as a clerk and has been widely recognized as one of the self-made banking officials of the city. He is 51 years old, and his condition is believed to be the result of overwork.

WORK FOR WAR VETERANS.

England Already Has Provided for 400,000 Discharged Soldiers.

LONDON, May 28.—Discussing the problem of demobilization after the war, the Minister of Labor, George H. Roberts, said in a speech today at Smethwick that 400,000 discharged soldiers had been provided for already.

Of these, 60 per cent. have returned to their old employers.

MISS TOWNSEND'S NUPTIAL.

Her Marriage to Lieut. Spencer O. Shotter, Aviator, Saturday.

The wedding of Miss Marion Townsend, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Allen Townsend, and Lieutenant Spencer Owens Shotter, son of Mr. and Mrs. Spencer P. Shotter of this city and Lenox, Mass., will take place on Saturday at noon in the chantry of St. Thomas's Church, with a breakfast afterward at the home of the bride's parents, 237 Madison Avenue.

Lieutenant Shotter is here on leave of absence from Camp Dick, Dallas, Texas. He is a Reserve military aviator in the aviation section of the Signal Reserve Corps, U. S. A., and for the last five months has been stationed at Rich Field, Waco, Texas. His parents formerly owned Shadowbrook, at Lenox, which they sold to Andrew Carnegie.

Mrs. Robert C. Winmill is to be her sister's matron of honor, and Mr. Winmill will be the best man.

Miss Elsie Calder to Wed June 15.

The wedding of Miss Elsie Frances Calder, daughter of Senator and Mrs. William M. Calder of Washington, D. C., and Lieutenant Robert Corwin Lee, U. S. N., will take place on Saturday evening, June 15, in the Twelfth Street Reformed Church, Brooklyn, and will be followed by a reception at the Hotel Bessert, where the engagement was announced at a luncheon last April.

Tarpy-Clements.

Mary Agnes Tarpy of 257 East 142d Street, the Bronx, and George Anthony Clements, U. S. N., will be married at St. Rita's Church, 145th Street and College Avenue, at 8 o'clock tomorrow morning. After the mass a breakfast will be served at the Bronson Catholic Club, at the conclusion of which the bridal pair will leave for Wallingford, Conn., the home of the groom, on their honeymoon.

Bellamy-Meyer Wedding Saturday.

The marriage of Miss Edith Meyer of Montclair, N. J., and Lieutenant Charles J. Bellamy of Springfield, Mass., will be celebrated on Saturday afternoon at the Hotel St. Regis. Miss Meyer will have her sister, Mrs. T. Russell Brown, and Miss Helen Fredenberg, as her attendants.

CAPTIVES PUT TO WORK.

65,000 German Soldiers in Great Britain Are Available.

LONDON, May 28.—There are 65,000 German prisoners of war in Great Britain, it was announced in the House of Commons today by James Ian Macpherson, Parliamentary Secretary to the War Office. Of these, he said, 42,000 were employed in farming and other work of national importance, while 10,000 more had been designated for similar employment.

WASHINGTON, May 28.—Provost Marshal General Crowder's work-or-fight order has been applied to interned enemy aliens by the Government, and many Germans formerly engaged in business in the large cities of the country soon will be plying hoes, rakes, and other farm implements in gardens at troop camps, raising vegetables for the soldiers.

One hundred of the interned enemy aliens have been sent from Fort Oglethorpe, Georgia, to Camp Devins, Mass. The next quotas will go to Camp Dix, New Jersey, and Camp Grant, Illinois. A 400-acre farm will be cultivated at Camp Dix. Each 100 aliens will be looked after by 25 soldiers.

SAY GERMAN BLINDED NURSE

But Miss Meiers's Sister Has Not Heard of Such Misfortune.

Special to The New York Times.

PLAINFIELD, N. J., May 28.—Relatives of Miss Melinda Meiers, who went overseas early in the war as a trained nurse, stated tonight that they have received word that she is on her way to this country hopelessly blind as the result of a German soldier's rage. According to them, she was attached to a hospital in Rumania, in which several wounded Germans were among the invalids. In an unguarded moment she was attacked by one of these and her sight destroyed.

TRENTON, N. J., May 28.—Miss Lillie A. Meiers said tonight that she had received no information that her sister had been blinded. She said she would communicate with Plainfield relatives and try and learn the source of their information.

Miss Lillie Meiers, who is a stenographer employed at the State House, said the last letter she received from her sister, some time ago, contained the information that she was well. The sister is a graduate of Mercer Hospital in this city.

GIRLS CAN HELP SOLDIERS.

Dr. Katherine B. Davis Tells Them How to Aid Government.

Dr. Katherine B. Davis of the War Department Commission on Training Camp Activities, in addressing the "Win the War Meeting" for women and girls in the Great Hall at New York City College last night, said:

"American women and girls should make three resolutions; first, that they will do their tasks better now than they have ever done them before; second, that they will do some specific work; third, that they will live up to the highest standards of conduct and character. The members of the Commission on Training Camp Activities are asked to bring home to the public what the Government is doing to help the soldiers lead clean lives and establish clean communities. The Government wants the women and girls to back it up in every way, and they can do this best by forming a public opinion that will be conducive to the clean life."

FRAU OBER ANSWERS SUIT.

Admits German Sentiment, but Denies Any Open Expression.

Frau Margarete Arndt-Ober filed a reply in the Supreme Court yesterday to charges by the Metropolitan Opera Company that one of the reasons why she was discharged was because she was pro-German, had an "intense hatred for America," and openly criticised the attitude of the United States in the present war. Frau Ober, who is suing the Metropolitan for breach of contract, said:

"I am simply an artist. I have never mixed in politics and have been careful to do nothing which would antagonize the public, whose favor I have to so great an extent enjoyed and before whom it is my earnest desire and hope to appear again. I have never at any time openly and outwardly manifested sympathy with the cause of Germany and hostility toward the United States. When a great corporation stoops to such so-called defenses, it clearly exposes to what straits it is willing to resort to deprive me of what the justice of the New York courts, I feel convinced, will give me, though I am a native German and still a German subject."

LEAGUE UPHOLDS ANDERSON

Anti-Saloon Trustees Unanimously Stand by Its State Superintendent.

The Trustees of the New York Anti-Saloon League by unanimous vote at a meeting yesterday turned down the demand made by some temperance and prohibition organizations for the scalp of William H. Anderson, State Superintendent of the league. The demand was based on attacks made by Mr. Anderson on William J. Bryan for consenting to become President of the Dry Federation, which Mr. Anderson does not consider 100 per cent. "dry." In a statement made on behalf of the Trustees, it is pointed out that Mr. Anderson already had received vindication from the National Executive Committee of the league.

PARIS-LONDON AIR MAIL.

Service Inaugurated by Round Trip in 3 Hours and 10 Minutes.

PARIS, May 28.—Aviators de Vienne and Lorgnat flew from Paris to London and back in a hydro-airplaine yesterday in three hours and ten minutes, carrying mail.

It was the first trip in connection with an aerial postal service between England and France which is being organized.

Club for Women Democrats.

To provide a political home for women who will not affiliate with men's political organizations, a preliminary meeting for the organization of the Women's Federal Democratic Club was held at the Hotel Vanderbilt last evening, with more than 100 women present. The temporary officers chosen were Miss Louise E. Tucker Chairman pro tem.; Miss M. Louise Gross, Secretary, and Mrs. Marion Coffey, Treasurer. Miss Tucker told the women that the organization was the result of a suggestion of President Wilson immediately after the women had received the vote.

"We will not interfere with local politics," said Miss Tucker, "there is work we can do that is aside from that of the regular political organization, as the President said when he asked us to do this."

Directors Re-elect Willard.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, May 28.—At a meeting of the Directors of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad Company in New York today, Daniel Willard was re-elected President, and other executives were reelected. This means that Mr. Willard and the several Vice Presidents will continue in the service of the company, in operations other than those which are controlled by the Government.

Senate Passes Urgency Bill.

WASHINGTON, May 28.—The Senate today passed the Urgency Deficiency bill, carrying $123,000,000, including $60,000,000 for housing Government war workers. The bill has been passed by the House.

MOONEY RESENTENCED TO DIE ON GALLOWS

Court Orders Him Removed to San Quentin Prison and Executed Within 90 Days.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 28.—Thomas J. Mooney, convicted of murder in connection with the Preparedness Day bomb explosion here in 1916, was resentenced today to be hanged on an indeterminate date not less than sixty nor more than ninety days from this date at San Quentin Prison. Sentence was passed by Judge Franklin A. Griffin, who presided at the trial.

The order specified that Mooney be removed to San Quentin Prison within ten days, and there hanged at a time to be determined by the Warden, but not less than sixty nor more than ninety days from this date. Judge Griffin did not amplify the statement necessary to sentence, merely saying that the law imposed a plain duty on him. Mooney showed little emotion.

Today's developments take from the courts a case which has consumed much time for the last two years and has attracted international attention. Organizations as far distant as Russia have sought to intervene in Mooney's behalf.

Mooney's fate now rests with Governor Stephens, who has a pardon petition before him and a request from President Wilson for executive clemency, based on findings of a Federal commission that questioned testimony which contributed to Mooney's conviction.

Mooney was convicted in February, 1917. An earlier death sentence was nullified because an appeal was pending when the date set for his execution arrived. The bomb explosion resulted in the death of ten persons and the injury of thirty-eight others.

FRENCH HAIL 21ST INFANTRY

Veterans of Same Organization in France Send Greetings Here.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 28.—The War Department made public today a message of greetings to the 21st Infantry Regiment of the American Army from the veterans of the 21st Infantry Regiment of France. The Honorary Presidents of the Fraternal Association of the Veterans of the 21st French Infantry Regiment are Generals Michel, Kolb, and Rosenwald. The text of the letter follows:

Paris, March 26.

The veterans of the 21st French Regiment of Infantry to their comrades of the 21st American Regiment of Infantry:

At the beginning of the second year of the war of the great Republic of the United States, which, shaken to its very depths, rose to the defense of right, the veterans of the 21st French Regiment of Infantry are happy to send their fraternal greetings to their valiant comrades of the 21st American Infantry.

They wish us to assure them of their gratitude and that of all French for the glorious assistance they bring to this gigantic struggle whence the fate of liberty and of the world depends. In spite of past and future suffering, they are certain of the definite victory, and while awaiting that glorious day they all join you in cheering from the bottom of their hearts:

Hurrah for the 21st American Regiment of Infantry! Hurrah for the American Army! GAGNEPAIN.

In a reply to the veterans of the French organization Secretary Baker said:

"Your fraternal thought will go straight to the hearts of your American comrades. The example of their seniors will be a stimulant to them and they will make it a point of honor to prove themselves worthy of those who for almost four years have been defending the liberty of the world."

CONCRETE SHIP TESTED.

The Faith Makes a Successful Voyage with Observers Aboard.

A PACIFIC PORT, May 28.—"She acted just like any other vessel," was the way Captain R. E. Connell, commanding the steamer Faith, the largest concrete ship in the world, commented on the vessel's behavior during her trial voyage from another Pacific port to this port, where she arrived today.

"We had some very rough weather and the Faith certainly stood the test," said Captain Connell. "She responded readily to her helm throughout the voyage."

F. R. McMillan and H. H. Loefler, research engineers for the Emergency Fleet Corporation, and C. C. Brush of the United States Lighthouse Service, were aboard the Faith as observers on this trial voyage.

"In our opinion the trip was very successful and indications are all very favorable toward the success of concrete ships," said the observers.

HUGHES ASKS FOR DATA.

Senate Committee Will Supply Information on Aircraft Delay.

WASHINGTON, May 28.—The Senate Military Committee was asked today by Charles E. Hughes, conducting the Department of Justice's aircraft investigation, for all information the committee has bearing on delays in the aircraft program. It will be turned over immediately.

Plans for co-ordinating the department investigation and that to be conducted by the Military Committee were discussed at a conference held today by Chairman Chamberlain of the committee, Mr. Hughes, and Attorney General Gregory.

French Band's First Concert June 6.

Conductor Gabriel Pares of the Garde Republicaine, and his band from the French trenches, will give their first concert here on Thursday evening, June 6, at Carnegie Hall, under the auspices of French-American associations and musical societies of New York. The program will include solo numbers, one by Henri Leon LeRoy, clarinet, formerly a member of the New York Symphony and Philharmonic Orchestras.

The band is making a tour of American camps and cantonments under the management of the National War Work Council of the Y. M. C. A.

Our Dead Must Lie in France.

WASHINGTON, May 28.—Representative Moore of Pennsylvania told the House today that conditions beyond the control of the American military authorities made it impracticable for the War Department to grant the request of relatives of fallen American soldiers that the bodies be returned to the United States for burial. He read a cablegram from General Pershing saying it was impracticable to embalm bodies in the theatre of operations and recommending that the United States Government conform to the custom of the Allies in burying the dead near the field of battle.

Marine Officer Dies in France.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 28.—The Marine Corps was notified today that Lieutenant Howell Allyn Gassert of the Marine Corps Reserves, serving with the marine contingent of the American Expeditionary Force, had died in France. His next of kin is William S. Gassert, 1,735 Eighty-fourth Street, Bath Beach, N. Y.

Dies from Overwork in Red Cross.

AMHERST, Mass., May 28.—Frank A. Hosmer, former member of the Legislature, member of the State Constitutional Convention, and for seven years Trustee of the State Agricultural College, died today from the effects of overwork in the recent Red Cross campaign. Mr. Hosmer was for ten years President of Oahu College, Honolulu, and was a member of the Advisory Council of the Provisional Government following the revolution that led to United States control of the islands. He was 68 years old.

Marriage and death notices, intended for insertion in The New York Times may be telephoned to 1000 Bryant.

NOTED REVOLUTIONIST DEAD

Amilcare Cipriani Was Often Elected, but Never Sat in Italian Chamber

News has been received here of the death of the famous Italian revolutionist, Amilcare Cipriani, in a Paris hospital on May 3, at the age of 73. Although elected to the Chamber of Deputies nine times, he had never taken his seat. He had kept on fighting against Austria in 1866 after Victor Emmanuel had made peace, and was condemned to death. There were other sentences to serve.

He also took part in the Paris Commune of 1871, and was again condemned to death. From the first sentence he escaped; the second was commuted to a sojourn at the penal colony of New Caledonia. There, too, he started a revolt, was captured, and imprisoned. In 1879 he was free again and in Paris. Here he wrote for Le Citoyen until the law overtook him again, and he was arrested and expelled from the country, and sought refuge in Switzerland.

Although he had long since received amnesty for his old Italian sentence, he had nevertheless been subsequently sentenced as a deserter. In 1880 he ventured to go to Rimini to see his old father. There he was recognized by the neighbors and denounced. The sentence was for ten years, but the Government, afraid of the demonstration aroused in his behalf, commuted it to a few weeks. In 1894 he was again in France, and was caught in the dragnet spread after the assassination of President Carnot and again expelled. In 1897, in spite of being a cripple from carrying an Austrian bullet received fighting with Garibaldi in the '60s, he joined the Greeks against the Turks until the powers intervened and stopped the war.

Although he had never been allowed to take his seat in the Italian Chamber—he was last elected from Milan in January, 1914—French justice had dealt leniently with him, and since the present war began he had been allowed to grow old with his books as companions in the village of Bandol, in the South of France. The other day he said: "We fought for the freedom of nations; this war will free the people."

But his life was not all adventure; there was also romance in it. When he was living in exile with Mazzini in London in 1860, he fell in love with and married an English girl. Then Cipriani went to France to fight the Germans and lost all trace of his wife and a daughter who had been born meanwhile. Thirty-eight years later he met the daughter for the first time in Paris. She was married and had lived almost next door to him for some months before she discovered who he was.

THOMAS D. McCHESNEY DIES

Manufacturer and Engineer Succumbs After an Operation.

Thomas Dewar McChesney, President of the Columbia Mills, Inc., 225 Fifth Avenue, and the Northern New York Power Plant at Oswego, N. Y., died following an operation last night at his home, 137 Riverside Drive, in his fifty-seventh year. In addition to directing the affairs of a large manufacturing concern, Mr. McChesney was an engineer and inventor. He designed several machines used in the making of window shades, and built the power plant of which he was the head.

He was born in Chicago and came to this city twenty-three years ago. He studied engineering and became an expert on the building of certain machines. Mr. McChesney was a member of the Union League Club and was a Trustee of Hahnemann Hospital. He is survived by his wife and a daughter, Mrs. E. G. McMurrich, Superintendent of supplies for Metropolitan Base Hospital, No. 43. Mr. McChesney had recently aided in equipping this unit.

Dr. Neil J. Hepburn.

Dr. Neil J. Hepburn, who had been a practicing physician in this city for more than fifty years, died yesterday at his home, 317 West Twenty-third Street, in his seventy-second year. Dr. Hepburn, who was a prominent physician in his neighborhood, was a Director of the Manhattan Eye and Ear Hospital, a Fellow of the American College of Surgeons, and a member of the Old Guard. He was born in Scotland and came to this country as a boy. Dr. Hepburn was graduated from the College of Physicians and Surgeons and saw service in the civil war as a member of the Sanitary Corps.

BOARD OF ESTIMATE TO PAY SUBWAY BILL

Votes $300,000 for Interborough Connections in Times Square and Brooklyn.

WILL COMPLETE 'H' SYSTEM

Service Board Counsel Refuses Assurance That Trains Will Be Running by June 15.

Voting $300,000 for the Interborough Rapid Transit Company to make the necessary connections at Times Square, Manhattan, and at Borough Hall and at Atlantic Avenue, Brooklyn, the Board of Estimate at a special meeting yesterday cut short the controversy between the city and the Interborough as to which should pay for the work and brought nearer to completion the "H" subway system which will mean express service straight up and down the east and west sides of the city. The Public Service Commission would give no assurance as to just when the Seventh Avenue and Lexington Avenue lines would be ready for use, but it is expected they will be in operation by July 1.

Comparatively little work is to be done on the Times Square and Brooklyn Borough Hall and Atlantic Avenue connections, but when the work is completed it will mean that trains in the present subway will run into the new Lexington Avenue subway at Forty-second Street and proceed to the Bronx. Trains in the new Seventh Avenue subway will run from the Battery up the west side of Manhattan to Times Square, from which point they will proceed over the tracks of the present subway. Each side of Manhattan will thus have a separate subway system. The present tracks of the subway between Grand Central and Times Square will be used for shuttle train service, connecting the main east side and west side trunk lines. Both of the lines will be operated by the Interborough.

In granting the money, which was in the form of corporate stock and will be charged against the debt limit of the city, the Board of Estimate made it clear that if, eventually, it is decided that the Interborough and not the city should pay the $300,000 its action should not be construed as default. The agreement of October, 1917, provided that the cost of the work should be paid by the Interborough out of its construction fund of $58,000,000. The company, however, refused to accept the agreement and the Public Service Commission requested the Board of Estimate to consent to a modification of the agreement and authorize the money.

President Dowling of Manhattan asked Howard A. Butler of counsel for the commission if he could tell when the Seventh Avenue and Lexington Avenue lines would be ready for operation.

"No, I cannot," replied the lawyer.

"June 15 is the proper date, is it not?" asked Mr. Dowling.

"I believe so," was the reply.

Borough President Connolly was not present and President Van Name of Richmond voted in the negative.

The Merchants' Association sent a letter to each member of the Public Service Commission yesterday urging him to make all possible haste in reaching an agreement with the Board of Estimate by which the demands of the men employed on the new subways for increased pay may be met, the services of the men retained, and the contractors be relieved from financial burdens which they are no longer able to carry.

"The imperative necessity of an adjustment of this matter is so obvious," the letter says, "that we think no formal question of procedure should be allowed to prevent action in such form as immediately to bring the final decision of the question before the Board of Estimate by means of a proposal adopted and recommended by you."

The commission has already submitted to the Board of Estimate a method of continuing the work, and is now waiting action by the board.

2 TOWNS VOTE 'DRY,' 3 'WET'

Elections on Local Option Held in New Jersey.

ATLANTIC HIGHLANDS, N. J., May 28.—At the local option election here today the "wets" cast 351 votes, the "drys" 116, a majority of 135 for the "wets." Until the vote was counted it had been expected the "drys" would win.

ASBURY PARK, N. J., May 28.—The citizens of Wall Township, about four miles south of here, at a special local option election today, voted "dry." The "wets" required 33 more votes to carry the election.

DOVER, N. J., May 28.—Wharton Borough went "wet" by a majority of 230 in an election on local option today. The total vote cast was 515 "wet" and 285 "dry."

SOUTH ORANGE, N. J., May 28.—An election on local option here today resulted in a victory for the "wets" by a majority of 67. The total vote cast was 558 "wet" and 491 "dry."

TOMS RIVER, N. J., May 28.—A "dry" victory by a majority of 16 was the outcome of a local option election held here today. The vote cast was 247 "dry" and 231 "wet."

NO VISITORS IN DEATH HOUSE

Sing Sing Murderers Punished for Shouting at Execution.

Special to The New York Times.

OSSINING, May 28.—As a harsh disciplinary measure, Sing Sing prison officials have just issued an order forbidding relatives to visit the sixteen condemned murderers in the death house here.

The condemned men are held incomunicado, prison attendants say, because of the demonstration they made the night John Kushnieruk was executed last week. Then they shouted their denunciation of the executioner and the prison officers. Heretofore relatives were permitted to visit the prisoners facing death on Sundays, Tuesdays, and Thursdays. Now even the mother of sixteen-year-old Paul Chapman, the boy murderer from Brooklyn, is prevented, it is said, from seeing him.

Prison attachés say they cannot recall when relatives were ever before forbidden to see condemned prisoners. Warden William Moyer and the other attendants at Kushnieruk's execution were greatly annoyed by the disturbance made by his companions in the condemned cells. Alvah Briggs, convicted of taking four lives in St. Lawrence County, and Joe Cohen, who is alleged to have directed the assassination of Barnet Baff, the Manhattan poultry dealer, are said to have led the weird shouting then.

Whitman Speaks at Organ School.

Governor Whitman spoke last night at the commencement exercises of the Guilmant Organ School, held at the Old First Presbyterian Church, Fifth Avenue and Twelfth Street. The Rev. Dr. Howard Duffield, chaplain and professor of hymnology in the school, presented the diplomas, and there was a program arranged by Dr. William C. Carl, including the playing of the "Star-Spangled Banner" by Joseph Bonnet, organist of the Church of St. Eustache, Paris.

CADET AVIATOR KILLED TAKING HIS FINAL TEST

Mineola Army Board Says Youth Tilted Machine at Wrong Angle, Causing It to Fall.

MINEOLA, L. I., May 28.—Cadet Aviator Charles B. Passwater of Noblesville, Ind., was killed today when his airplane dropped 800 feet while he was flying near the grounds of the Meadow Brook Hunt Club. The machine went into a "tail spin" and before Passwater could straighten it out the plane hit the ground.

It was said at Hazelhurst aviation field late this afternoon that the exact cause of the accident was not known, but it was thought that possibly Passwater was flying at too flat an angle, and the machine was stalled. He was unconscious when lifted from the wreckage and died an hour later in the post hospital.

Passwater, who was 23 years old, came to Hazelhurst about three weeks ago from a Southern training camp. He was completing his training and expected to get his commission as a Lieutenant in about two weeks. He was preparing to land at a designated spot, a part of his training course, when the accident occurred.

A board of investigation under Major R. D. Wrenn found that the cadet attempted to glide to earth while his machine was at a wrong angle. This, said Major Wrenn, threw the plane into a "tail spin" and caused it to crash down.

GERMANS SEIZE DUTCH SHIPS

Four Taken to Swinemunde—None to Sail Without Permission.

AMSTERDAM, Monday, May 27.—The Germans have seized and taken into Swinemunde the Dutch steamship Jantje and sailing vessels Maria, Jacoba, and Gerzine. This is in pursuance of their policy of not permitting Dutch vessels to sail without German safe conducts, pending arrangement of the transit question between Holland and Germany.

TURN OLD METAL INTO WAR STAMPS

Metal Exchange, Behind in Its Work, Closes Doors Twice to Handle Crowds.

$2,500 RECEIVED YESTERDAY

Police Decide Exchange Does Not Require License, as It Is a "Part of the Government."

So many persons came yesterday to the metal exchange of the War Savings Committee in the Winfield Building, Fortieth Street and Fifth Avenue, that twice during the day the doors had to be closed so that those who were in could be waited upon before others were admitted. Last night when Mrs. Joseph Griswold Deane and Mrs. Charles L. Tiffany ordered the business closed for the day the four appraisers were far behind in their work and piled about the counters were silver and gold articles that were still to be appraised and their owners paid in War Savings Stamps. Mrs. Deane estimated at that time that articles to the value of $2,500 had been turned in during the day.

When business opened there was a line of men, women, and children waiting, each with one or more gold or silver articles that they wished turned into stamps so that the Government can melt the metal into bullion and so save a gold reserve in this country. Among those who came early was J. S. Barnes, Jr., who brought in a great silver cup, a trophy he had won three times at the traps at the Westchester Country Club. The inscriptions on the cup showed that George C. McMurtry, Jr., had presented it in 1911. Other winners who had held it were J. C. Ayer, C. B. Stears, H. O. Whitney, S. Cott, G. S. Nicholas, and F. Hall, whose names were inscribed on it.

"There is nothing I can do with this trophy half so important as Uncle Sam can do with it," said Mr. Barnes. "I think I can win another, and anyhow I don't feel willing to keep it as long as the Government can make use of it."

The cup was valued by E. M. Gattle, the appraiser, at $57.00, and Mr. Barnes walked away with the equivalent in War Savings Stamps.

Mrs. Alfred Wagstaff, wife of Colonel Wagstaff, head of the S. P. C. A., brought two old silver bowls. She wore a service flag pin with five stars, and said she had three sons, a son-in-law, and a nephew in the service. She added that as her whole heart is in the war and the winning of it, she brought the bowls to buy stamps for her little grandson.

Mrs. Deane explained why the exchange opened without either a license to do a second hand business, or to conduct a pawnshop. She said that the committee had been advised that it would be wise to obtain a license from the city, and so avoid trouble. The matter, she said, was referred to Adrian H. Larkin, attorney for the War Savings Committee. He submitted the question to District Attorney Swann, and the latter replied that it was not a question for his office and advised that the Police Commissioner be consulted.

Mr. Larkin received a letter on Saturday from John W. Goff, Jr., Third Deputy Police Commissioner, saying that the application had been put up to the Corporation Counsel's office and the latter had ruled that no license would be required, because the exchange was under the auspices of the War Savings Committee, which is a part of the Government.

GERMANY REQUIRES NOTICE.

Otherwise Prisoners May Not Be Interviewed Without Presence of Witnesses.

WASHINGTON, May 28.—In response to this Government's inquiry regarding regulations in German prison camps, Germany has replied through the Spanish Embassy in Berlin that prisoners may be interviewed by inspectors without presence of witnesses if previous notice of inspection has been given, otherwise witnesses must be present.

Court Approves New War Fund.

Supreme Court Justice Platzek approved yesterday the incorporation of the British and Canadian Patriotic Fund, organized to solicit subscriptions here to aid the families of British subjects of New York who are fighting in the British or Canadian armies. Among the organizers are Brig. Gen. W. A. White, head of the British Recruiting office here; C. Clive Bayley, British Consul, and Thomas A. Jarvis, President of the Canadian Society of New York.

WANTED HIS LEAVE FIRST.

Sailor from the Vindictive Won Medal and Money Bonus Also.

DOVER, England, May 17. (Associated Press.)—One of the crew of the Vindictive was asked by a friend who met him on his return what happened to him when the old cruiser was blown up in the harbor at Ostend.

"I jumped overboard," was the reply, "and the next thing I remember was when I came to in Dunkirk. An officer leaned over me, and told me I had earned the Distinguished Conduct Medal, a money bonus, and a week's leave."

"What did you say to that?" asked his friend.

"I told him I would like the leave first," replied the sailor.

NATION MAY TAKE CONTROL OF WOOL

Peabody Tells Manufacturers That a Textile Administrator Is to be Appointed.

AFFECTS ENTIRE INDUSTRY

Cotton, Silks, and Other Fabrics to be Restricted—Ban Civilian Use of Olive Drab.

Announcement was made yesterday at a luncheon meeting of the American Association of Woolen and Worsted Manufacturers, held at the Waldorf-Astoria, that a Federal Textile Administrator was about to be appointed, as a war measure, for the purpose of co-ordinating the interests of the Government, and those of the entire textile industry of the nation.

Herbert E. Peabody, President of the association, and Vice Chairman of the War Service Committee of the Woolen Industry, made the announcement, following a plea by Samuel Weill, President of the National Association of Clothiers for greater unification of effort on the part of all branches of the woolen industry to meet the needs of the Government and the civilian population in the matter of clothing. President Peabody's announcement seemed to come as a complete surprise to the 200 woolen manufacturers, jobbers, and representatives of the men's tailoring trade present. Up to the present time, the woolen, cotton, silk, and other fibre industries have co-operated with the Government separately.

In making his announcement, Mr. Peabody, who as Vice Chairman of the woolen industry, has been in close touch with the Quartermaster's Department of the army, gave few details. "The Government," he said, "has decided to appoint a textile administrator. He will have jurisdiction over the woolen, cotton, silk and other textile industries. The administrator's office will be divided into sections, and naturally we will be interested particularly in the woolen section, which will comprise representatives of the manufacturing, jobbing and tailoring to the trade interests."

It seemed to be the idea of those present at the meeting that in a general way the forthcoming textile administrator would control all the textile industries of the country, much in the same way as the Government is now controlling transportation, food and fuel. At present the woolen trade of the country is working under a system of fixed prices set by the Government.

Harry P. Bonties, President of Claflin's, Incorporated, and at present Chief of the Woolen Branch of the Supply and Equipment Bureau of the Quartermaster's Department, who appeared at the meeting as the special representative of Major Gen. Goethals, Acting Quartermaster General, said that the Government did not just now feel that fixed prices for army fabrics in a strict sense shou'd be established. "There is," he added, "of course, a price which we consider fair both to the Government and the manufacturer, based on the cost of raw material which has been established, plus an average conversion cost, and plus a fair profit, but we should not feel that it would be proper to bind the Government to this price under all circumstances."

"There is one other matter which I should like to bring up," Chief Bonties said, "and that is the impropriety of using for civilian purposes the olive drab shade now, in a way, consecrated to the use of our troops. The commercial use of our national flag is very properly forbidden by the law, and the uniform that clothes our troops should be no less respected than the banner under which they march."

Mr. Bonties's plea brought quick response in the form of a resolution adopted unanimously, in which the manufacturers requested the proper authorities to adopt at once measures to prevent the manufacture, sale, or use of olive drab cloth except for and by the United States Army. The action taken yesterday would, it was predicted, have the effect of practically stopping the use by the public, not only of woolen cloths of olive drab color, but of cloths made from other textiles.

Mr. Bonties said the General Staff of the army was now preparing a definite program for 1919, and that when its requirements were announced it would be possible to determine how much machinery must be assigned to the clothing of hundreds of thousands of men to be called to the colors. Now, it was said, about 50 per cent. of the woolen machinery of the country was engaged in turning out military cloths. Due to the alleged scarcity in raw wool supplies, and the intention of General Goethals to pile up big reserves of soldiers' clothing for emergency, Mr. Bonties said that substitutes in the form of cotton and reworked wool "will undoubtedly have to be used to a very much larger extent than formerly in producing fabrics for civilian use."

President Weill of the clothing manufacturers' organization, William Bianci, President of the National Woolens and Trimmings Association, and J. L. Reiss of the International Tailoring Association, with headquarters in Chicago, all spoke in discouraging terms regarding the outlook for getting cloths for civilian trade.

FIXES MANGANESE PRICES.

War Industries Board Establishes New and Higher Schedule.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 28.—The War Industries Board today announced its approval of a new schedule of prices on manganese ores produced in the United States. It has been agreed to by the American Iron and Steel Institute. The new prices are higher than those prevailing in past months. The new schedule became effective midnight tonight. No announcement is made as to the length of time that these prices are to remain effective.

The following schedule gives prices per unit of metallic manganese per ton of 2,240 pounds for ore produced and shipped from all points in the United States west of South Chicago. This schedule does not include chemical ores used for dry batteries, &c. The prices are on the basis of delivery f. o. b. cars South Chicago, and are on the basis of all-rail shipment. When shipped to other destination than Chicago, the freight rate per gross ton from shipping point to South Chicago is to be deducted to give the price f. o. b. shipping point.

Schedule for ore containing when dried at 212 degrees Fahrenheit:

36 per cent. to 36.99 per cent., inclusive, metallic manganese, 90c. per unit.
39 per cent. to 39.99 per cent., inclusive, metallic manganese, $1 per unit.
40 per cent. to 40.99 per cent., inclusive, metallic manganese, $1.02 per unit.
41 per cent. to 41.99 per cent., inclusive, metallic manganese, $1.04 per unit.
42 per cent. to 42.99 per cent., inclusive, metallic manganese, $1.06 per unit.
44 per cent. to 44.99 per cent., inclusive, metallic manganese, $1.10 per unit.
45 per cent. to 45.99 per cent., inclusive, metallic manganese, $1.12 per unit.
46 per cent. to 46.99 per cent., inclusive, metallic manganese, $1.14 per unit.
47 per cent. to 47.99 per cent., inclusive, metallic manganese, $1.16 per unit.
48 per cent. to 48.99 per cent., inclusive, metallic manganese, $1.18 per unit.
49 per cent. to 49.99 per cent., inclusive, metallic manganese, $1.20 per unit.
50 per cent. to 50.99 per cent., inclusive, metallic manganese, $1.22 per unit.
51 per cent. to 51.99 per cent., inclusive, metallic manganese, $1.24 per unit.
52 per cent. to 52.99 per cent., inclusive, metallic manganese, $1.26 per unit.
53 per cent. to 53.99 per cent., inclusive, metallic manganese, $1.28 per unit.
54 per cent. and over metallic manganese, $1.30 per unit.

For ore produced in the United States and shipped from points east of South Chicago, 15 cents per unit of metallic manganese per ton shall be added to the above prices. The prices are based on ore containing not more than 8 per cent. silica and not more than .26 per cent. phosphorus.

Hand Work and Fine Materials.

"Though there has been a deal of talk this year about economy and simplicity in dresses for women," said a local manufacturer of considerable prominence, "plain, low priced garments have not been our best sellers. On the contrary, never before has hand embroidery been used so extensively as this year, and the very best materials are usually wanted. The only real economy has been in the use of less materials in cutting garments. But this has not in the least detracted any from the smart appearance of the gown, and style is as necessary as it ever was in making sales."

Ribbons on Undergarments.

Practically all of the best selling numbers in fancy underwear lines are extensively trimmed with ribbons, according to reports from several of the large manufacturers in this city. This is said to be particularly true of the better grades which are made to be worn under more or less transparent waists. Embroidered designs, both large and small, are also wanted in these garments. Comparatively high prices have apparently had no appreciable effect in curtailing business, retail merchants everywhere ordering in substantial quantities and frequently coming in for additional supplies in an astonishingly short time.

Homemade Bathing Suits.

While it may be due to a spirit of economy, though it is believed to be due more to a desire to be individual, the use of a considerable number of homemade silk bathing suits for women is presaged this Summer by the over-the-counter sales here of the fabrics that go into them. For actual swimming suits, there has been a large run on satins and taffetas and some call for the better mohairs, which are scarce and high. Black is far and away the leading shade in these purchases, fully 85 per cent. of the yardage disposed of being of this hue. For "non-wettable" suits there has been buying of moires and brocades.

South Does Not Like Blue Hats.

Despite the fine demand that exists here for Georgette hats in various shades, particularly in navy blue, these chapeaux do not appear to be favored especially by some of the Southern trade. A buyer for a store in an Alabama city came into the office of the Retail Millinery Association of America very recently and complained that he could not find enough good white hats in this market to fill the demand he has for them. "We can't sell navy these days," he said, "and that's all they are showing here. We can't sell Georgettes, either—for our patrons regard them as Winter hats—and navy Georgettes are all I can see. I want white, all white, milans and some fine quality leghorns. The trade all say they have them, but they can't back up their statement with the goods."

Tailored Waists Liked.

There are some very smart tailored waists being shown in the late offerings for the Summer trade, and it is said that buyers are taking to them very readily. Glossy satins are popular for this purpose and are made frequently with tight sleeves, the body of the waist close fitting, and with prominent buttons in front from the top of a high collar to the waist line. Such waists as these are usually in solid colors, the only contrast being the buttons. Cuffs are sometimes large and flaring, with buttons to match those on the front of the waist, but smaller. Pearl gray is popular in these waists.

Wide Range of Millinery Styles.

It is said that never before have women had such an opportunity to display originality in their selection of a hat as they have this Spring. There is such a wide variety of hats in vogue and on display in the leading millinery shops of the city that every woman may choose something which is expressive of her personality and still have "the latest thing." Everything from simple untrimmed but smart shapes to those literally buried in flowers, ribbons, and plumage may be seen on well dressed women. Gold lace is extensively used on many models of an Oriental design, while others glisten with lacquered plumage. All of these seem to be getting their share of business in a season which is proving very large from the standpoint of volume.

Gray Goods Sales Still Lag.

Gray goods sales, particularly in the case of the coarser fabrics, continued to lag here yesterday. Some additional business was done in printcloths, and some nice sales of sateens and twills were put through at full prices for shipment in June and July. In the printcloths, business was done on May-June 38½-inch 64-60s at 19 cents, but other staple construction lagged. Buyers showed more of a disposition to go after odd widths than they have for some time, and among these sales were 31½-inch 56-52s, for May and June delivery, at 13 cents, and 32-inch 64-60s at 16 cents for August shipment. Closing prices on spot printcloths, several of them nominal, were:

39-inch, 80-80s....25c	38½-inch, 64-60s..19c
39-inch, 72-76s....22½c	38½-inch, 64-56s..18c
39-inch, 68-72s....19½c	38½-inch, 60-52s..16½c
39-inch, 56-44s....15c	38½-inch, 60-48s..16¼c
38½-inch, 64-64s.*19½c	27-inch, 64-60s....13½c

Fall Shoes to be Lighter.

Not only will the men's shoes to be offered to the public this Fall be less varied in style than has been the case for many years, but a great many of them will be lighter in weight than for a long time. The war, through the United States Government, is held responsible for both conditions. As to styles, the Government has asked that as few as possible be produced through the life of the war. As to weight, the change will come about through army requirements of almost all the heavy upper and sole leather that will be available for some time. With the lightening of the weight of shoes for civilians, which means making them of lighter and less durable stock, there will come a decline in the amount of wear they will give. This, however, is regarded as one of the burdens of the war that must be borne with a grin.

Features in Fall Suits.

Wool velours are very much in evidence in all the early showings of Fall suits for women, and various shades of tan seem to be very popular thus far. Coats are being made longer than last year in some instances, while in others they are the same as last season and even shorter. Buyers have not yet shown any disposition to favor any particular length, but have bought a few of each, evidently waiting to see what the season develops before they commit themselves. Sleeves usually are tight, and narrow shoulders prevail in nearly all lines. Various belted and girdle effects appear, some of which confine the waistline closely to the body. Others are more or less loose. The general silhouette is very little changed from last Winter.

New Drafts Hurting Sales.

Anticipating a falling off in demand as the result of the actual and probable drafting of several hundred thousand additional young men for the National Army, returning salesmen who are not perpetually steeped in optimism say that retailers of men's wearables of all kinds have in very many cases curtailed their purchases for Fall. The only really bright spots at the moment, it was said yesterday, are the cities or towns located near the big training camps and cantonments. Retailers in those places are doing a big business in all qualities of the goods in question. A notable illustration of what a camp does for men's wear business is the comparison between Battle Creek and Grand Rapids, Mich. They are within 100 miles of each other. The former has a big camp near by, and the latter has not. The former is booming, but of the latter, as one salesman asserted, "the less said the better."

ATTACKS ESPIONAGE ACT.

Counsel for German Editors Says It Violates Freedom of the Press.

Alleging that the Espionage act is unconstitutional, Otto A. Stiefel, attorney for Benedict and Edwin S. Prieth, former publishers of the New Jersey Freie Zeitung at Newark, and Henry Wacchter, William von Katzler, and Hans von Hundelshausen, editors, filed in the United States court at Newark yesterday a demurrer to the indictment recently returned against them as a result of articles published last Summer.

Mr. Stiefel says on the constitutionality of the espionage law that it violates "the First Amendment to the Constitution of the United States, which provides that Congress shall make no law abridging the freedom of speech or of the press."

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Further Losses Among Industrials, but Rails Gain—Liberty 3½s Now Par.

Following the line of reasoning which resulted in the general drop in prices after the President's speech on tax legislation Monday, the market opened yesterday morning with the industrials showing further losses and the rails at about the previous night's close. The downward movement in the recent favorites among the industrials continued through the forenoon with rallies in some issues extinguishing most of yesterday's losses. The final price changes were irregular, with the industrials for the most part under their Monday figures and the railroads showing a fair recovery.

In financial circles no attempt had been made yet to forecast the extent of the increases which the new tax bill will carry, and traders look for uncertain fluctuations until Congress furnishes some indication of the changes which must be made. Prices in some issues carried Monday's declines much further, American Sumatra leading this move with a slump of nearly 10 points, followed by a rally of almost the same size. Baldwin broke through 80, afterward recovering most of its decline, while Bethlehem Steel B dropped to 77½ at the low. Steel rallied 1⅜ from its lowest price and closed almost unchanged.

Sentiment is slowly crystalizing in favor of the railroads, but no marked increase in buying has yet resulted from the radical increase in rates allowed to carriers. There were times yesterday when it seemed as though the buying in rails were going to reflect the rate advance, but activity in most of them was very limited. An exception was supplied by New Haven, which moved up to 45¼, closing with a net gain of 3 points. Interborough Consolidated issues were heavy on the passing of the preferred dividend, and Marine preferred made a new low for this movement on talk of further difficulties placed in the way of consummation of the agreement for the sale of the British companies by the proposed increases in excess profits taxes. Activity was slightly larger than on Monday, with sales still short of a million shares.

The Liberty 3½s were in great demand yesterday and made a further advance to 99.98 at one time, at which price thousand dollar bonds were selling for only 20 cents less than par. The second 4s recovered slightly after dropping to 94.26, and the new 4¼s closed practically unchanged at 97.24. Call money again loaned at 6 per cent. throughout the session.

GOOD TONE IN LONDON.

Money More Scarce Owing to Purchases of Treasury Bills.

LONDON, May 28.—The stock market had a good tone today. Home and investment issues hardened in view of the impending distribution of dividends. Foreigners, especially Central Americans, were firm. Industrials were quite steady. Some mining stocks were strong on reorganization talk.

Money was in good demand and scarcer, which was attributed to the recent heavy purchases of Treasury bills. Discount rates were quiet.

Trading Quiet on Paris Bourse.

PARIS, May 28.—Trading was quiet on the Bourse today. Three per cent. rentes 60 francs for cash. Exchange on London, 27 francs 16 centimes. Five per cent. loan, 87 francs 85 centimes.

MONEY AND EXCHANGE.

Most Demand Loans Made at 6%—Time Money Dull.

Practically all of the demand loans made yesterday were negotiated at 6 per cent., although some few transactions were put through at 5¾ per cent. The renewal rate was also 6 per cent. Time money was dull, and it was reported that the supply of funds was very limited.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

New Haven Leads the Market.

In view of things of the past, it seems extraordinary to point out New Haven as a major stabilizer of a weak market, but such seemed to be the case yesterday. Early in the session when the industrials were declining rapidly, New Haven led the railroad group in an upward movement which had a constructive effect later in practically all parts of the list. At 45¼ the price reached a new high level for the year, and the closing quotation of 44½ scored a net advance of 3 points. There appeared to be "good" buying of the stock all the way along, a development which added to Wall Street's puzzlement over the course of this issue in recent weeks.

Royal Dutch Rumors.

The American shares of the Royal Dutch Petroleum Corporation have been the subject of much mental speculation usually accompanying upward movements of the price. Yesterday it was reported that representatives of the British Government had bought a large amount of the 220,000 existing shares, presumably with the idea of adding them to other shares bought in Holland for the purpose of control. A companion rumor was that more than 50 per cent. of the American certificates had been acquired by interests allied with the Shell Transport Company, a British concern, and that shortly the remaining stock would be exchanged for Shell shares. In quarters familiar with Royal Dutch affairs it was said that nothing was known of either reported development. The stock stands in a unique position in respect to news and gossip about it for the reason that the headquarters where verification might be secured lie across the ocean.

Fuel Shortage Hurt Cable Company.

The National Conduit and Cable Company is one of the concerns domiciled in the neighborhood of New York which makes direct reference to the effect of fuel shortage on its business last Winter. The quarterly statement issued yesterday for the three months ended March 31 noted that the factory was shut down for lack of fuel approximately one-third of the working days. A loss of $292,413 resulted for the period, according to the estimated income account, after meeting expenses, taxes, and depreciation reserves. In the corresponding quarter last year the company had a profit of $1,612,211.

Gasoline Exports Increase.

War demands abroad continue to absorb increasing amounts of gasoline. Commerce reports indicate that the allied nations imported from the United States in March approximately 22,000,000 gallons, compared with about 5,000,000 gallons in the same month last year. The expansion of the American Army and naval forces in European waters, presumably, accounted in part for the great increase. France imported close to 11,339,000 gallons, against 2,156,000 gallons in March of 1917. The aggregate of exports during the month was 27,918,000 gallons to the whole outside world, an increase of more than 100 per cent.

City of Newark Notes Sold.

The National City Company received yesterday an award of $3,000,000 of City of Newark (N. J.) 5 per cent. notes, due Dec. 1, 1918. The notes were offered by the company on a 4.80 per cent. basis, and sold promptly.

Liberty 3½s Close to Par.

The tax-exempt 3½ per cent. bonds of the First Liberty Loan continued their upward movement yesterday and sold as high as 99.98, compared with 99.84, the high point touched on Monday following the announcement of further tax legislation. After selling at 99.98, a reaction set in and the bonds went down to 99.58, closing at 99.60, which represented a net loss of .10 for the day. Transactions totaled $1,637,000.

Liberty 4s and 4¼s Decline.

The 4 per cent. bonds of the Second Liberty Loan and the 4¼s of the Third Loan established new low records yesterday on the Stock Exchange. The former sold down to 94.26 and the latter at 97.20. The 4s were dealt in to the amount of $1,648,000, and the closing quotation was 94.34; while the 4¼s closed at 97.24, a net loss of .08 for the day. Sales of 4¼s amounted to $3,439,000.

Liberty Loan Payments.

The Federal Reserve Bank of New York received yesterday only about $17,000,000 in payment of the second installment on the Third Liberty Loan. The 20 per cent. payment due yesterday should have brought in a minimum of $63,671,000, but evidently a great many banks outside of New York City did not mail their remittances until yesterday, and consequently the Reserve Bank will not have the funds before this morning. Despite the fact that the Treasury Department circular clearly states that payments must be made on a certain date, many of the country banks content themselves with mailing their checks on the specified day, not allowing for even the normal length of time for the mail to reach its destination. In some instances, country banks wait for their customers to make their payments before they remit to the Reserve Bank, and if the customers are a day or two late in paying the bond installments, the banks do not hesitate to delay their remittances to the Reserve Bank.

More Gold from Canada.

The New York agency of the Bank of Montreal received yesterday another $1,000,000 of gold from Canada, making a total of $4,000,000 received in the last ten days. The object of the gold importations is to relieve the tension in the exchange situation in respect to Montreal.

⁂

City Bonds Strong.

The 4½ per cent. bonds of the City of New York which mature in 1963 sold yesterday at par, and the asked price for similar bonds of other maturities was also 100. Not long ago the bonds were quoted at around 93. The recent advance has been due to the demand for tax-exempt securities and the latest news from Washington regarding plans for increasing income taxes has naturally been effective in creating a still greater demand for tax-exempt bonds of this character.

The Marine Deal.

The Finance Committee of the International Mercantile Marine Company held its regular Tuesday meeting yesterday, and President Franklin made his regular Tuesday reply to the reporters: "No developments to report" on the big deal, but the dealers in Marine stock apparently were more optimistic, for they bid the stock up some three points while the meeting was going on. Incidentally, the most eager seekers after news about the deal are not the stockholders, but subordinate employes of the company, who are wondering if it means the liquidation of the whole concern.

The B. R. T. Financing.

Not many more days are expected to go by before an announcement is made on behalf of the War Finance Corporation regarding the financing of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit note issue which falls due in six weeks more. Officials of the company were in Washington yesterday talking the matter over. The company has planned and obtained authorization for a bond issue of $150,000,000, but it is possible only the $57,000,000 necessary to take up the notes will be floated.

The Undervaluation of Many Investments

Due to the uncertainties incident to any war, there are at present securities selling at prices that do not indicate their intrinsic worth. The man who is able to determine real values can place his money in conservative bonds and notes to particularly good advantage now.

M'ADOO COMBINES EXPRESS COMPANIES

Adams, American, Wells Fargo, and Southern United in a New $30,000,000 Corporation.

G. C. TAYLOR AS PRESIDENT

Capitalization Based on Actual Value of Property and Government to Share in Profits.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 28.—Plans for the consolidation of the four principal express companies, the Adams, the American, the Wells Fargo, and the Southern, were approved today by W. G. McAdoo, Director General of Railroads, and the basis on which they will deal with the Railroad Administration was determined.

The new company will be capitalized at $30,000,00, the actual value of the physical properties put into the business. The combined capitalization of the companies at present is $57,000,000. Mr. McAdoo makes no provision in the reorganization for good will or other assets not represented by property values.

It is said that George C. Taylor will be President of the new company and will act as Director General McAdoo's agent in carrying on the express business. The character of the service and the character of the rates will be under Mr. McAdoo's control and subject to initiation by him.

Other express companies, including the Great Northern, the Northern Pacific, and the Western, the first two owned by the railroad companies for which they are named, and the other by the Gould lines, will continue as at present. It is said that these companies would not agree voluntarily to come into the proposed combination.

A definite annual income is not guaranteed by the Government under the new arrangement, as is the case with the railroads which are under Government control. It is said that this lack of a guarantee was one of the objections raised by the companies which have remained out of the combination.

A statement issued today by the Railroad Administration contained these details concerning the relation of the new company with the Government:

"An important feature of the arrangement is that the new company is to be capitalized only to the extent of actual property and cash put into the business and that the Government will share on a progressively increasing scale in any profits derived from the business.

"The general method of determining the compensation is that the Director General will received 50¼ per cent. of the operating revenues, or gross earnings,) and out of the balance the express company will pay operating expenses and taxes and a dividend of 5 per cent. on its capital stock.

"Out of the next 2 per cent. available for distribution the express company will receive 1 per cent. and the Government 1 per cent.; out of the next 3 per cent. available for distribution the express company will receive 1 per cent. and the Government 2 per cent.; any further amounts available for distribution will be divided one-fourth to the express company and three-fourths to the Government.

"The Director General is greatly pleased to be able to inaugurate this salutary method of division of profits. The express company is given a continuing inducement to accomplish the greatest efficiency and economy, and yet the Government will enjoy an increasingly great proportion of the benefits of all such efficiency and economy.

"The new express company will put into the business physical properties of the actual value of $30,000,000, for which capital stock to that amount will be issued. No other capital stock will be issued, except at par for cash.

"While the new express company is permitted, upon arranging therefor with the Director General, to use railroad employes in express service, the entire compensation of all such employes, both for railroad and express services, will be fixed and paid by the Director General, and the express company will compensate the Director General for services rendered by such employes to the express company.

"The new arrangement will make it practical to avoid a great deal of wasteful duplication of facilities and to eliminate a large amount of accounting which, while necessary under the old system of separate contracts between the various express companies and the various railroad companies, will be unnecessary under the new system."

At present the Adams Express Company is capitalized at $10,000,000, the American at $18,000,000, the Wells Fargo at $24,000,000, and the Southern at $5,000,000.

IMPROVED EXPRESS SERVICE.

Taylor Tells How Unified Control Will Benefit the Public.

George C. Taylor, President of the American Express Company and selected to act as President of the new express corporation, said last night:

"Hereafter the express companies will eliminate the individual identity which has separated them for the last three-quarters of a century and offer to the Government and to their joint patrons a unified, single express service. In the future merchants, manufacturers, and individuals need merely specify 'by express' and the entire man power and vehicle power of the express world will respond to their call.

"At no time in the history of the railroads has the volume of express traffic been so great as it is today, the business reaching a total during the last fiscal year of over $200,000,000.

"Already the vast terminals now maintained by the various companies are being unified for a practical saving of time and transfer.

"The new move will bring into one organization over 100,000 men now trained in express service. It will be the policy of the company to maintain a broad gauge attitude toward its employes, many of whom have spent their lives in the service and thousands of whom have made great personal sacrifices in carrying the immense burden of the last three and a half years.

"In the past the express companies have been vital factors in the conveyance of merchandise and foodstuffs. They have eliminated distance and the time element between the manufacturer and his market. The move is designed to improve the distribution of commerce and agriculture and the business of the country may look upon it with confidence that their interests will be carefully and intelligently served."

The non-transportation activities of the separate companies, such as money orders, travelers' checks, travel department, and foreign exchange will not come under the consolidation, but will be conducted by the individual companies as in the past, the offices of the new company acting as agents for the old companies in the handling of these features.

Associated wih Mr. Taylor in the management of the company will be:

B. D. Caldwell, now President of Wells Fargo & Co., who has been selected as Chairman of the board.

William M. Barrett, now President of the Adams Express Company, will be a Director and member of the Executive Committee.

The following have been selected as operating Vice Presidents:

R. E. M. Cowie, now Vice President and General Manager of the American Express Company, will have charge of the Atlantic Departments.

E. A. Stedman, now Vice President and General Manager of Wells Fargo & Co., Chicago, Central Departments.

C. D. Summy, General Manager of the American Express Company at Chicago, in charge of Southwestern Departments.

A. Christesen, Vice President and General Manager of Wells Fargo & Co., San Francisco, in charge of Pacific Departments.

E. M. Williams, Vice President in charge of traffic for the Adams Express Company, in charge of Southeastern Departments.

F. M. Holbrook, Vice President in charge of traffic of Wells Fargo & Co., New York, will be located at Washington as assistant to the President.

D. S. Elliott, Vice President in charge of traffic of the American Express Company, New York, will be in charge of traffic for the new company.

J. W. Newlean, Vice President and Controller for Wells Fargo & Co., Chicago, will be the Vice President in charge of accounting for the new company.

E. E. Bush has been selected as Manager of Maintenance and Purchases.

T. B. Harrison and C. W. Stockton, now General Attorneys for the American and Wells Fargo respectively, will act as General Counsel.

RAILWAYS' EARNINGS DROP.

Michigan Central and Pittsburgh & Lake Erie Incomes Cut in Two.

Two subsidiaries of the New York Central—the Michigan Central and the Pittsburgh & Lake Erie—published their reports for the calendar year 1917 yesterday. Each of them, so far as its earnings were concerned, showed virtually the same experience as that of the parent road—their net incomes were practically cut in two. The Pittsburgh & Lake Erie made a relatively better showing. Having in 1916 a net income of $10,121,348, last year it was cut to $5,061,698, a loss of $4,159,649.

The Michigan Central, which in 1916 earned $6,837,872, last year reported a net income of only $3,438,216, a loss of $3,399,155. Its gross operating revenues increased in the year from $46,418,790 to $52,879,434, but the net revenues, at $14,590,297, showed a loss of $1,182,231. Owing to increases in taxes, the loss in operating income amounted to $1,471,514. Non-operating income also diminished, and fixed charges and other deductions increased $1,860,613. The Pittsburgh & Lake Erie's gross revenues increased less in proportion, totaling $25,621,654, an increase of $1,578,491, and net revenues fell off by $3,296,897, but its fixed charges, instead of increasing, were cut down by $456,295.

SEEKS 20,000 MEMBERSHIP.

The American Bankers' Association Starts Active Campaign.

The American Bankers' Association has begun a campaign for 20,000 members by Sept. 1 next. The increase in the membership since the last convention has broken all records, the gain for the twelve months amounting to 1,483. At present the association numbers 18,189 members.

Since May 1, 1908, the membership has nearly doubled. New York and Illinois are tied for first place with 1,082 members each. Pennsylvania is third, with 990; Iowa fourth, with 931, while Kansas has 844, and Ohio 745.

There are nearly 30,000 banking institutions in the United States, and, therefore, a membership of 20,000 is not regarded by the association's officers as anything except a modest ambition. As a special inducement for joining, it has been ordered that the payment of dues for one year will bring the privilege of membership until Aug. 31, 1919.

PLEA FOR REVISION OF INCOME TAX LAW

M. F. Frey, Expert of Guaranty Trust Co., Says Provisions Should Be Simplified.

SEES MANY INTRICACIES

Declares That Four Separate Levies Could All Be Consolidated Into One Graduated Tax.

Now that Congress has definitely decided to revise the tax laws, chiefly with the view of producing additional revenue, bankers and others are calling attention to the urgent need of simplifying the provisions of the Income Tax law so that the same may be more intelligible and more easily administered.

Morris F. Frey, tax expert of the Guaranty Trust Company, said yesterday that much of the confusion which existed in the administration of the law was due to the complexities of the act and not to the fundamental principles of the tax. "By rewriting the law," he said, "many of the intricacies and inconsistencies, which have been brought about to a large extent by amendment from time to time, may be eliminated and the fundamental principles of the tax and the distribution of the burden upon the taxpayer remain unaffected."

Under the income tax law as it stands today there are four separate taxes (exclusive of the excess profits tax), namely: the normal tax under the act of Sept. 8, 1916; the normal tax under the act of Oct. 3, 1917; the surtax under the act of 1916, and the surtax under the act of 1917. The confusion necessarily incident to the assessment of these numerous taxes is declared to be evident to everybody, and according to Mr. Frey there is no reason why they should not all be consolidated into one graduated tax.

"Undue Burden on Earned Income."

"The provision in the war excess profits tax law, Section 209, providing for an 8 per cent. tax on occupations," said Mr. Frey, "is clearly an income tax and in no sense should be connected with war or excess profits. It must be recognized that this tax imposes an undue burden on earned income and at the same time gives preference to unearned income for the purpose of taxation. The provision should be taken out of the War Excess Profits Tax law, and the rates under the income tax law increased on earned and unearned incomes alike, to produce the revenue sufficient to cover the amount to be raised by the 8 per cent. tax."

Among the other suggestions advanced by Mr. Frey are:

1. The elimination of the personal exemption for the purpose of the assessment of the normal tax.
2. The granting of credits on income derived from dividends paid by corporations on which the corporation has already paid a tax.
3. The elimination of all withholding of taxes at the source.

He also advised that the new law grant permission to taxpayers to make deductions for all losses sustained in dealings in property for profit, not connected with the taxpayer's business or trade. Mr. Frey believes that all interest paid by corporations should be deducted.

"The present restriction on the amount of interest which may be deducted by a corporation, limiting such deduction to interest on indebtedness of an amount not exceeding the sum of the paid-in capital, plus one-half of the interest-bearing indebtedness outstanding at the close of the year, should be removed," he said. "This provision has always been inequitable, and works a particular hardship under present conditions when the rate of tax are so high. When the tax was 1 per cent., many looked upon the provision with more or less indifference, but with the rates of tax in many cases running as high as 50 per cent. of the income, the restriction now amounts to a most important item.

Would Deduct Interest on Indebtedness.

"The fundamental principal of the income tax law is to tax profits, and to tax a portion of the income of a corporation which is actually paid out as an expense is certainly not within the spirit of the law. The law should be amended so as to permit the deduction of all interest actually paid on indebtedness.

"Section 31 of the law providing that dividends shall be taxed to the individual stockholder at the rates prescribed by law for the years in which the profits or surplus were accumulated by the corporation, is wrong on principle and difficult to administer. Dividends of corporations, like any other income, payable to individuals, should be taxed to the individual when received, regardless of when earned by the corporation.

"Adequate provision should be made to require the distribution of all earnings which are not necessary to the business of the corporation, so that there will be no opportunity for a corporation to accumulate surplus or profits for the purpose of evading high rates of taxation. The provisions of Section 31 cannot accomplish this purpose, as the proper administration requires more detail information of the bookkeeping of corporations than can be handled to advantage by the department. Any evasion of taxation by means of accumulation should be prevented by direct provision of the law, and not indirectly by complicating the general assessment of the tax."

FINANCIAL NOTES.

J. R. de Lamar has been elected a Director of the National Conduit & Cable Company.

R. W. Pressprich & Co. have bought $500,000 tax anticipation discount notes of the City of Lawrence, Mass., in lots of six and eight months' maturity, and $175,000 of similar notes of the City of Auburn, Me., due in November and December.

Directors of the Germania National Bank of Milwaukee have decided to change the institution's name to the National Bank of Commerce.

The City of North Adams, Mass, has negotiated a temporary loan of $100,000 with Salomon Bros. & Hutzler, at 5.02 per cent. discount, plus $5.

S. W. Straus & Co. are offering at par and accrued interest the first mortgage 6 per cent. serial bonds of the Shoreland Apartment Building, Chicago. This issue of $475,000 has been passed by the Capital Issues Committee as not incompatible with the National interest, but without approval of legality, validity, worth or security. The bonds are directly secured by a first mortgage on the eleventh-story structure valued with land, at $750,000.

Robert J. Tod has been appointed General Manager of a new branch of the Intercontinental Navigation Corporation.

INTERBOROUGH CUTS ITS DIVIDEND IN HALF

Declares 2½ Per Cent. for the Current Quarter Instead of 5 Per Cent.

Directors of the Interborough Rapid Transit Company yesterday cut the regular dividend in half, declaring a quarterly dividend of 2½ per cent., instead of the previous dividend of 5 per cent., payable July 1 to stock of record June 20. That is, the dividend is reduced from 20 per cent. per annum to 10 per cent. per annum. At the same time, "in view of the action taken by the Interborough Rapid Transit Company," it was announced, Directors of the Interborough Consolidated Corporation suspended "for the present" the usual quarterly dividend of 1½ per cent. upon the preferred stock of that corporation.

The action of the Directors came as no surprise to the financial district, as it had been rumored for some time that the dividend would be very heavily reduced, owing to the desire of the management to conserve working capital and the resources of the company, because of the heavy increases in both material and labor costs of operation, and parallel increases in the demands of construction work on the new subways.

The formal statement issued said only that "on account of war conditions and the advisability of conserving the cash resources of the company," the Directors "deemed it inadvisable at the present time to declare the full dividend."

The dividend of 10 per cent. on the Interborough Rapid Transit stock represents the smallest disbursement made since 1910, two years before the dual subway contracts were completed. In that year 9 per cent. was paid; in 1911 10¼ per cent.; the following year it jumped to 15 per cent.; in 1913 it was 12 per cent.; in 1914, 15 per cent.; in 1915, 22½ per cent., and last year and the year before, 20 per cent. The Interborough Consolidated Corporation has paid 6 per cent. on its preferred stock since its organization as the holding company in 1915.

The preferred stock of the Interborough Consolidated, the holding corporation, is noncumulative. Last year its earnings, derived from Interborough Rapid Transit dividends, amounted to 7.14 per cent. on its outstanding preferred stock, on the 20 per cent. dividend basis for the latter.

Certificates on Sale Till Saturday.

The Federal Reserve Bank of New York has been instructed by the Treasury Department to accept subscriptions, subject to allotment, to the latest offering of certificates of indebtedness, issued in anticipation of the receipt of Federal taxes, until the close of business on Friday. These certificates are dated May 15 and bear interest at the rate of 4 per cent. per annum, as do all the other certificates maturing on June 25. The Treasury Department announces that to and including Saturday, May 25, there had been sold $1,544,650,500 of certificates available in payment of income and excess profits taxes. Sales of certificates dated May 15 aggregated $104,014,000 on Saturday, this figure being included in the total amount of certificates mentioned above. Yesterday there matured $500,000,000 of 4½ per cent. certificates, dated Feb. 27, which were sold in anticipation of the Third Liberty Loan. There now remains outstanding $1,612,085,500 of 4½ per cent. certificates, which added to the so-called "tax certificates" makes a grand total of $3,156,736,000 of short-term Government obligations.

FARM LOAN BONDS FIND BIG DEMAND

Sales Reach Total of $40,000,000 in Eight Days in Spite of Red Cross Drive.

WILL PAY 4¾ PER CENT.

Fact That Bonds as "Instrumentalities of United States" Are Tax Free Aids in Disposal.

The distribution of the 5 per cent. Farm Loan bonds of the Federal Land Banks has been unusually successful, and last night it was learned that for the eight business days the sales totaled $40,000,000. The bonds have been offered at 101 and interest, netting more than 4¾ per cent. to the redeemable date (1923) and 5 per cent. thereafter up to redemption or maturity. The distribution has been in the hands of a syndicate headed by Alex Brown & Sons, Harris, Forbes & Co., Brown Bros. & Co., Lee, Higginson & Co., and the National City Company.

Originally when the bankers made a contract with the Federal Farm Loan Board, they agreed to sell $15,000,000 of bonds and to take an option for an additional $15,000,000. The sale of the bonds right from the start was so satisfactory that not only did the bankers undertake to dispose of $30,000,000, but consented to float $10,000,000 more, making a total of $40,000,000.

The bankers are now anxious that the output of the farm loan bonds should be checked and that the public offering of the securities should not be indefinite as to time. The understanding is that the banking group is willing to place $20,000,000 more of the bonds (a total of $60,000,000), but is desirous that the Farm Loan Board and the Secretary of the Treasury should agree not to put out any further issues of the bonds until a fixed date. In some quarters the opinion is that none should be sold following the closing of the books until after the next Liberty Loan campaign. The chief point made by the bankers is that from a market point of view a constant and never-ceasing issue of bonds is objectionable, and that it is far better to anticipate future requirements and to sell a larger block now than to keep on doling out the securities for an indefinite period.

The fact that it has been possible successfully to place the bonds during the week of the Red Cross campaign is regarded as remarkable in view of the general market conditions.

One of the reasons why the bonds have sold so well is that farm loan bonds are, under the law, "instrumentalities of the United States," and as such are exempt from Federal and municipal taxation. These farm loan bonds have the same tax exemption features as the 3½ per cent. Liberty Loan bonds, but they are not the direct obligations of the United States Government. This week's announcement of tax legislation has led many investors to buy tax-exempt bonds.

In banking quarters it is believed that the farm loan bonds are likely to advance in price by reason of the tax exemption feature. The 3½ per cent. Liberty bonds sold yesterday at 99.98, or practically at par, while the yield of the farm loan bonds is more than 4¾ per cent. Although it is recognized that the basis of the 3½ Liberty bonds will always be lower than that of the farm loan bonds, still it is believed that the margin of difference between the two issues is bound to be less than it is today.

SECURITY: The bonds are directly secured by a closed first mortgage on the land and building, a fireproof concrete and steel structure eleven stories in height. The building will be one of the handsomest apartment buildings in Chicago and its location at 229 Lake Shore Drive, on the city's best residential boulevard, directly overlooking Lake Michigan, ensures its constant rental.

BORROWING CORPORATION: 229 Lake Shore Drive (Incorporated), an Illinois Corporation. Guaranteed by endorsement by its president, a leading Chicago business man.

VALUATION: The land and completed building are appraised at $750,000.

EARNINGS: Conservatively estimated at $72,500 net, more than two and one-half times the greatest annual interest charge.

MONTHLY PAYMENTS: To ensure prompt application of the earnings to the payment of the bonds, monthly deposits of principal and interest must be made, under the usual provisions of the Straus Plan. Each deposit is one-twelfth of the amount of principal and interest due during the year, thus accumulating a sinking fund to meet interest coupons and serial principal payments promptly.

We recommend these bonds as a thoroughly secured investment. As we anticipate a rapid sale of this attractive issue, we suggest immediate orders or inquiries. Ask for

THE COTTON MARKET

Trading Very Quiet for Greater Part of the Day, with Prices Up 23 to 38 Points.

The local cotton market was very quiet through most of the session yesterday. A combination of factors, which might have seemed bearish if the market had been in a less strong technical position, in the circumstances seemed to have their only effect in making traders extremely cautious in committing themselves, and the more cautious short willing to cover. Under the circumstances, the advance for the day, which amounted at a firm closing to from 23 to 38 net points, appeared to be largely an indication of the size of the short interest at the opening, and without other significance.

The renewed German offensive seemed to have inspired some traders with the desire to limit their commitments; others were evening up for over the holiday tomorrow, and still others waiting for the Government weather and crop reports. At the same time there were substantial indications of a broadening demand in the spot markets, and some traders appeared confident that the Southern holders are gradually succeeding in compelling manufacturers to come to their prices.

The market opened very dull, with prices 8 to 16 points off because of good growing weather in the South, easier cables and expectations of a bearish weekly weather report today. There was enough tentative selling to bring the market down some 10 points further, when the covering began which formed practically the only feature of the market the rest of the day. Nobody appeared portentiously anxious to cover, however, and prices limped forward gradually, with occasional temporary recessions, the best spurt coming just at the close, when the ring woke to something like activity for a few minutes.

No exports were reported yesterday. Southern spot markets were 100 points lower to 50 points higher.

COTTON MARKET INQUIRY.

WASHINGTON, May 28.—An investigation of the cotton markets in New York and New Orleans will be made immediately by the Department of Agriculture, Senator Smith of South Carolina was advised today by Secretary Houston. The investigation will be made under the supervision of the Bureau of Markets. The South Carolina Senator had requested the inquiry.

Senator Smith said if the department found it had not sufficient power to conduct a thorough investigation he would introduce a resolution calling on the Senate Agriculture Committee to inquire into the situation surrounding the cotton markets and authorizing the subpoenaing of witnesses and papers.

BUTTER AND EGG MARKET.

BUTTER.—Receipts yesterday, 13,842 packages. Somewhat freer offerings, very moderate trading, and advices of increased shipments on the way caused a slightly weaker feeling, though the general range of values is much the same as previously quoted. Creamery, higher than extras, a pound, 43¾@44¼c; extras, (92 score,) 43@43¼c; firsts, (88 to 91 score,) 41@42¾c; seconds, (83 to 87 score,) 37@40½c; thirds, 35@36c; creamery, unsalted, higher than extras, 45@45¼c; extras, 44@44¼c; firsts, 42@43¼c; seconds, 39@41½c; State dairy, tubs, finest, 42½@43½c; good to prime, 40@42c; common to fair, 35@39½c; renovated, extras, 37½@38c; firsts, 36@37c; lower grades, 32@34c; imitation creamery, firsts, 33½@34c; ladles, current make, firsts, 31@32c; seconds, 29½@30c; lower grades, 28@29c; packing stock, current make, No. 1, 29½@30c; No. 2, 28½@29c; lower grades, 26@28c.

EGGS.—27,401 cases. Arrivals continue liberal, but the proportion of fine, strong-bodied Northern stock fit for the best class of trade is small, and for such there is a good demand, with prices tending in sellers' favor. Average good and lower qualities which comprise the great bulk of the supply are freely offered at unimproved prices. The larger part of the supply of current packed eggs is offered in range of 30@33½c, with some inferior qualities of Southern even lower, and only a limited supply commanding the higher quotations. Dirties in fair demand when in strictly fine quality; ordinary lots are pressed for sale at irregular figures. Most of the check eggs are showing more or less mold, and probably the greater part sells from 25c. downward. There are very few sound dry lots free from mold, and these would bring steady prices if obtainable. Nearby white eggs of strictly fancy quality are a little short of requirements, and most receivers report sales at slightly better prices than heretofore quoted. Fresh gathered, extras, a dozen, 37c; storage packed firsts, 34½@36½c; regular packed extra firsts, 35@35½c; regular packed firsts, 33@34½c; seconds and poorer, 28@32c; fresh gathered dirties, No. 1, storage packed, 29½@30c; No. 1 regular packed, 28½@29½c; No. 2 and poorer, 25@28c; fresh gathered checks, good to choice, dry, 26@28c; undergrades, 15@25c; State, Pennsylvania, and nearby Western hennery whites, fine to fancy, 41@42c; ordinary to prime, 38@40c; gathered whites, ordinary to fine, 37@40c; Western and Southern, gathered whites, 36@38c; State, Pennsylvania, and nearby hennery browns, 38@40c; gathered brown and mixed colors, 30@36c; duck eggs, 29@45c.

COMMODITIES MARKETS

WHEAT.

The wheat position is now going through the period of between seasons. Seldom, if ever, have stocks on hand been as low as at the present time, and the outlook for the new crop has seldom been excelled. The Food Administration continues to admonish consumers to limit the consumption of wheat as far as possible in order that there shall be no curtailment in the export movement to our allies in Europe and to our army. If the crop turns out as well as present indications seem to point, there is every reason to believe that this year's yield will be of sufficient volume to take care of home needs and provide a very large surplus for export.

RYE.

Market weak; No. 2 Western, $2.02, cost and freight, New York.

CORN.

The corn market displayed a firmer tone early, with a fairly active demand. Subsequently, however, prices broke, and the close was at the lowest, with prices ⅝c to 1⅛c below the final of Monday. In the local cash market kiln dried No. 3 yellow was quoted at $1.80¼, No. 4 yellow at $1.70¼, cost and freight, New York.

OATS.

The market for oats contracts in the West was very nervous and feverish, prices declining from an early advance and closing ⅛ to ½c net lower. The local market for cash oats was weak; Standard quoted at 80½@81c, No. 2 white, 81½; No. 3 white, 80@80½c; No. 4 white, 79@80; fancy clipped white, 82c to 84c; ordinary clipped white, 81@82c; all elevator.

PROVISIONS.

The provision market was irregular with lard showing a certain amount of firmness early in the day, while pork and ribs were easier. Subsequently the whole list turned weak and closed at about the lowest. Receipts of hogs at Chicago were 33,000, estimated for Wednesday, 23,000; Kansas City received 12,000 and Omaha 13,000.

COFFEE.

The market for coffee contracts was very quiet yesterday, with prices on the call unchanged to 2 points lower on a little scattered selling and a general absence of aggressive demand. There was a very indifferent trade, with a disposition to liquidate, underlying sentiment being more bearish than bullish. The close was unchanged to 10 points net lower, near months showing the greatest weakness. The local spot market was dull and unchanged. Rio spots were 50 reis higher, with Santos spots unchanged, and futures 25 reis lower to 25 reis higher. Range of prices:

	High.	Low.	Close.	Prev. Close.
May	..	..	7.95@8.00	8.03
June	..	..	7.95@8.00	8.06

September	8.25	8.24	8.24@8.25	8.25

SUGAR.

There was little in the way of fresh development in the market for refined sugar; only here and there does the trade hear of some sections where there appears to be a temporary shortage of sugar. Refiners are working on Government orders and oversales and allowing brokers moderate allotments to meet any urgent orders which they may have. Prices remain at the fixed level for both raws and refined, raws being on the basis of 4.985c for Cubas, cost and freight, equal to 6.005c. for centrifugal, and refined at 7.45c for fine granulated.

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE

Stocks were weak in the industrial issues, while the railroads showed net advances, at the close of the market yesterday on the Consolidated Stock Exchange. A sustained rally prevailing during the afternoon session was checked just before the close and profit taking caused fractional recessions. During the rally, securities regained practically the severe losses sustained in the heavy selling movement in the second hour, when even the rails, in which was centred the buying demand, sold off sharply.

REDEMPTION NOTICE.

Notice is hereby given, as provided in Article VII. of the Indenture of Mortgage dated July 1, 1911, made by Poulsen Wireless Corporation and Federal Telegraph Company to Commercial Trust & Savings Bank of Prescott, Arizona, as Trustee, that the Poulsen Wireless Corporation has exercised the right to pay and redeem the bonds secured thereby as an entirety, and therefore that all of the outstanding 5% forty-year Gold Bonds due and payable July 1, 1951, have been called and hereby are called for redemption and will be paid on and after July 1, 1918, at 110 and accrued interest to July 1, 1918, upon presentation at the office of Commercial Trust & Savings Bank of Prescott, Arizona. After July 1, 1918, interest on the above bonds will cease. The coupon due July 1, 1918, should be attached to the bond.

COMMERCIAL TRUST & SAVINGS BANK OF PRESCOTT, ARIZONA.

To Holders of First Mortgage Five Per Cent. Sinking Fund Gold Bonds of Victor Fuel Company Due July 1, 1953:

The undersigned, successor to Knickerbocker Trust Company, Trustee under the Mortgage given to secure the above described bonds, desires under the authority of said mortgage to expend the sum of Twelve Thousand Nine Hundred Ninety-three dollars and thirty-one cents ($12,993.81) in the purchase of bonds of said issue, provided such purchase can in its opinion now be made advantageously.

Sealed offers of said bonds may be sent to Columbia Trust Company, Trust Department, 60 Broadway, New York City, not later than June 20th, 1918, at twelve o'clock noon. Bonds accepted must be delivered on June 21st or security furnished that day if required, that delivery will be made within ten days. The right is reserved by the undersigned to reject any and all offers.

COLUMBIA TRUST COMPANY, Successor-Trustee,
By GEORGE E. WARREN, Vice President.
Dated New York, May 27th, 1918.

FRISBIE & STANSFIELD KNITTING CO.
First Mortgage Twenty-Year Sinking Fund Six Per Cent. Gold Bonds.

Pursuant to Article VI. of the Mortgage, dated July 1, 1914, securing the aforesaid bonds, Bankers Trust Company, as Trustee under said Mortgage, invites proposals for the sale to it on July 1, 1918, of bonds issued thereunder, at prices not to exceed 105% of their face value, in an amount sufficient to exhaust as nearly as may be the sum of $25,051.25, to be deposited to the credit of the Sinking Fund on that date. All proposals should be enclosed in sealed envelopes and should be delivered to the Trustee at its Trust Department, 16 Wall Street, New York City, not later than 12 o'clock noon on June 12, 1918, after which notice will be mailed to bondholders whose proposals may be accepted, and the Trustee, to the extent of funds then in its hands available therefor, will, on July 1, 1918, purchase the bonds so offered and accepted in the manner provided in said Mortgage.

Dated at New York this 15th day of May, 1918.

WORKERS CRITICISE RAILWAY WAGE RISE

McAdoo Gets Many Complaints That Increases in Some Cases Are Too Small.

SHOPMEN IDLE IN PROTEST

Demonstrations Will Do No Good, Officials Say—Board to Take Up Complaints Very Soon.

WASHINGTON, May 28.—Scores of protests reached the Railroad Administration Headquarters today against small wage increases granted by Director General McAdoo's recent order. Word came from Alexandria, Va., that between 300 and 400 shop employes of the Southern Railroad had quit work for the day to emphasize their dissatisfaction with the new scale.

Notice of the demonstration at Alexandria was greeted at the Railroad Administration with the comment that all protests and suggestions for modification of the wage order should be presented formally to the Director General for consideration by the Board of Railroad Wages and Working Conditions, which will meet here within a week to take up just such questions. Officials said strikes would avail nothing at this time, except to hinder railroads and cause public ill-feeling toward the strikers.

Reports came that other union organizations, particularly machinists, were planning walkouts, but these were not credited by labor Directors of the railroad administration.

It has been conceded by some officials that higher wages than those allowed by the Director General's order might have to be paid shopmen, including machinists, sheet metal workers, blacksmiths, electricians, boilermakers, and carmen, owing to the high scale of wages in shipyards and other industries employing large numbers of these workmen. The new wage order established a minimum of 55 cents an hour for "machinists, blacksmiths, boilermakers, and other shop mechanics who have been receiving the same hourly rate." Confusion has been created over the interpretation of this provision, since the hourly rate varies greatly in different shops and parts of the country.

Another class of employes who may have to be paid more are the maintenance of way laborers, who are being lured with higher pay to other work. For several weeks reports have been reaching Washington that track laborers were planning to remain with the railroads only until the receipt of their back pay under the retroactive increases, and then to go to other employment. Some of these reports proved unfounded on investigation, but officials are not overlooking the danger of losing employes to other war industries.

For this reason the new Board of Railway Wages will be instructed to make all possible haste to consider wage adjustments called to its attention by the Director General on complaint from employes, and to recommend modifications from time to time. It is probable the board will take up the grievances of machinists and other shopmen first. Many of these have complained that they get not a cent increase under the new order, owing to the fact that the advances proposed by the scale have been more than taken up by increases during the last two years.

Several thousand complaints and suggestions were received by the Director General after the report of the Railroad Wage Commission recommending the scale which the Director General finally adopted in substance. Indications are that nearly as many will be forthcoming now.

Few protests have come from the four leading railway brotherhoods, although committees of local organizations have sent some informal suggestions for modification.

BOUGHT OUR AIRPLANE WOOD

German Agents, Guggenheim Says, Tried to Cut Down Supply Here.

As the result of a motor trip along the north shore of Long Island, which he took in search of black walnut trees to be used by the Government in making airplane propellers, William Guggenheim, Chairman of the Army and Navy Committee of the American Defense Society, 44 East Twenty-third Street, yesterday announced that German agents had combed the island before our entrance into the war in an effort to buy up all the essential walnut wood. Mr. Guggenheim said his evidence indicated a systematic attempt to cut down the Government's supply of the only wood found practical for the severe strain of aerial work.

"One of the men I have just interviewed," said Mr. Guggenheim, "is a prominent lumber dealer of the north shore. He informs me that agents of the German Government have already traveled through the Long Island towns, buying up every available black walnut tree. This dealer says that the agents paid very high prices and were glad to get even single trees. Some of the walnut thus obtained was many miles from the railroad, my informant said, and, though the cost of hauling the trees was pointed out as likely to be great, the emissaries were quick to close their deals."

All of the purchases, Mr. Guggenheim added, were made before the country went to war. He declared that, despite the thoroughness of the enemy canvass, many trees escaped. On his own country place, near Sands Point, there is a large grove of walnut, fully grown, which the Government will soon cut down for the manufacture of propellers and for gunstocks.

Jews Raise $25,000 for the Blind.

The Hebrew Association for the Blind announced yesterday that its fund of $25,000 now being raised would be used in opening new fields of usefulness for civilians and for soldiers blinded in the war. The association pointed out that work of re-educating blind soldiers would be done by the Government and that unfinished plans of the organization were to give additional aid to the war blind and to help other persons whose blindness was not caused by the war. The work will not be confined to the blind among the Jews.

BAFF MURDERER LOSES.

Court of Appeals Upholds Death Sentence of Joseph Cohen.

ALBANY, N. Y., May 28.—Joseph Cohen, the poultry dealer who was convicted in the Criminal Branch of the Supreme Court on the charge of planning and procuring the murder of Barnet Baff in the West Washington Market on Nov. 24, 1914, today lost his appeal before the Court of Appeals. The court affirmed the conviction in the lower court, thus approving the sentence of death pronounced by Justice Tompkins on Aug. 17, 1917. Cohen is in the deathhouse at Sing Sing Prison.

When Cohen was convicted last August he expressed confidence that the Court of Appeals would set aside the verdict. His brother, Jacob Cohen, and David Jacobs, who were named with Joseph Cohen in the indictment for first degree murder, were acquitted in the Criminal Branch of the Supreme Court, and the jury declared Abraham Graff guilty of manslighter in the first degree.

Although the Court of Appeals also affirmed the conviction of Frank Ferrara, the chauffeur of the "murder car," several stays have been granted by Governor Whitman. Giuseppe Archiello, who was also sentenced to death for alleged complicity in the murder, received an order for a new trial from Justice Tompkins in October, 1917.

Evidence at the trial of Cohen was that he had been in constant communication with Antonio Cardinale, the gunman who confessed to having hired men to kill Baff, and that he arranged the details of the murder.

CONTROL CANCER IN LARYNX

Dr. Arrowsmith Tells Surgeons of Development in Technique.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., May 28.—Specialized surgery of the throat has developed in technique until cancer of the larynx, formerly one of the most feared forms of that disease, is now more easily curable than in any other part of the body, according to Dr. Hubert Arrowsmith of Brooklyn, speaking before the fortieth annual convention of the American Laryngological Association here today. Failure of the general practitioner to bring incipient cases of the disease to the attention of the throat specialists is one reason for the few cures in past years, speakers asserted.

Such signs as a continued hoarseness for six weeks should be a warning to the practitioner that something beyond cure by lotions or general methods has developed, and that the diagnosis of a specialist is a duty he owes his patient in order to make sure that some malignant malady is not in its early stages, it was asserted.

Policeman on Trial as Pro-German.

Patrolman Peter Kraft of the Miller Avenue Station was placed on trial yesterday before Deputy Police Commissioner Leach, in Police Headquarters, Brooklyn. Morris Salpter, a lawyer and a member of Local Draft Board 80, testified that Kraft, while in Public School 72, where the board meets, said: "We're in for a losing fight in this war. You can't beat the Germans; furthermore, we don't want to beat them. What we want to see is Germany beat England. England is a traitor in this war. We are sending our grain over there and pretty soon the country will be starving." Paul Chentoff, another member of the board, testified along the same lines. The case will be continued next Tuesday.

MEETINGS AND ELECTIONS.

Anglo-American Oil Co. Ltd.

OF ENGLAND

London, May 29, 1918.

Notice is hereby given that the Annual General Meeting of the above-named Company will be held at the Registered Office of the Company 36 and 38 Queen Anne's Gate, London, S. W., on the 26th day of June, 1918, at 3 o'clock P. M.

For the convenience of Bearers of Share Warrants of the Company resident in the United States of America the Directors of the Company have included among the conditions upon which Share Warrants of the Company are issued, the conditions following:

(17) "Any person as bearer of a Share Warrant or Share Warrants of the Company shall be entitled to attend in person or by proxy, and vote at any General Meeting of the Company in respect thereof if he shall 14 days at least before the day appointed for the meeting deposit his Share Warrant or Warrants with the Guaranty Trust Company of New York, U. S. A., which said Company shall issue a certificate setting out the names and addresses of all persons who have so deposited their Share Warrants, and they shall then send such certificate to the Company at its Registered Office, so as to reach it before the time appointed for the meeting and the person or persons whose names and addresses shall appear in such certificate or their respective proxies, shall be entitled to vote in respect of the number of shares deposited by them respectively as aforesaid, as shall appear by such certificate. The names of more than one as joint-holders of a Share Warrant shall not be received. The Share Warrant or Warrants deposited with the Guaranty Trust Company as aforesaid, shall be retained by them until after the meeting or any adjournment thereof shall have been held."

(17a.) "The Guaranty Trust Company may dispense with the deposit with them of any such Share Warrants for the purpose mentioned in the last preceding condition when such Share Warrants are already deposited with any other Trust Company or Banking Corporation of repute in the United States of America or Canada and such Trust Company or Banking Corporation shall 14 days at least before the day appointed for the meeting, furnish to the Guaranty Trust Company a certificate setting forth the name and address of the person on whose behalf they hold such Share Warrants together with the number of shares represented thereby. Also with an undertaking that they will not part with possession of the Share Warrants mentioned in such certificate or any of them or hold them or any of them on behalf of any other person or persons than the person named in the certificate until after the meeting or any adjournment thereof shall have been held. And the Guaranty Trust Company may when the aforesaid conditions have been complied with issue a certificate to be sent to the Company setting out the names and addresses of the persons named in any certificates issued to them by any such Trust Company or Banking Corporation as aforesaid and such person or persons or their respective proxies shall be entitled to vote in respect of the number of shares named in the certificate issued by the Guaranty Trust Company in the same manner as if the Share Warrants representing such shares had been deposited with the Guaranty Trust Company as provided by the last preceding condition."

A. H. HEWETT, Secretary,
36 and 38 Queen Anne's Gate, London, S. W.

REAL ESTATE FIELD

The sale of a large tract in the Port Morris section of the Bronx was the feature of the real estate market yesterday.

The F. & M. Schaefer Brewing Company made a contract for the sale of its property located between 133d and 134th Streets, Walnut Avenue to the East River, consisting of two blocks and a considerable amount of land under water with riparian rights. This site was originally acquired by the F. & M. Schaefer Brewing Company for the purpose of erecting a brewery plant. In the meantime, however, another location was found and it purchased the site at Kent Avenue, South Ninth and Tenth Streets and East River, Brooklyn, where it erected a modern brewery plant. R. J. Schaefer, President of the company, negotiated yesterday's deal through Joseph P. Day, who declined to give the name of the purchaser.

The site is adaptable for shipbuilding purposes, but no information was obtainable regarding the purpose of the purchase.

Two Hotel Transactions.

Two hotel properties also figured prominently in yesterday's business. The 4 East Fifty-sixth Street Company, representing Klein & Jackson, leased from William Baumgarten & Co. the Fifty-sixth Street "L" of their property at No. 4, consisting of a six-story building on plot 40 by 80.5. The lease is for a period of fifteen years.

Klein & Jackson plan to extensively remodel the property and connect it with the Hotel Langdon at the southeast corner of Fifth Avenue and Fifty-sixth Street, erected by them on land leased from Woodbury G. Langdon, and which they rented to Edward H. Chatillon. The addition will also be leased to Mr. Chatillon. It will provide forty additional rooms and the ground floor will be utilized for increasing the dining room space. Baumgarten & Co. will continue to occupy the Fifth Avenue portion of their property, next to the Langdon.

In the other hotel deal it was learned that negotiations were pending for the long-term lease of the Hotel Glenmore, at the northeast corner of Seventh Avenue and Fifty-fifth Street, which is owned by the estate of John Hardy. The prospective lessee is understood to be the 859 Seventh Avenue Company, in which Alexander Pincus is interested. The Glenmore is an eight-story structure on a plot 50.5 by 100, which adjoins the Hotel Wellington.

Italian National Club House Sold.

The building at 117 and 119 West Forty-eighth Street, formerly occupied by the Italian National Club, has been acquired by the Calma Realty Company, which owns the Belmont Theatre, adjoining, at 121 to 127 West Forty-eighth Street. The property consists of a five-story building, on a plot 37.6 by 100, just west of Sixth Avenue. The parcel at 117 was purchased from the Reynard estate, and that at 119 was secured under a long lease with an option of purchase from Lilly Nicoll and others. The building contains a large ballroom with balcony. It will be extensively altered. E. H. Ludlow & Co. negotiated the deal.

A Harlem-Bronx Trade.

Dr. William Whitney purchased from the Ulster Court Corporation, Joseph G. Abramson, President, 288 East 168th Street, a five-story new-law tenement, on a plot 50 by 100, held at $70,000. In part payment the buyer gave 7 West 120th Street, a four-story and basement private dwelling, on a lot 21 by 100.11, valued at $25,000.

Auction Property Resold.

Arthur Couwenburghs purchased from Leonard Weill, operator, 326 West Eighteenth Street, a three-story dwelling, on a lot 20 by 92. The seller purchased the property Jan. 24 at the stand of Joseph P. Day in the Vesey Street Auction Room.

Buyer for Tenements.

Charles Wynne resold to the Port Jervis Land Improvement Company 816 East Fortieth Street, a five-story tenement, on a lot 25 by 98.9.

Bronx Sale.

Arthur T. Walker purchased from John Meroney 1,820 Topping Avenue, a three-story and basement dwelling on a lot 22 by 95, located 87 feet south of 176th Street.

Brooklyn.

Adeline Murray sold to Baldassaro Di Giovanni, for occupancy, the two-story house at 1,750 Seventh-sixth Street, on a plot 30 by 100. B. J. Sforza was the broker.

Walter S. Ross and C. C. Gretsinger sold, for Charles Hurwitz, the dwelling at 328 Seventy-sixth Street, to an investor.

In the Bushwick section, Friday & Lehman sold the two-story frame dwelling at 445 Chestnut Street, for Frederick Rohwerder to Fenella Johnson, for occupancy.

Westchester County.

Fish & Marvin sold for the Scarsdale-Edgemont Corporation a plot on Norwood Road, in the Edgemont Estate at Scarsdale, to Mrs. John F. Bigelow of New York City. It is the purchaser's intention to start the erection of a residence at once.

New Jersey.

Okin & Isaacs of Newark sold for Joseph V. B. Irving of Jersey City to Taggart Brothers of New York two six-family frame flats, each on a plot 47 by 95, at 7 and 9 Berwind Street, East Orange. The buyers gave in part payment a twenty-five-acre farm in Fairfield County, Conn., and a farm of thirty-nine acres at Mountainview, Union Township, N. J. The East Orange houses are rented at $15 a room.

Joseph F. Gilroy of New York bought from the Avri Chemical Company, the three-story building at the corner of Johnston Avenue and Canal Street, Jersey City.

Title has been passed whereby the Young Men's Hebrew Association acquired from the Margaret Droge estate a large frame dwelling on a plot 71 by 231 at 438 Summit Avenue, Jersey City. The building will be used for a community centre.

Twenty-Year Broadway Lease.

The Schulte Cigar Company has leased for twenty years, at an aggregate rental of about $120,000, the store, basement, and sub-cellar of 388 Broadway, containing 15,000 square feet of space. A sub-lease of the basements of the building was negotiated from the Walker Safe Company. The leased premises adjoin the six-story Schulte Building at 384 and 386 Broadway, in which are housed the executive offices of the Schulte organizations, including the Mutual Profit Coupon Corporation. The Charles F. Noyes Company was the broker in both leases.

Commercial Leases.

Robert G. Grunert leased for the D. A. Cushman Realty Corporation the store in the New Hotel Strand, 47 West Thirty-second Street, for a long term, to the United States Lunch Company, which will operate it as a restaurant and lunch room.

The Ogden & Clarkson Corporation leased the building at 66 and 68 University Place to the American Aniline Products, Inc., for a term of years.

J. Arthur Fischer has leased for the Arco Realty Company the five-story building 30 West Sixtieth Street to M. Falco for a term of years. The premises will be altered and used as a restaurant.

Brokers in Red Cross Drive.

The Real Estate Board's Committee on the Second Red Cross Drive had obtained contributions of $25,000 up to yesterday afternoon. William L. De Bost, Chairman of the committee, said: "The $25,000 so far secured does not represent the full amount we expect to report. Many officers have not yet reported, and when the final returns are in the sum total will be largely increased. In eighty-one of the real estate offices canvassed, contributions by employes represented 100 per cent.

Will Build New Chapel.

George B. Post & Son have prepared plans for a new four-story chapel, day nursery, gymnasium, and meeting room to occupy the site at 196 and 198 Bleecker Street, now occupied by the home of the Bethlehem Chapel Memorial Nursery, which is to be razed. The estimated cost of the new building is $50,000.

Recent Buyers.

Frederick W. Lincoln is the buyer of the dwelling 38 West Fifty-third Street.

Archibald C. Kains is the buyer of the dwelling 10 West Tenth Street.

Max Panish is the buyer of the five-story tenement 220 West 141st Street.

Elizabeth N. Todd of Lake Mahopac is the buyer of the private dwelling 309 West Ninety-second Street.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, May 28.—Pressure is high over the northern portion of the country from the lake region westward, and there is a marked depression over the Southwest and a minor one over Southern New England.

This distribution has resulted in general showers over the northern half of the country, except the Ohio Valley and the Pacific States, and there were also scattered showers in the Gulf States, Oklahoma, and the Texas Panhandle.

It is considerably cooler in the western upper lake and southeast lower lake region, Eastern Colorado, and portions of the Southwest, and low temperatures continue in the north upper lake region, the Northwest, and extreme West. In the east and south temperatures remain high.

Unsettled, showery weather will continue Wednesday and Thursday in the southern upper lake region and western lower lake region, the Ohio Valley, Tennessee, and the East Gulf States, while in the northern upper lake and eastern lower lake region and the Atlantic States the weather will be partly cloudy.

It will be cooler Wednesday in the Ohio Valley, the Middle Atlantic States, and Southern New England, and somewhat warmer Thursday in the northern upper lake region.

Winds for Wednesday and Thursday along the North Atlantic Coast will be moderate north, with clearing weather; Middle Atlantic Coast, moderate northwest and north, showers Wednesday, fair Thursday; South Atlantic Coast, gentle to moderate, mostly south, except east off the South Florida Coast.

FORECASTS: TODAY AND THURSDAY.

Eastern New York—Fair Wednesday, somewhat cooler in the eastern and southern portions. Thursday, fair.

Southern New England—Partly cloudy and somewhat cooler Wednesday. Thursday, fair.

New Jersey—Partly cloudy and somewhat cooler Wednesday. Thursday, partly cloudy.

Western New York—Fair Wednesday. Thursday, partly cloudy.

Eastern Pennsylvania—Partly cloudy Wednesday, cooler in the eastern portion. Thursday, partly cloudy.

Northern New England—Fair Wednesday and Thursday.

The temperature record for the twenty-four hours ended at 11 P. M., taken from the thermometer at the local office of the United States Weather Bureau, is as follows:

The Civil Service.

City.

Applications for topographical draftsman, Grade C, will be received until 4 P. M. on June 12. The subjects and weights of the examination are: Experience, 3; technical, 7. A physical qualifying test will be given. Candidates must be at least 18 years of age and must have a thorough knowledge of topographical drawing and elementary design.

United States.

The commission announces for June 19 at the New York Custom House an examination for computer, (ordnance,) for men. Two vacancies in the navy yard, Washington, D. C., each at $7.36 a day, will be filled from this examination. The duties require ability to apply mathematical knowledge to the solution of engineering or ordnance problems, and to read accurately mechanical drawings and require appointees to be accurate and methodical in their work. Competitors will be examined in practical computations, education and experience. Graduation in mechanical or electrical engineering from a college or university of recognized standing is a prerequisite for consideration for this position. Applicants must have reached their twenty-first birthday on the date of the examination. Further information may be obtained from the commission, Washington, D. C.

Education Notes.

City Supt. Ettinger has instructed public school Principals that in the future the Salute to the Flag will be rendered at every assembly of pupils in the schools. They will stand on signal, raise the right hand to salute, and keep it there while the following words are given: "I pledge allegiance to my flag and to the Republic for which it stands—one nation, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all." Whenever the flag is displayed every child or teacher passing should come to the position of salute and hold it until past the flag. This does not refer to flags that are draped on the wall nor to flags that are furled or cased. Whenever the flag is carried past children or adults all should salute. At the discretion of the Principal an officer of the United States forces addressing the pupils, may be welcomed with a salute. In every case it should be made clear to all concerned that the salute to the flag or a superior or officer is a recognition of the United States as exemplified in the flag or in the person and uniform representing it.

Benjamin Strong, Governor of the Federal Reserve Bank, in a letter to President Somers says: "Now that the Liberty Loan campaign is over I want to express the gratification we all feel in the results obtained by the efforts of the school organization. There seems to me no better medium for spreading patriotic impulse to the homes than through the schools, and the work of the school organization was thrown so solidly behind the Liberty Loan work that its effect, direct or indirect, can hardly be overestimated. The work by the children is not only of value to the Liberty Loan work, but it also makes better citizens of them, and I feel that through your schools you have helped to do a great work in this last campaign."

School Principals have been requested to test, before promotion, all upper grades, especially graduating classes, as to their knowledge of the causes of the war and of other war facts.

The metropolitan typewriting contest of the Isaac Pitman Shorthand Writers' Association will be held at the Eastman-Gaines School, 123d Street, at Lenox Avenue, on June 8 at 2 P. M. Separate contests will be held for those from New Jersey and other suburban places. There will be seven classes—evening high, day commercial or private school, evening commercial or private school, parochial school, day high school, open, and professional. Entry blanks can be obtained from Charles L. Frank, 464 West 149th Street.

A dinner was given last evening at Mouquin's by the District Superintendents' Association to William J. O'Shea, who was recently elected from District Superintendent to Associate Superintendent.

DECLINES TO PUT OFF HYLAN'S LIBEL SUITS

Justice Cropsey Overrules Mayor's Plea for Delay in Trial of Actions Against The World.

CASES TO BE HEARD MONDAY

Defendant Says Since Mayor Had Time to Go to Florida He Had Time to Get Ready for Trial.

In spite of the plea of Mayor Hylan for delay, Supreme Court Justice Cropsey in Brooklyn yesterday ordered that his $200,000 libel suit against The New York World should be placed on the calendar for trial next Monday.

This suit was based on charges printed during the last campaign by The World, under the heading "Who is John F. Hylan?" that the candidate for Mayor had been closely associated with a swindler and exconvict in transactions regarding the Black Diamond Automobile Company, a concern actively promoted in 1903, and later by Mr. Hylan, but which died in its infancy. The suit was also based on the alleged implication that Mayor Hylan, after the Black Diamond Company had practically collapsed, had sued his own company for legal services; that the suits were not properly defended, and that considerable judgments had been collected. Another charge which was made the basis for suit was that Mr. Hylan had sought to charge a relative by marriage the sum of $2,280 for collecting a judgment of $3,780.

Later suits were brought by Mr. Hylan against The World for printing charges made during the campaign concerning his alleged association with pro-Germans, especially in the Friends of Peace movement. A motion is now pending to consolidate the causes of action.

Although the first suit was filed on Oct. 17 and the other suits started subsequently during the campaign, so that an interval of seven months has elapsed, counsel for Mayor Hylan presented affidavits yesterday arguing that the press of official duties had not given him the opportunity to prepare his case for trial and seeking a postponement until the Fall term of court.

Wanted Time to Sift Matter.

One of the grounds for a postponement was that The World's charges, occurring in a series of newspaper articles published during a period of three weeks, were so intermingled with collateral statements intended to strengthen and give color to the implications of unprofessional conduct, that much time and pains were needed to treat such a variety of matter.

Among the articles published during this period by The World was one on Oct. 20, charging that Mr. Hylan, then a County Judge, had granted an extraordinary privilege to one Burt G. Lewis, indicted for gambling, who had contributed heavily to the campaign fund which had been used to elect Mr. Hylan a Judge, and that for five years previous Lewis had contributed nothing. This matter, The World alleged at the time, had been exposed and denounced by James C. Cropsey, then District Attorney of Kings County, and now the Supreme Court Justice who yesterday denied the Mayor's request for more time.

Some of the other accusations made in the series of articles were that John F. Hylan had appeared as attorney in a number of alleged "strike" suits brought in behalf of Alfred R. Goslin, an ex-convict; that he had been severely criticised by the late Mayor Gaynor and others for rulings from the bench which resulted in freeing men brought before him on the charge of selling liquor without a license; that he and other Directors of the Eagle Savings and Loan Company of Brooklyn, which paid less than 10 per cent. to its investors when its affairs were wound up, had been censured by the courts; that he had promoted and advertised a school for oratory, although his own practice was to read his speeches.

In his affidavit, Mayor Hylan, after reciting the alleged difficulties which made the preparation of the case an onerous task, said that the increase of his duties to problems created by the war had taken up all his time and attention. He added:

"I believe, an am so advised by my counsel, that preparation will require at least a month of time, and in the exigencies of public business, I have not been able to find it and cannot find it during the month of June."

Time for Vacations.

In his affidavit in reply Howard Taylor, counsel for The World, asserted that the Mayor "has, notoriously, been away from the State and engaged in recreation, since he became Mayor, for many more days than his counsel would have required of him for assistance in preparation. Deponent is therefore constrained to conclude that the affidavit seeking to secure an adjournment of the trials until Autumn is only an excuse and that the fact is that the plaintiff does not desire to try these cases any sooner than he is forced to."

The affidavit asserted that the Mayor's attitude had been "disingenuous toward the court and public" and that an attempt had been made on behalf of the Mayor to create the impression that the Mayor was anxious to try the suits and that the defendant was hanging back. An article from The New York American was included in the affidavit quoting Samuel M. Fleschman, a lawyer said to be acting for the Mayor, as stating that the Mayor was "anxious and willing" to try the cases, but that the defendant had "blocked all efforts to get these cases to trial." The affidavit added that Mr. Moss and Mr. Marcus, counsel for the Mayor, had disclaimed responsibility for those statements.

Tells Swann That Painting Bearing His Signature Is Bogus.

An aged man stepped into the office of Assistant District Attorney John T. Dooling yesterday. He was shown a small painting about 35 by 40 inches. Peering at it closely for a few minutes he said, "I never painted that."

The man was Ralph Albert Blakelock, landscape painter. He pronounced the picture a forgery in spite of what purported to be his signature on it. Both Mr Blakelock and Mrs. Van Rensselaer Adams, who succeeded, with others, in obtaining his release from the State Asylum at Middletown in 1916, where he had been under treatment for fifteen years, were taken before the Grand Jury.

The District Attorney's office is looking into the allegations of a "picture factory" for the turning out of bogus Blakelock's. Yesterday Mr. Dooling had four pictures in his office which he subpoenaed from various collectors in this city and of the four one of them was pronounced genuine by the artist.

Mrs. Adams said that the picture in the District Attorney's office was a combination of two of Blakelock's famous pictures. The foreground, she said, was copied from a picture which sold at $1,750. That picture was painted twenty years ago and is now in the possession of the Toledo, Ohio, Museum. It is valued at $20,000.

Harry A. Watrous, Corresponding Secretary of the National Academy of Design, told District Attorney Swann that more than thirty spurious Blakelock's, including one from the Corcoran Gallery in Washington, had been sent to him for authentication.

As soon as Mr. Dooling became convinced that many bogus Blakelocks had recently been sold he inaugurated a John Doe investigation by the Grand Jury to run down those responsible.

Fund for Zionist Medical Unit.

The New York Chapter of Hadassah of the Zionist Organizations of America announced yesterday that it was continuing work of raising a fund of $1,000 to buy a motor truck for the American Zionist Medical Unit. It was said that none of the other funds of the society had been depleted yet in relief work. Contributions are received at the headquarters at 44 East Twenty-third Street.

DR. COPELAND DENIES A TRIAL TO BROWN

Suspended Director Will Have Hearing Before the Health Board on June 2.

HE MAY ONLY "EXPLAIN"

Neither Counsel Nor Witnesses May Be Present When He Answers Charges of Neglect.

Charges of neglect of duty, inefficiency and incompetency were served yesterday on Lucius P. Brown, Director of the Bureau of Food and Drugs of the Health Department. The charges were signed by Health Commissioner Royal S. Copeland, who set June 2 at 2 P. M. for Mr. Brown's hearing before the Board of Health, consisting of Dr. Copeland, Dr. Leland Copher, Health Officer of the Port, and Police Commissioner Richard Enright. The hearing will take place in the exhibition hall of the Department of Health, 139 Centre Street.

Mr. Brown was suspended on May 2, after he made public a reply to accusations against him by James E. MacBride, Chairman of the Civil Service Commission, who headed a committee that made an investigation of the Health Department. Notwithstanding the promise made soon after Mr. Brown's suspension that the latter would have an open trial with the privilege of calling witnesses, cross examining witnesses called by his accusers and of being represented by his counsel, George Gordon Battle, Health Commissioner Copeland yesterday said witnesses would not be present and counsel would not be permitted to appear with Brown.

In this, Dr. Copeland said, he was following out the opinion given him in reply to a request he made of Corporation Counsel Burr as to the form of the trial. Mr. Burr said that Brown was not entitled to a hearing "conducted as a proceeding in the nature of a trial, nor to be sworn, to introduce witnesses in support of his explanation, nor to be represented before said board by counsel." According to Mr. Burr, Brown is entitled only to "an explanation." The public will be permitted to be present at the hearing, Dr. Copeland said yesterday.

Specific Charges Made.

"Mr. Brown is not going to be hurried," he added. "Every opportunity will be given him to make ample explanation. He may have access to all records of the department we have, and to introduce all the material he desires. He may have an extension of time if he deems it necessary."

Dr. Copeland was asked why he had changed his mind with respect to giving Brown a public trial and allowing him to call witnesses and to have counsel conduct the examination.

"Regardless of what I said before, I now have the opinion of the Corporation Counsel, and I am going as far as the limit of the advice given by the legal adviser of the city," replied the Commissioner. The specifications of the charges against Brown include:

1. Failure and neglect to recommend to the Health Commissioner the adoption of food standards and the enactment of an amendment to the Sanitary Code and to the regulations of the Board of Health "necessary and proper for the effective supervision and control of the sale of food and food products in the city and for preventing the sale of unwholesome food and food not of standard quality."
2. Failure to exercise a personal supervision over his subordinates in the department; delegating to subordinates administration and control of the work that should have required his personal attention.
3. Failure to give proper consideration to the adoption of a food code for the city.
4. Failure to exercise proper supervision over the several divisions in his bureau.
5. Neglecting the work of the chemical laboratory of the department.
6. Failure to attend more than two meetings of the Board of Promotions and Discipline out of twenty-two meetings held between October, 1916, and May, 1918.
7. That he attended only three of twelve meetings of the Committee on Control of Health Districts between Feb. 20, 1917, and May 2, 1918.
8. That Mr. Brown supported Senate bill 678, "that would have legalized the adulteration of milk, prohibited under the existing statute."
9. That Brown disclosed to an inspector under his supervision, Alfred Luks, the fact that Commissioner of Accounts Leonard Wallstein was conducting an inquiry into the Johnson Avenue slaughter houses, and that such information "did greatly embarrass the progress and imperil the success of said investigation."
10. Absenting himself 73 out of 750 working days between Sept. 8, 1915, and May 2, 1918, during which time Mr. Brown delivered lectures in thirteen cities, and that he also spent a large amount of time in delivering lectures and spent a good deal of his working hours in preparing such lectures and employed the services of employes in the department for that purpose.
11. Allegation of spending a considerable part of his time between June 23, 1915, and May 2, 1918, during official working hours, in transaction of personal business.

Charges Omitted, He Says.

Mr. Brown, after receiving the charges, made the following statement:

"The charges under which I have been relieved of duty in the Health Department were received by me this afternoon. I have read them over, and am struck by the fact that the accusations contained in the public letter of Civil Service Commissioner McBride, addressed to the Commissioner of Health, of April 30, 1918, which letter was the basis of the action by which I was relieved from duty, are not contained in the charges actually filed against me, except in one particular—the statement that I favored the Wicks bill, which allowed the standardization of the quality of milk. The averments of Commissioner McBride that I had favored the Borden Milk Company; that I had opposed the investigation of the Health Department to expose an alleged corrupt ring in the Bureau of Drugs, and that I had favored the house of Schieffelin & Co., have apparently been found to be baseless, and are not included in the charges. The charges actually served upon me relate, with the above exception, to my administration of my bureau. I have an absolute and complete answer and defense to each charge which I welcome the opportunity to present."

It was pointed out yesterday by those who had followed the recent Health Department investigation that the decision to give Mr. Brown only a hearing in order to reply to charges made against him placed him at a disadvantage as he would be unable to make a complete explanation without the aid of witnesses and under the direction of counsel. It is regarded certain that Mr. Brown will ask for an extension of time.

HOTTEST MAY 28 SINCE 1886

Temperature at 1:30 Was 86—One Prostration in Brooklyn.

According to the records of the United States Weather Bureau on the roof of the Whitehall Building, yesterday was the hottest May 28 on record since 1886. The thermometer registered 86 degrees at 1:30 o'clock in the afternoon, and it was much hotter in the streets below, where the dense atmosphere was almost stifling. A thunderstorm passed over the city late in the afternoon, accompanied by rain showers, but it did not bring much relief.

There was one case of heat prostration in Brooklyn—John Smarth, 43 years, of 92 Carroll Street, who was overcome while working on a steamship at one of the piers.

A lightning bolt struck the chimney of the Hanson Place Methodist Episcopal Church, Brooklyn, and passersby had narrow escapes from the heavy blocks of stone that fell into the roadway.

Another bolt struck the steeple of the Reformed Church at Clinton and Jackson Avenues, Newark, tearing the side off completely, and the débris smashed the terrace with a crash that startled a Red Cross committee, who were in the lecture room at the time.

Opposite 136 Marcy Avenue, Brooklyn, a big tree was split in two, and the wires were stripped from the telegraph poles for some distance on either side.

Escaping Steam Is Wasted Fuel

THE lines of steam curling up from kettles and saucepans on your kitchen range tell a story of wasted heat which you should heed. That steam, confined, could do a big share of your cooking for you. And you are letting it escape and waste your dollars.

These Fireless Cookstoves Use all the Heat for Cooking

In a Domestic Science or Ideal Fireless Cookstove, every particle of heat is utilized for cooking. The water-seal top and the heavy, scientifically arranged insulation conserve the heat so completely that a few minutes' heating of the cookstove radiators will do cooking that would take hours of heat on your range. The fuel saving is often as much as 80%.

In addition, the confined heat prevents the drying up of foods and the big shrinkage in meats which ordinarily occur. This is another economy worth considering. The automatic steam valve permits the escape of excess steam and enables you to bake and brown as is possible in no other fireless cookstove—as quickly as in your range.

Best of all, an Ideal or Domestic Science Fireless Cookstove will give you so many additional free hours away from home, while the meals are being cooked, that it will more than pay for itself in time saved.

Ask your dealer to show these Fireless Cookstoves or write us for our free booklet, "Delicious Fireless Cooked Dishes," with recipes and photographs in color.

"Don't Let Me Forget"

Leave it to us—we won't. Today is the first Wednesday this week, and the last before Decoration Day.

We'll do better than that. We'll promise to see that you don't have to leave town without that new Suit you wanted.

A Blue Serge, we believe you said it was?—a Golf Suit, Sport Suit, Dixie Weave, or what not? It doesn't matter. And the white flannel trousers, Straw Hat, Pajamas, etc., are easy.

A large order, you say? Maybe—but we're used to being accommodating and helpful. In fact, we like to be.

Stenographers and "vacations" and The Ediphone

Here they are right ahead—vacations. Usually they mean one of two things: "substitutes," or correspondence snarled up owing to doubling up of work. And it's worse this year—office staffs already are short. Add that to "vacations" and you are facing a tidy problem if you are depending upon the shorthand system.

If you would really like some intelligent help this year—help that you will tie-to for all-year service—you will take the few minutes necessary to find out why The Ediphone has replaced shorthand in thousands of business offices. To the everlasting comfort and efficiency of the stenographer and the "boss."
